$2.5 million fraud plot against L.A. computer

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Two men, believed part of a crime syndicate, were arrested early Saturday in connection with an alleged plot to rig the city treasury's computer to pay out $2.5 million in phony checks bound for "laundering" in Swiss bank accounts.

The men were arrested when they attempted to pick up two bank bags and two attache cases they thought contained their payoff, according to the district attorney's office.

Mayor Tom Bradley and local authorities had been alerted by a congressional committee in time to thwart the plan.

The city computer was reprogramed to pay out three checks, one in Chicago and two in New York. But the Permanent Senate subcomimitee on Investigations in Washington sent details of the plan to Los Angeles au5horities.

Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., said through a subcommittee spokesman in Washington that the arrests were part of an investigation to determine "just how deeply elements of organized crime have penetrated local government's computer systems that are, in effect, the vaults for the money collected from taxpayers."

The computers print the checks for city employes.

Morrie Weiner, chief deputy mayor, said Mayor Bradley was informed of the operation about 10 days ago. Bradley and city admnistrative officer Dr. C. Erwin Piper, the district attorney's office and Police Chief Ed Davis, formed a strategy to thwart the plan.

Arrested were Morton Freeman, 47, Palos Verdes, and Bernard Howard, 52, Yonkers, N.Y. They were each booked on suspicion of conspiracy to commit grand theft, conspiracy to commit forgery, and attempted grand theft and forgery.

Three other suspects, not identified, were being sought, authorities said.

Los Angeles District Attorney Joseph P. Busch told a news conference he was angered that Jackson and his committee released details of the plot to the news media.

"I think premature release of information always jeopardizes investigations," Busch said. "I just don't like information pertaining to an on-going investigation released. It is very disturbing."

Without elaborating on details, Busch said undercover agents had filled the bags the suspects were to pick up with telephone books and blank paper.

Busch said the three phony checks appeared "to be valid documents" but that "it's the production of the documents we're concerned about."

"They were made out to three corporations that, as far as we are concerned, have no legitimate business with the city of Los Angeles," Busch said.

Busch confirmed that the checks were obtained through the city's computer system rather than through forgery. He did not explain how the city's computer system had been tampered with.

Asked if he believed the suspects had city employes working with them, Busch said, "That's the part that bothers me, but it's inappropriate for me to answer that."

The Washington spokesman said Howard "has been linked in previous subcommittee hearings with Carmine 'the Doctor' Lombardozzi, a Brooklyn mobster and a close associate of New York crime boss Carlo Gambino."

The suspects allegedly forged at least three Los Angeles City Treasury warrants for a total amount of $2.5 million on Nov. 18, the district attorney's office said.

The checks were made out to Mercantile Trading Corp. of 30 N. LaSalle St., Chicago, for $856,729.42; National Equipment Group of 200 Park Ave., N.Y., for $880,195.12; and Schaffer Supply Corp. of 1 World Trade Center Building, N.Y., for $826,987.53.

Investigators said the money was to be transferred out of Los Angeles to Nassau in the Bahamas and then on to Switzerland, and eventually back to the United States.

A subcommittee spokesman said none of the money was lost because officials were alerted to the scheme in advance. He said the bank bags did not contain money, although they were supposed to contain $1.2 million which was allegedly Howard and Freeman's share of the loot after it was "laundered" in other countries.

Demos: new era of political reform

Campaign reform

Never again, say Republicans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Republican reform committee Saturday voiced public dismay at Richard M. Nixon's 1972 campaign financing practices that led to Watergate and took action to give the Republican National Committee more power in future presidential elections.

On a voice vote, members of the GOP's Rule 29 Committee —the group charged with making party reforms and rule changes —approved a provision to designate the party's national chairman as one of the presidential candidate's "designated agents" in future campaigns.

In addition, no expenditure of more than $1,000 could be made on the candidate's behalf without the express permission of the national chairman. Proponents said the changes would make the Republican Party more deeply involved in future presidential campaigns and head off a repeat of the Watergate related scandals that let to Nixon's resignation.

The bold new role for the national committee and party chairman would take effect immediately after the 1976 nominating convention and cover all campaign expenditures through the day of the election.

Party reformers put off until today another controversial recommendation that will determine how vigorously state Republican party organizations must work to broaden party participation, with specific emphasis on women, young people, minorities and the elderly.

Rep. Margaret Heckler, RMass., and Sen Peter Domenici, R-N.M., originally proposed that each state submit specific affirmative action plans for the review and approval of the Republican National Committee. Evidence of "good faith" efforts to broaden party participation would have been rewarded by "p r i m a facie" recognition of the state's delegate slates in case of challenge at the presidential nominating convention.

But concern over a bitter floor fight with members of the party's more conservative wing finally resulted in a considerably softer compromise that requires states only to send evidence of their "good faith efforts to reach out" to the national committee, Mrs. Heckler said.

There would still be an incentive of "prima facie" compliance with party goals of broadening the base of support under the compromise, Mrs. Heckler said, but failure to take steps to increase party participation "would not be evidence of non-compliance in the case of a challenge."

Nevertheless, a floor fight was still anticipated, this time with delegates who fear even the compromise will create a "quota system" for minority representation.

The rules change to give the national committee chairman more power in future presidential campaigns was opposed by current GOP Chairman Mary Louise Smith, who contended it could create extensive problems because of recent revisions in the campaign financing act.

AN EMOTIONAL MOMENT

Stave off walkout by blacks

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) -- Sweeping aside all objections in the name of unity for the 1976 presidential campaign, Democrats Saturday roared approval of a charter that writes a new era of political reform into party law.

Meeting nonstop in the second day of their unprecedented midterm mini-convention, party leaders staved off a threatened walkout by black delegates in a flurry of backroom wheeling and dealing that left some feelings bruised but kept everyone in the room.

After shouting approval of the charter, the convention recessed until 10 a.m. CST today, when the delegates will hear reports on pressing national and international issues before concluding the three-day session.

Old line labor, steamrollered in the push for harmony, went down angrily. Jack Henning, president of the California state federation of labor, shouted defiance at the architect of the compromise, national chairman Robert S. Strauss, and warned that without labor "this party will go down to division and ruin" in 1976.

But the deal that broke the last obstacle to completion of a 6,300-word party constitution had support from diverse elements of the party represented by the convention's 2,500 delegates and alternates.

Govs. Wendell Anderson of Minnesota, John J. Gilligan of Ohio and Rubin Askew of Florida lent powerful backing to the compromise.

And Rep. Eligio de la Garza, D-Tex., said "I don't agree with the entire compromise but I'll support it because it is a small enough price to pay to the Democratic party for bringing a boy who shined shoes on the streets of Mission Tex. to the Congress of the United States."

The urge for unity seemed to dominate all other considerations as the Democrats met in their first national assembly since the Watergate scandal toppled Richard Nixon from the presidency.

To emphasize that Democrats finally are ready to forgive and forget after six years of divisive feuding that helped Nixon win election in 1968 and reelection in 1972, the convention gave a rousing, cheering hero's welcome to George McGovern.

The South Dakota senator, who led the party to its worst election disaster of the century amid the party-rending strife two years ago, warned against compromising principle to achieve unity. But togetherness clearly was what the Democrats had uppermost in mind under glaring television lights in Kansas City's huge municipal auditorium arena.

Teacher remains in critical condition

Chino High School teacher Mike Ricottone remains in critical condition today at Tustin Community Hospital.

Ricottone was injured when a 55-gallon drum he was using as a workbench in his classroom exploded.

Hospital officials stated that the 24-year-old teacher's condition is very poor and his chances for survival are slim.

$2 billion ripoff of public by oil firms?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A General Accounting Office study released by Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., Saturday reveals that oil refiners may have overcharged the public by as much as $2 billion.

The study, prepared at Ribicoff's request, also showed the Federal Energy Administration has had "significant problems" in enforcing price regulations on the oil industry.

Ribicoff said his Senate reorganization subcommittee will hold hearings Wednesday to permit GAO investigators and FEA officials to discuss the findings.

With oil prices high and industry profits up, Ribicoff said, "there is no use for the public being subjected to illegal overcharges by the oil industry."

The report also said GAO investigators were unable to obtain certain data from an incomplete FEA audit of the oil refiners, but it noted future problems of disclosure have been solved.

As for the violations, the study cited certain "unresolved issues" in the price regulation of the oil industry and said "the magnitude of refineries' potential violations could be between $1 and $2 billion."

The study said the future of controls on petroleum products is uncertain. Existing authority expires Feb. 28 ,and the administration is supporting relaxation of the year-old controls.

Simon denies reports he's quitting

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Treasury Secretary William E. Simon Saturday denied reports he was threatening to resign.

In response to reports that his aides said he would leave the Ford administration if the President shifted emphasis from a battle against inflation to a fight against recession, Simon told UPI the report was "ridiculous."

"I have absolutely no intention of resigning, period," he said. "People are always speculating in Washington and most of the time incorrectly," he added.

Simon's top aide, Assistant Treasury Secretary Gerald L. Parsky, said, "I'm the closest one to Simon I know of. The story in my mind is ridiculous. He plans to stay as long as President Ford asks him to and he does not have any intention to resign.

Even suggested planting vegetable patch

Money-worried Nixon advised to sell home

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Former President Richard Nixon has been advised by close friends to sell his Florida White House at Key Biscayne to stay solvent and Nixon himself suggested planting a vegetable patch to make money, according to a copyrighted story in the Philadelphia Sunday Bulletin.

The article quoted Robert H. Abplanalp as saying the advice was given to a "weak and wobbly" Nixon "the first day he was out of pajamas and dressed for dinner," by Abplanalp, and C.G. (Bebe) Rebozo, two days before Thanksgiving.

Abplanalp reportedly told the Bulletin Friday: "He (Nixon) has to sell the Key Biscayne properties to stay within his means."

According to the Bulletin, Abplanalp said the principal cost-cutting measure discussed at Casa Pacifica, Nixon's San Clemente estate, Nov. 26, was the disposal of the properties to a nonprofit foundation headed by him and Rebozo.

He said Nixon also discussed planting "corn, beans, tomatoes and lettuce" at Casa Pacificia to make money but that the "truck-gardening plan" was discarded, not because "Mr. Nixon was reluctant," but because there was not enough acreage and would not be worth it, the Bulletin said.

He also said that at one point the discussion centered on planting grapes at San Clemente.

The idea appealed to the former president not only as a cost-cutting measure, Abplanalp said, but as a means of producing something.

"It was sometthing positive to him, after all the setbacks he's had all the despair he must have suffered," Abplanalp was quoted as saying.

Nixon had already intitiated cost-cutting measures including "uprooting rose bushes and sending them to public institutions and private individuals," according to Abplanalp who added he and Rebozo fully appreciated his sacrifices.

Abplanalp, like Rebozo, a millionaire, said that looking out of the dining room window he could see the ravaged rose gardens, with holes to mark the "economies" Mrs. Nixon has made, according to the Bulletin.

Abplanalp reportedly described Nixon as being attentive, but said his voice was sometimes weak. He said Nixon wore a coat and tie for the first time since leaving the hospital,.

"For the first time in years, Mr. Nixon has become conscious of what it costs to live. And it's been our idea to help him make up a budget he could live with," Abplanalp told the Bulletin.

O'Hara's widow is killed in car crash

PRINCETON, N.J. (UPI) — Mrs. Katherine O'Hara, wife of the late novelist John O'Hara, was killed Saturday night when her car ran off a rain-slicked road and hit a utility pole in Princeton, police said.

Mrs. O'Hara, 65, was found slumped in the driver's seat of her 1970 Mercedes bearing the specially issued license plate, JOH-1.

She was wearing a mink jacket and slacks and was believed on her way to a party when her car hit the utility pole at 7:30 p.m. EST, police said.

Nobel Prize economist says

We need industrial realignment to end major U.S. depression

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — A Nobel Prize economist said Saturday the United States is heading for a depression and its length would be depend on how quickly the nation's industrial employment policies are realigned.

Friedrich von Hayek, an Austrian-born British subject and co-winner of the 1974 Nobel prize in economics, said: "Every impending depression is alarming. To make it as short as possible, the United States should accept the reality of industrial realignment instead of inflation."

The Nobel laureate, who has been a consistent exponent of free economy, told a news conference the United States needs "substantial readjustment, including the transfer of labor from capital goods industries to consumer goods industries." This, he said, would mean lower wages to some extent.

Hayek said the U.S. unemployment rate of 6.5 per cent is misleading and "only half as high as suggested. Many could find jobs but find it better to be on unemployment benefits."

FRIEDRICH VON HAYEK

He also predicted the U.S. dollar "for the foreseeable future, will remain dominant" and the energy crisis would be a short passing phase.

"The main concern —rather alarm —is that the western world uses full employment misdirection, which leads to inflation," the 75-year-old economist said. "Continuing inflation can keep these people in jobs for a while, but that is not the answer."

Urging an end to inflation, Hayek said it would not mean deflation. "We need not fear the 1930s. We have learned a little from that. We have to resort to flexibility in prices and wages."

"Free economy cannot survive unless we have a free determination of relative wages and leave it to supply and demand to determine market prices," Hayek said.

Hayek is in Stockholm to receive his award together with the other 1974 Nobel prize winners from Sweden's King Carl Gustaf on Dec. 10.

On the energy crisis, the economist said, "The Arabs have a great deal to learn.

"There is a general underestimation of science, for instance the possible use of volcanic power for heating."

Hayek said he would not be surprised if "within five years the Arabs will have done a great harm to themselves. There will be an energy problem during the next three to five years, but in the long run, we will make it. We always knew something will come up. This is only a passing stage. In a free society we will get out."

Church offers a mite more than sacramental wine

LITTLETON, Colo. (UPI) — The pastor of St. Thomas More Center in the Denver suburb of Littleton says he doesn't expect a liquor license granted his parish center to have any ill effects.

"The days of the big, dark churches that were opened once a week for Mass are over," the Rev. Frederick D. McCallin said Saturday. "The church has changed."

The Arapahoe County Board of Commissioners Friday approved the license request made by Father McCallin, who had the full support of the church's board of directors. Alcohol will be served in conjunction with meals at a restaurant, which will be part of the center.

"People now get together to eat and drink and that's what the center will be—a place for the community to gather. The Church should be the center of the community."

It marked the first time a church in Colorado received a liquor license. Father McCallin said the restaurant won't have a bar and will serve alcohol only with meals.

He said the profits would be used for construction of a separate church, tennis courts and a swimming pool. Father McCallin, a teetotaler himself, said he expected parishoners to walk across the hall to the restaurant after Mass on Sunday for a family brunch.

"We are not trying to make money," said Joe Walsh, center administrator. "We want a place where parents can take their children for a nice meal at a good price."

Some of the members of the parish complained about the license to the Chancery Office of the Archdiocese of Denver, but didn't have any luck. Mark Work, director of Archidocesan communications, said the Church had no law about the matter.

"Let's face it," said Father McCallin. "The first bartender in the church was Christ at the marriage feast of Cana."

Arapahoe County Commissioner Charles Pitts said the request was approved on the basis of need and proponents of the request demonstrated the nearest liquor outlet was two miles from the church.

Chaffey High School tax increase meeting will set rate Monday

The Chaffey Union High School District Board will meet Monday in a special session at 7 p.m. to consider adoption of a resolution calling for tax hike.

The increase, if adopted, will be presented to the voters at a March 4 election.

The amount of the increase is expected to be decided by the board.

In discussion at the meeting last Monday, the board agreed to an approximate 51 cents-per-$100 evaluation increase for basic educational programs.

The board, however, has not made any decision about the amount of money they will ask for for building improvement projects.

Conservaative columnist William F. Buckley Jr., commenting on the Wilbur Mills scandal involving stripper Fanne Foxe, said at a Western Kentucky University lecture that "anybody who has spent 20 years trying to understand the American budget is entitled to go nuts."

Boy suffers knife wound in fight

A 17-year-old Upland boy was treated for a minor knife wound at San Antonio Community Hospital Friday night after a fight at a Foothill Boulevard party.

John Joseph Maguire of 1242 Howard Ave. in Upland was taken to the hospital after a telephone caller informed police of the injury.

No arrest has been made in connection with the incident, but an investigation is being conducted by Capt. Howard Seay of the Upland Police Department.

Rocky's confirmation

Senate-House opposition fails to jeopardize OK

By CLAY F. RICHARDS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nelson A. Rockefeller will become the nation's 41st vice president within two weeks, barring unforseen problems in Congress.

The Senate votes Tuesday and the House in two weeks on the nomination of the former New York governor. The vote follows what many Congressmen agree is the most thorough investigation they have ever given a presidential nominee.

Rockefeller's confirmation will mark the first time in American history that both the President and vice president were confirmed by Congress and not elected by popular vote.

Congress confirmed Gerald R. Ford to succeed Spiro T. Agnew just a year ago, and Ford succeeded Richard M. Nixon only four months ago.

Rockefeller's nomination will probably be confirmed by an overwhelming vote in both houses, despite controversy raised mainly by his immense wealth and the way he used it during his 15 years as New York's governor.

The $1 billion Rockefeller family empire and Nelson Rockefeller's $265 million share in it were the central targets of the four-month investigation. Rockefeller argued that allegations his family wielded vast economic power were "a myth" and said most of the fortune, including his own holdings, were from a trust set up by his father.

He finally promised to put his own holdings in a blind trust and to discontinue the giftgiving habit that funneled about $2.5 million in gifts and loans to close associates.

But these promises, and a pledge that there would be no conflict between Rockefeller wealth and his powers as vice president, did not satisfy some liberals in Congress.

House Judiciary Committee liberals argued Rockefeller was too rich to hold high public office and said they would vote against confirmation when it comes to committee ballot, probably Thursday.

This opposition will probably constitute no more than eight to 10 votes in the committee.

The strong anti-Rockefeller opposition expected from the Republican right did not materialize. Much of it vanished a month ago when Ford announced he would run for reelection in 1976 and ended speculation Rockefeller would be the party's candidate.

Car trouble leads to trio's arrest in robbery of man

Three robbery suspects evidently had car trouble in Pomona, and it proved to be their undoing.

The trio was captured by police while trying to push a car from a restaurant parking lot several hours after a 59-year-old Chino man was robbed.

Officers said Jerry Lukas, 19, of West Covina, Rodney Foltz, 20, of Baldwin Park and a 17-year-old East Los Angeles youth were arrested Friday night when they returned to the robbery scene in the Castaway Restaurant parking lot, 1600 N. Ganesha Blvd.

Gerhard Lessman, the victim, told police three persons approached him at 9 p.m. and demanded money at knifepoint. One man simulated a gun in a paper bag, and another robber warned Lessman that "someone is holding a shotgun on you."

The robbers who took $100 in cash and keys to the victim's car, fled and then returned a while later and tried to leave with Lessman's auto, said police. But the victim chased two of the bandits, and while they got away, they didn't get his careither.

Officers in the helicopter spotted three men trying to push the Plymouth with another vehicle. Patrol units then sped to the scene and arrested the men.

'Day of infamy'

They remember Pearl Harbor

lano Roosevelt said would "live in infa-1941, the date President Franklin Delano Roosevelt said would "live in infamy," with an observance at the gleaming Arizona Memorial, built over the sunken battleship where more than 1,100 men remain entombed.

The ceremony was made more poignant by the shipyard's siren signalling 7:55 a.m., the beginning of the moment of prayer when the first bombs fell in the attack that plunged the United States into World War II.

Rear Admiral Richard A. Paddock of Auburn, N.Y., commandant of the 14th Naval District, paid tribute to organizations presenting flower wreaths, including a group of about 30 survivors from the New England area.

"They have come some 5,000 miles to make this pilgrimage in memory of their former shipmates," Paddock said.

A four-man Navy color guard raised the American flag from a pole mounted to the Arizona's rusted mainmast. The Stars and Stripes fly from the sunken battleship daily, the only U.S. warship not in commission to be so honored.

Colleagues now picking his carcass

An analysis of solon Wilbur Mills' downfall

By ROBERT M. ANDREWS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Last Sunday, after he had appeared on the Pilgrim Theater stage in Boston and anointed stripper Fanne Foxe with a kiss, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., sat in his protege's spangled dressing room and offered a prediction.

"This won't ruin me," he said.

"Nothing can ruin me."

Less than a week later Mills was a broken man, lying in Bethesda Naval Hospital under heavy sedation while his erstwhile friends were making him the butt of crude cocktail party jokes and his fellow Democrats in the House of Representatives were methodically picking at the carcass of his political power.

Seldom has a politician fallen from grace so rapidly. Within 48 hours after the Pilgrim Theater episode, Mills had lost everything he had carefully built during 36 years of diligence in becoming one of the most powerful men in Congress.

While he stood chain-smoking cigarettes and coughing at the rear of the House chamber, Mills watched helplessly as Democratic members —emboldened by election last month of a host of young liberals — dismantled the foundations of his long-unchallenged authority as chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

They took away the power he shared with fellow Democrats on Ways and Means to decide committee assignments for all other House Democrats. Then they moved to pack his conservative committee with liberals by expanding total membership from 25 to 37.

Finally, ever so gently, Mills got word from the House leadership that he was finished as chairman of Ways and Means after nearly 17 years. While Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., took his place, Mills' close friends quietly urged him to enter a hospital for treatment, or to resign, or both.

His constituents in Little Rock were shocked. Only a month before, they had accepted Mills' expressions of penitence for his indiscretion at the Tidal Basin with Miss Foxe ("Don't drink champagne with foreigners," he said), and reelected him over the first serious Republican challenger of his career.

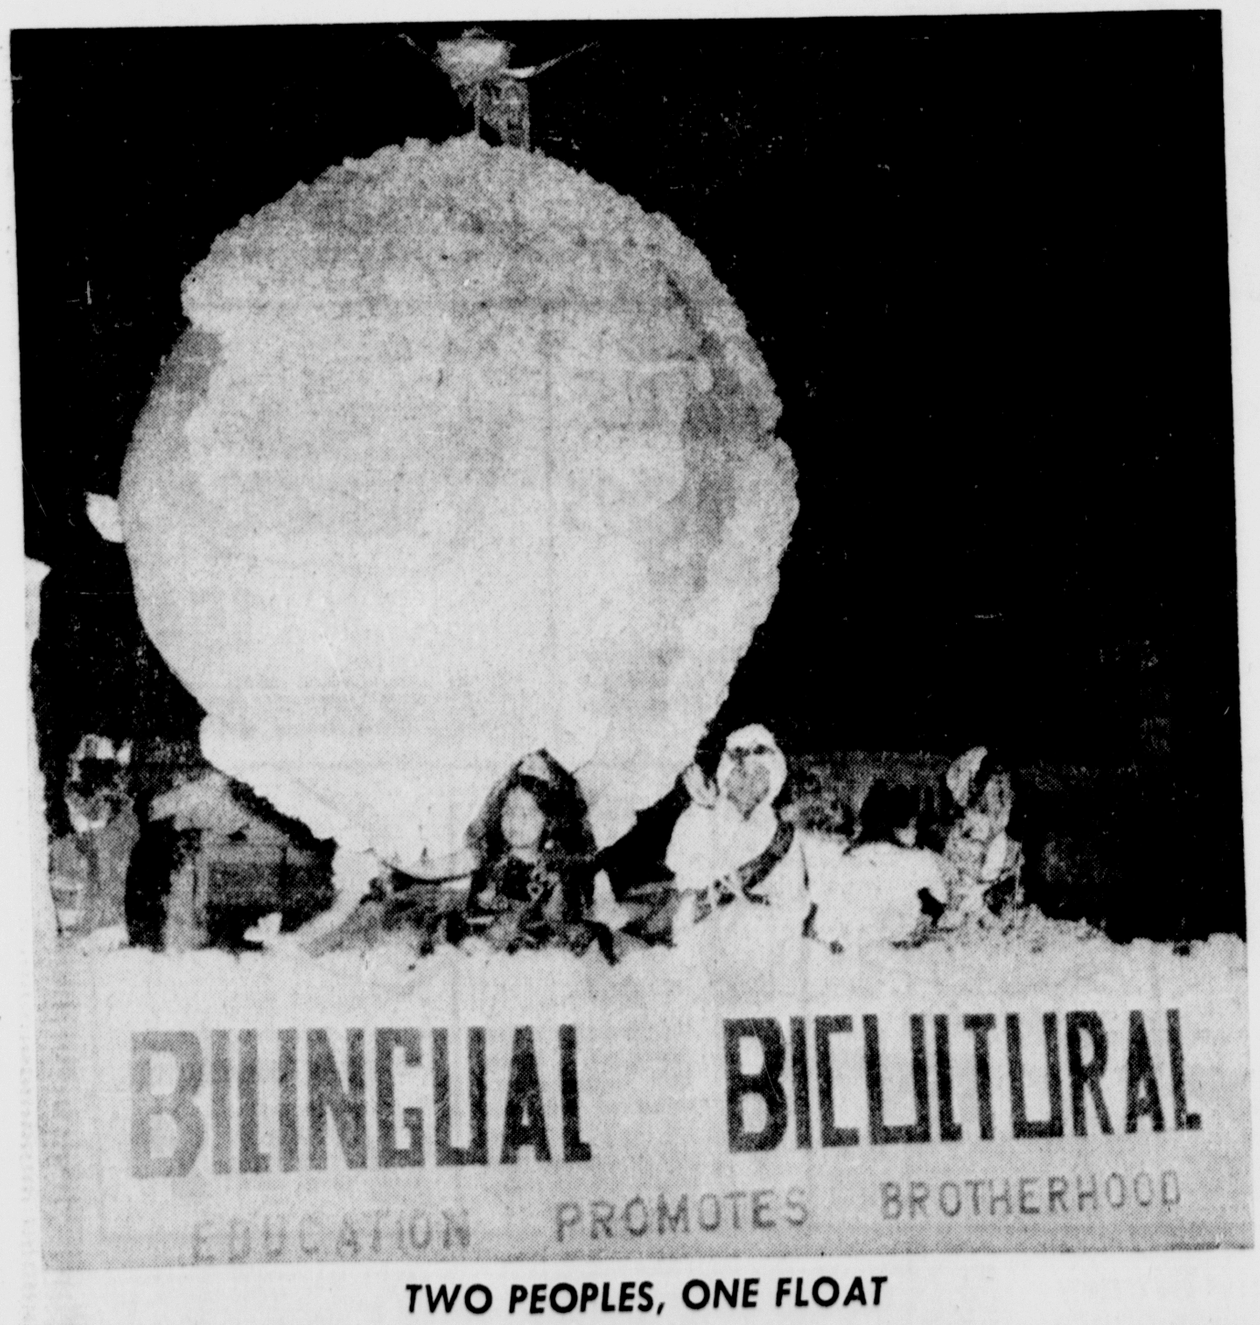
LUCIANNE IN FRONT

Miss California, Lucianne Buchanan of Claremont, smiles at fans on Holt Avenue as the parade begins. She rides in a car driven by Bill Linde along the parade route.

SPIRIT OF SHARKIE PARK

Feliz Navidad — Merry Christmas — is the theme of this float, which won second place in its division. Built by the Sharkie Park Committee, the float featured singing, gleeful young persons from the Sharkie Park area in Pomona. Floats were judged prior to the parade by officials.



TWO PEOPLES, ONE FLOAT

Winner of third place in the float division was this mobile display for the Bilingual Bicultural Center with children dressed in the costumes of foreign lands promoting education and peace.

Obituaries

Ethel Sibbach

Mrs. Ethel L. Sibbach of 590 S. Indian Hill Blvd., Claremont, died Friday in Garfield College Hospital.

Mrs. Sibbach was born Dec. 16, 1898 in Wheaton, Ill. She came to California about 1903 from Illinois. She moved to Pomona from San Fernando Valley in 1962, then lived in Montclair before moving to Claremont in 1970.

Friends may call at Todd Memorial Chapel Pomona Monday between 3 and 9 p.m. Private burial will be made in Valhalla Memorial Park, North Hollywood.

Luigi Veltri

Luigi A. Veltri of La Verne died Friday at Kaiser Hospital in Fontana after a short illness.

Born Sept. 27, 1905 in Belmonte Italy. Mr. Veltri came to La Verne 25 years ago. He was a member of Sons of Columbus 85 of Pomona.

Survivors include his widow, Mary, a son, Louis; two daughters, Mrs. Mary Folina and Mrs. Chris Moreno; a brother, Ubaldo; and nine grandchildren.

Rosary will be recited today at 6:30 p.m. at Blackman's Memorial Chapel. Mass will be Monday at 9 a.m. at Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic Church in Montclair followed by entombment at Bellvue Mausoleum, Ontario.

Blackman Mortuary is in charge of arrangements.

Decima Vicenti

Mrs. Decima L. Vicenti of 2332 "E' St., La Verne, died Friday in Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Mrs. Vicenti was born Sept. 23, 1898 in Pittsbugh, Penn. She came to California in 1906 and lived in San Pedro for many years before moving to La Verne in 1960.

Surviving are two sons, Richard H. of La Verne and Warren W. of La Habra and four grandchildren.

Services will be held Tuesday at 11:30 a.m. in Todd Memorial Chapel Pomona. The Rev. Richard N. Avery, rector of St. Johns Episcopal Church, La Verne, will officiate. Burial will be made in Sunnyside Memorial Gardens, Long Beach.

Dr. Max Lerner

DR. MAX LERNER, a syndicated columnist who is currently a visiting professor of government at Pomona College, will deliver a lecture on "The Passion of the Republic" in Bridges Hall of Music at 11 a.m. on Tuesday, Dec. 10.

Lerner's syndicated column appears three times a week in newspapers throughout the United States, and his articles have been published in national magazines and professional journals.

THE UNIVERSITY CLUB OF CLAREMONT will move from its customary meeting place at Griswold's Indian Hill restaurant to the GOSH Pavilion Tuesday noon, Dec. 10 for the annual holiday program when ladies are special club guests.

The program will include the 20-member Citrus College Madrigal Singers, directed by Martin Green, and singing "Music of the Seasons."

MICHELLE FIALHO, daughter of Mrs. Frances Fialho, 1710 Richard St., Pomona, has been selected as a member of the cheerleading squad at Columbia College in Columbia, Mo., for the current academic year.

THE TAHITIAN CLASS of Summer 1955 and the Centurious Class of Winter 1955 of Franklin High School, Los Angeles, are planning a 20-year reunion in April.

Members of those two classes are asked to contact Marsha Chastain White of San Dimas. She may be reached at 213 966-4401 during the day and at (714) 599-3236 after 5:30 p.m. Her address is 549 Cambert Ave.

CUTE SKIERS — Candy Lieberman, left, and Sharon White are getting ready for a ski fittness class to start Monday at the Pomona YMCA. Daryl Palmer, right, is the instructor. The class will meet at 7 p.m. Mondays for five weeks. For beginners and advanced skiers, it will cost $3 for members and $7.50 for nonmembers.

Lung Association thank you fete

Peter D. McDerrott, president of the Lung Association of Los Angeles County, will be the speaker Tuesday at the fifth annual "Thank to You" program given by the Lung Association. His topic will be "Your Christmas Seal Donations—A Matter of Life and Breath."

Los Angeles County Supervisor and Mrs. Peter F. Schabarum, county District Attorney and Mrs. Joseph H. Busch and the area Christmas Seal Princesses will be honored guests.

The function will be held at the Covina City Library at 7:30 p.m.

Some say Mills' power first began to erode when big-money lobbyists lured him into an ill-fated contest for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1972, a venture that has embroiled Mills in allegations of accepting illegal campaign contributions.

Others fix the date at Feb. 29, 1972, when a minor rebellion against Mills erupted on the House floor. For the first time in memory, a small group of Democrats obejcted to —and defeated —a series of special interest tax break bills that Mills brought up in behalf of fellow Ways and Means members. This time, someone had dared to challenge Mills, and he lost.

More importantly, he lost face. The steely, enigmatic Mills, a master at reading and responding to the whims of the House, had misread the temper of his colleagues.

Then there was Mills' eight-month absence from the House because of painful back surgery. While he was gone, Ullman easily took over Ways and Means, which originates all House legislation dealing with taxes, Social Security, health insurance, foreign trade and welfare. Committee members discovered they could get along without Mills.

When Mills finally returned last spring, he slipped easily into his old role as the humorless, hard-working expert on tax law, skillful in pulling the levers of congressional power. But something was strangely different.

There were days when "Mr. Chairman," as he prefers to be addressed, became a wise-cracking, back-slapping comic during committee meetings. During debate one day over tax reform, the small, ornate Ways and Means hearing room resounded with belly laughs when Mills made a deadpan suggestion that the staff draft a new depletion allowance for mistresses.

Mills lost a showdown with reporters when he tried —contrary to House rules —to call a private committee session without taking a formal vote. He backed down when it became clear the committee opposed him, and the reporters stayed.

Later, Ways and Means members dared to horse laugh when Rep. William Green, D-Pa., responding to a taunt from Mills, called the chairman "Wilbur."

After his re-election, Mills returned to the Capitol in his old form again, but with a constant new companion, his wife Polly. She drove to work with him, sat silently in all his committee meetings, press interviews and private conferences.

Then, last Sunday, Mills astonished his colleagues and constituents with his appearance in Boston, where he bragged he was launching Miss Foxe on a Hollywood career. On Monday, he sat dejectedly in his office at the Capitol and said he had only been trying to halt "innuendos" about a sexual affair with Miss Foxe, although "I suppose at my age I should be flattered that anyone thinks that."

The next day, complaining to friends that he was "sick" and "totally exhausted," he entered Bethesda Naval Hospital for sedation and medical tests. Neither the hospital nor his staff has given any hint of Mills' ailment.

A half-dozen noted psychiatrists and neurosurgeons interviewed by UPI, on the condition that their names not be used, differed widely on the possible answers to Mills' erratic behavior. Some tended to suspect some physical cause, such as a brain tumor, a mild stroke, a drug-and-alcohol reaction, or pressure on the brain from spinal fluid. Others speculated that emotional stress might have been the trigger.

One psychiatrist said a "very plausible" explanation might lie in Mills' back operation and the chipping away of his power in Congress. "The back operation might have reinforced a feeling of loss of power, virility and prestige," he said, "motivating him to seek some comfort, consolation and reassurance that he is still interesting to others."

In her interview with the Post reporter, Miss Foxe professed "love" for Mills and a close friendship with Mrs. Mills. She also acknowledges that the publicity has been financially profitable.

"I enjoy the publicity itself because I might be able to use it," she said, "but I don't enjoy the source. I feel sad that he has been hurt."

The stripper who started at $50 a week, became the "Argentine Firecracker" and —after the October incident with Mills —was billed as the "Tidal Basin Bombshell," has a new manager now.

She plans to open soon at Orlando, Fla., for $17,500 for a week's work. Her manager also says she'll have a new stage name —"Foxy Fanne."

Fanne says

Wilbur'd be a perfect husband

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When Rep. Wilbur Mills, 65, met stripper Anabella Battistella, 38, "he learned what the life of a human being was like," the dancer said in an interview published Friday.

Now, she said, "he's changed. He's having a nervous breakdown, I think, but more from physical than mental causes."

Mills entered Bethesda Naval Hospital suffering from "extreme exhaustion" Tuesday, two days after he had appeared on a Boston stage with Mrs. Batistella —who uses the professional name Fanne Foxe —and kissed her.

The appearance caused a furor and seems likely to cost Mills his position as chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

In an interview with Sally Quinn in the Washington Post, Mrs. Battistella said she asked Mills not to come on stage.

"But I am sure he wanted the audience to see him... He was saying 'I have nothing to hide.' I guess he was very tired. He's been kind of weak lately, with the problems of the election, and his mother's been very ill,' she explained.

Mills had to fight for reelection in November partly because of the scandal generated when police stopped his unlighted car speeding through a Washington park. Police said both Mills and Mrs. Battistella were intoxicated, and that she jumped into the Tidal Basin and had to be dragged out.

She said Mills wanted her to stay home to study and give up her career as a stripper. "He wanted me to leave the whole thing in the Tidal Basin," she said, but she resumed her career for the money.

"I know he loves me very much in one way," she said. "Maybe he sees me as a kind of person he would like to have met when he was young. Not as a stripper. Just me, as a person."

Mrs. Battistella, a divorcee, has four teen-aged children.

"I would like to get married again," she said. "I guess it is not ridiculous that any woman would like to be married to Wilbur Mills."

"20 YEAR RE-OCCURING ULCER GONE"

says Richard Taylor, truck driver. "I was so sick I couldn't eat and lost 56 lbs. My ulcer would clear up a month or two and then return. No doctor could help me until I took Dr. Wing's treatment. After two weeks, I felt much better. In a short time later I quit and haven't taken any medication, and eat anything I want, and have gained back to 200 lbs. Truck driving is hard on my nerves but my stomach hasn't bothered me the last 2 years."

Magazines—what they are saying about the issues

By United Press International

George Washington was prejudiced against New Englanders and had to overcome this fault in order to unify his army, Yankee magazine reports. Author Thomas Fleming says Washington found New Englanders "stingy and grasping" and wrote to Richard Henry Lee that New Englanders also suffered from "an unaccountable kind of stupidity in the lower class of these people which, believe me, prevail too generally among the officers of the Massachusetts part of the army who are nearly of the same kidney with the privates."

Seventeen describes 160 gifts you can make yourself for Christmas ranging from pillows and Raggedy Ann dolls to picnic baskets and birdhouses. Even those lacking talent at crafts can turn out jazzy tee shirts, colored sand flower pots, offbeat planters made of old boots and fancy candles.

In MORE magazine, which examines the mass media, Author Andrew Kopkind complains that the press zeroed in on the White House politicians involved in the Watergate scandal while overlooking the corporate kingpins who made illegal campaign gifts. Kopkind faults the press on grounds that "business reporting...rarely gets beneath the operational details that are of use only to investors and other businessmen."

Editor Norman Cousins of Saturday Review-World likes President Ford's call to combat inflation but criticises his failure to do anything about cutting the $92.6 billion military budget, "which some experts have described as a prime example of massive bureaucratic waste." He writes, "We now have more four and three-star generals, admirals, colonels, and Navy captains on the public payroll than at the height of World War II."

National Review looks at the manner in which Amnesty International analyzes data concerning the repression of individual liberties in Eastern Europe. Writer George Nash says "While amnesty cannot be censured for Communist intransigence and the resultant gaps in the record, it should be held accountable for its interpretation of the date it does receive." Nash claims the group spends more time focusing on torture in Greece than, say, in North Korea or other Communist-run countries.

Germany—seek law to aid victims of violent crimes

A neighbor, later declared insane, had shot Mrs. Frisch with a high powered rifle as she looked out of her window.

"That was in 1971," Mrs. Frisch, who is paralyzed, said. "My husband is an invalid and I get no pension. I don't understand why the government doesn't help me."

A proposed law would do just that.

The law, sponsored by Justice Minister Hans-Jochen Vogel, would guarantee some form of compensation for all victims of violent crime.

Until now, compensation has been a hit-and-miss affair that the victim had to battle out with insurance companies.

The man who shot Mrs. Frisch had saved 10,000 marks ($2,500) and, when he died in 1973, she laid claim to his money as compensation.

"By the time all his bills were paid, there was only 3,000 marks ($1,250) left," she said. "That's how much I got."

Mrs. Frisch sometimes sits in a wheelchair but mainly must stay in bed. "I have to be turned every two hours, 24 hours a day," she said. "My husband is so tired. If only the state would give me a nurse."

A justice ministry official said cases would be investigated individually to determine how much a victim was entitled to.

"We have no real statistics available," the official said. "So we are having to base our estimates on other countries.

"It looks like the bill for the first year will be something like 12 billion marks ($4.8 billion)," he said.

West German lawmakers agree that some form of federal law is necessary, but there is squabbling over details.

Vogel's plan is that individual states should pick up the tab.

Opposition member of parliament Anton Stark suggests that fines imposed by the courts be funneled into one nationwide fund that would finance compensation.

"We are also keeping an eye on similar laws being proposed in the United States," the ministry official said.

It will take time until the law is finally approved and help reaches Mrs. Frish and thousands of other victims.

She strokes his hand as Herbert makes his wife comfortable, but later he whispers, "I don't know how much longer I can carry on like this."

Danger in tot's car seat

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The widely sold and highly rated infant carrier from General Motors —called the "Love Seat" —has a potential problem which could cause a baby's neck to become trapped.

GM has notified both the Consumer Product Safety Commission and the public about the defect and is offering free of charge a modification kit to correct it.

The problem arises when the seat is used outside the car to hold a baby. When the seat is not attached to a car seat, two holes on either side through which the seat harness passes are left open. If the baby is not strapped in the seat properly, he or she can slip down with resulting scratches and bruises to the neck.

GM told the Product Safety Commission it regards the problem as "probably minor (but) possibly severe." It said there was one confirmed case of an injury, adding that it learned of the problem from complaints by three owners.

GM said the best short-range advice is to make sure all restraints are properly fastened when the seat is used outside the car. Anyone who bought a seat since mid-1973 until early November, 1974, can write to GM and receive a free modification kit plus a revised instruction label.

GM estimates that about 220,000 of 265,000 Love Seats turned out during the period in question are in the hands of consumers. The company is in the process of changing its production method to make sure new seats turned out do not have the hazard.

The Love Seat received a high rating from Consumers Union in its tests of baby car carriers because of the degree of protection offered.

A reader in Pine Bush, N.Y., writes:

"I want to know why it is impossible to buy turkey thighs in the supermarket. Those drumsticks and wings are all bone. No one can give me an answer. Maybe you can find out."

We asked the National Turkey Federation, which said it was surprised. Any store selling turkey drumsticks and wings should also have the other cut-up parts, including thighs.

They suggest you check the store manager. Or it may be a local situation. In general the federation claims there is a new and growing market for turkey parts, which can be fixed the same way chicken parts are.

Turkey parts still are not available in all stores or in all parts of the country, but the trade group said they eventually will be.

A shredding machine used to grind up sticks, leaves and other compost heap contributions may pose some safety problems, according to the Consumers Product Safety Commission.

The agency, in conjunction with the manufacturer, the Kemp Shredding Co., Erie, Pa., issued a notice involving shredder models turned out prior to May 16, 1973. The models are identified as SKO; 6-04; and 6-0.

One particular problem involves cleaning out material that may become clogged in the hopper or the front discharge door during operation. If a stick is used to clear the hopper while the machine is running, both the stick and the user's hand can be sucked into the grinder without warning, the commission said.

So the warning notice being issued says the machine should be turned off before any attempt is made to clear it.

The notice also advises the use of safety goggles and ear protection devices to protect the eyes from flying objects and the ears from the sound.

"Under no circumstances should any user of said models put any portion of his or her hand or hands in any part of the machine while the engine is running or attempt to hold onto materials being fed into the machine. Grasp sticks or twigs with index finger and thumb only while feeding the shredder," the notice said.

Pass on your questions or complaints to Buyer's Billboard, UPI, 315 National Press Building, Washington, D.C. 20045.

Dr. Lee Salk says

Parenthood a male function, too

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Part of my mission," said Dr. Lee Salk, "is to make parenthood a male function, too."

That may sound strange to you, but Dr. Salk, psychologist and pediatrician, said in an interview that most people think just of mothers when they hear the word parenthood.

Not only that, but books on pregnancy, childbirth and infancy concern themselves mainly with motherhood.

"Fatherhood," said Dr. Salk, "comes in for separate treatment a lot of the time. I change all that in my book, aiming it at parenthood —mothers and fathers."

He was talking about "Preparing for Parenthood" (McKay), which is all about parents-to-be and their feelings about pregnancy, childbirth and infants.

Dr. Salk is director of pediatric psychology at the New York Hospital and professor of psychology and pediatrics at Cornell University Medical College. Dr. Jonas Salk, who developed a polio vaccine, is his brother. So is Dr. Herman Salk, a veterinarian in Palm Springs, Calif.

"A child's growing up emotionally sound has its roots in sound parenting. Nothing is more important than preparation," Dr. Salk said.

"My feeling is that persons have not been prepared for the emotional impact of parenthood and that many are unable to cope.

"I think too many persons slip into parenthood passively —without giving it a second thought or maybe even a serious first thought.

"If a person realized what was involved, decided he couldn't cope, then maybe he should consider not becoming a parent."

"Those considering parenthood should realize it's hard to keep a house neat and clean when you're raising children.

"And they should know that this new person in the family will take a lot of time and attention —for years."

Dr. Salk, in talking about the stresses and realities, suggested that children be spaced three years apart. This minimizes sibling rivalry. It also would spread out the parental stresses and strains.

In the book, Dr. Salk focuses on feelings and situations that face new fathers and mothers —including emotional ambivalence that frequently accompanies incipient parenthood.

Dr. Salk believes in the involvement of the father-to-be in the birth experience. In the book he takes up natural childbirth; rooming in at the hospital, which he feels helps both parents gain confidence and gives both a much-needed opportunity for mutually beneficial contact with baby. The baby stays in the room with the mother in hospitals having "rooming in."

He also talks about how to handle advice, both good and bad, from friends and relatives. "Such advice," he said, "can undermine your confidence."

BOATING

Carry camera aboard

NEW YORK (UPI) — One of the most useful items that can be carried aboard a pleasure craft is a camera, not only to record the exciting moments of boating, but for more practical reasons.

Photographs save time as well as money in substantiating losses for income tax purposes and insurance claims. They facilitate recovery of stolen articles and minimize possibilities of lengthy, extensive legal action.

The Internal Revenue Service, for example, accepts photographic evidence to establish losses due to fire, theft, hurricanes, etc. It also allows a reasonable cost for taking the supporting photographs as part of a justifiable claim.

Close-up pictures of valuable equipment such as compass, radio, depth finder, help police track them down if they are stolen. The back of each picture should contain the date each item was purchased, where, the cost and the serial number.

Pictures can also provide evidence in court actions resulting from an accident, such as a collision with another boat. In one recent case, pictures taken of a boat's occupants showing their physical condition after a collision prompted a court to throw out a large damage claim.

One important thing to remember in a collision incident —photograph the positions of the boats in relation to permanent markers, such as piers and buoys.

Unlike a score of years ago when cameras were bulky and it took a technical wizard to operate them, today's models are compact and so automatic they do everything but point the lens.

For example, the Kodak pocket Instamatic camera is little larger than a candy bar and can be carried aboard in a windbreaker pocket. Reloading is a simple matter of dropping in a cartridge of Kodacolor II film and closing the cover.

There is a built-in sliding lens cover on some models to protect the lens and a warning signal to alert the photographer when the cover is closed.

Movie cameras these days are almost as compact as the stills —and equally versatile. Most take up less room than binoculars.

The new Kodak XL camera has an effective minimum aperture of f-45 that "closes down" to avoid overexposure in bright sun conditions. This cuts down on the glare that is inevitable on water.

The XL series also comes with an electric eye that automatically sets exposure. It features drop-in loading like the stills and is battery powered. Some models have a power zoom lens.

One important point: take good care of cameras while on board. When not in use, keep the camera in a watertight plastic bag and store in a cool dry spot to protect the film from the hot sun and preserve the lens from the damaging effect of salt spray.

Tallulah Bankhead

Tallulah Bankhead revealed at her New York stage debut, in 1918, that she was named for her grandmother who, in turn, was named after Tallulah Falls, Georgia.

Whose responsibility is paving?

Homeowner's had it up to here with mud

By JON MORRIS
P-B Staff Writer

Ruben Ayala, a well-known politician in the valley for many years, wasn't prepared for the kind of mudslinging he became involved in during a drive out to Los Serranos in 1972.

But of course he couldn't blame his car for slinging mud, like he could some politico.

Ayala, now a state senator but then a San Bernardino County supervisor, managed to get his car stuck in Harold Ogg's driveway at 15340 Mariposa Ave.

In the process, he discovered he had become another victim of Ogg's dilemma — a dirt road that becomes a virtual mud hole when it rains.

"We finally pushed his car out," said Ogg, who had called the supervisor at his office, pleading his problem.

"He came out to see what the road was like after a rain. While he was here, he called on the radio for some gravel to be brought for our road. He told the person it was an emergency as he had gotten stuck trying to get up the road to my house. The gravel never came."

Ogg's problem was first detailed in the Progress-Bulletin's Action Line column last May 31. Now, with the valley's rainy season ahead, he and his wife are bearing up for "our fourth winter fighting the mud."

Ogg has been urging county officials to pave his road since April, 1971, when he built a home on three lots he purchased in 1963. He admits Mariposa was a dirt road at the time he bought the lots and also when he constructed the house.

The fact is that Mariposa is a private road, and while it has been dedicated to the county, it can't be maintained, officials said.

Since the road is not included in the county maintenance system, there is no legal requirement that the county must improve it.

Ogg is facing the problem that for the road to be added to the county system, it must be paved first.

At the same time, he is getting so fed up with Mariposa being a dirt road that he has been trying to sell his house. "We had a buyer all ready using a loan from the Federal Housing Administration, but the FHA would not accept it because the house is on a dirt road."

Ogg evidently assumed the county would pave the road when he found it on all maps of the area. "After a few homes were built there (there are two on the street), I thought they would maintain it."

The Los Serranos man, who is an electrical construction worker, says he visited various county departments in San Bernardino about the problem but "they give me the royal run around."

Ogg claims officials grade the road once a year before the Chino Ride, an annual horse riders' event. "But when the first rain comes, that's the end of that."

After several days of steady rain, the Oggs have problems even leaving the house. The road is slippery, and visitors to the area slip and slide trying to get to the home.

"My daughter's Brownie leader was sloshing around once and tried to drive on the grass at the side of the road but her pickup-camper settled right down into the mud."

Trash and mail pickup on Mariposa is a real problem. Even in good weather, the mailman does not come to Ogg's house — he leaves the mail at the corner of Bird Farm Road and Mariposa. Trash pickup on rainy days also is at the corner.

A visitor to Mariposa could easily miss the road. It looks like someone's driveway or a dirt alley. There is no street sign, so emergency vehicles might miss the street, Ogg complains.

A fire or other disaster could be a critical thing when the road is wet. "A person might die before an ambulance found the street," said Mrs. Ogg.

County officials, however, are well aware of the situation. They have been in touch with Ogg for several years.

County Supervisor Robert O. Townsend, who succeeded Ayala when he was elected to the state Senate, informed the Oggs on March 26 that "Mariposa is a private road and is not county maintained."

Townsend at one time claimed the street was not even dedicated to the county, but his field representative, Ron Brandon, admitted recently that it was. "But that was back in the 1940s when roads were accepted without being blacktopped. Now, roads are improved before they are dedicated."

George Grove, an assistant county road commissioner, said the road is dedicated but "not within the county maintenance system."

"It's an old problem," he related. "I've been out to Ogg's house, and a number of streets in the area are not improved. The county has rights to his road but just hasn't exercised its option. The road must be improved to full standards at no cost to the county and then we'll accept it into the system."

The county has numerous substandard roads already within the system, he added, "but not enough money to improve them." Road problems in Los Serranos are "mild," compared to those in other cities, Grove said.

STUCK IN MUD

Harold Ogg surveys neighbor's pickup truck which got stuck in the mud in his own driveway on Mariposa Avenue in Los Serranos. The picture was taken this week during rainstorm that soaked and muddied Ogg's dirt road. He had been battling with the county for a paved road for years.

Schools face $3 million deficit

District belt tightening

Faced with a $3 million deficit in the 1975-76 budget, Pomona school district administrators Tuesday will ask the school board to approve four belt-tightening measures.

The public board meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Education Center, 800 S. Garey Ave.

The first will be that the district make a "careful review" when vacancies occur to determine if some might remain vacant the remainder of the year.

The second will be that attendance at professional meetings by district employes be curtailed to those meetings which are critical to district needs.

The discontinuance of visitation days for teachers is the third recommendation. A visitation day is a day a teacher is freed from her classroom to visit another classroom or another school to receive-in-service training.

The fourth will be that a moratorium be called on all 1975-76 sabbatical leaves.

Reserve funds were used to balance this year's $25 million school district budget. Administrators warn that unless a tax override is approved by voters in May, severe cuts will have to be made in both personnel and programs in district schools.

Voters rejected a tax increase Nov. 5. While a new plan for the state financing of schools is before the state Board of Education, it is not expected to be moved through the Legislature and signed into law by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. in time for next school year.

Massage parlor controversy resumes Monday

A public hearing will be held by the Pomona City Council Monday night to consider the recommend revocation of 46 massage technicians permits.

The permits, all held by women, are being recommended for revocation on the grounds that the holders have not filed a doctor's certificate stating that they are free from communicable diseases.

Other agenda items for the 8 p.m. meeting include consideration of the Environmental Resources Element of the city's general plan. The element deals with conservation, open space, seismic safety, scenic highways, noise and safety.

The council will also consider recommended changes in the speed limits on many city streets. The proposed ordiance is being presented as an emergency measure.

It's Christmas fund kettle time again

The annual Salvation Army Christmas Kettle Fund drive is underway.

Funds are used to give Christmas food baskets to needy families in the Pomona area, toys for children, and clothing for residents of nursing and rest homes.

The food basket program is coordinated through the Christmas Basket Clearing Bureau, sponsored by Pomona Coordinating Council. Mrs. Richard Hyman is chairman.

With an office in the Salvation Army building, 456 W. Orange Grove Ave., the separate agency sees that duplications are avoided and all those found to be in need are provided with a basket.

Applications are being taken through Friday, December 20. Names of families in need, along with their addresses and ages of children should be phoned or mailed to the bureau at 622-0712. All applications will be processed by Beverly Feits, caseworker.

Christmas Tree Farm Hand

By PEGGY GONZALES
P-B Staff Writer

The scent of fir, pine and profit is on the breeze wherever Christmas trees are being sold this year.

Predictions and indications of sales for the season vary.

Sales of both potted and pick and cut trees are up 10 per cent from last year, reports Robert Sturrock, owner of the Sturrock Christmas Tree Farm in San Dimas.

Already 1,300 trees have been sold at the farm. Many of these are reserved to be picked up later. Last year the sales exceeded 2,000.

Trees won't appear at the YMCA in Pomona until Tuesday. Al Moras, who manages the tree sales annually, expects demand to increase this season.

"People seem closer together," he said, "and there is less money this year so I think more people will stay at home."

Surprisingly, people are spending more money on trees, Moras added. Some want them flocked, fire proofed and tall.

Armstrong Nurseries, operating a tree farm in Ontario, reports sales are down slightly this year for Christmas trees and other merchandise.

Rocky Lewis, merchandising manager for Armstrong, said trees grown at the farm have been reduced in price because of the state of the economy even though costs are up.

Armstrong sells between 2,000 and 3,000 trees annually.

Economic conditions caused the Jaycees in Pomona to abandon—possibly for this season — their traditional Christmas tree sales on a lot on North Garey Avenue near La Verne Avenue.

A form received two months ago listing substantially higher prices influenced this decision, according to Wayne Smith, president.

In past years Jaycees volunteer salesmen have negotiated with wholesalers in the central train yards in Los Angeles for trees which they sold in Pomona.

Each year the Jaycees have made money. They may be back in the green scene next Christmas.

At the Sturrock farm a new sign urges visitors to feel free to breathe deeply.

Deadline extended

The influenza immunization program in western San Bernardino County has been extended through Dec. 20 by the State Health Department.

Inoculations may be obtained at the West End Health Center, 1020 W. 6th St., Ontario, daily until Dec. 20, from noon to 5 p.m.

Voters' solution: first heal thyself

A young hospital worker was complaining. "The government wants us to save, cut back and scrimp. But the problem isn't us, it's our leaders. We don't have good men at the top. They look out for themselves, not for us." No one in the room disagreed.

But the fault is in ourselves. We refuse to work in politics. We will not run for office; neither will our friends.

The excuses we give are endless. We have children. We're tired when we come home from work. We've got too much to do. But an expert in politics once said bitterly that nine out of 10 of those who said they were too busy, could remember the plots of the popular television shows for the current week.

We say politics are too dirty, knowing full well that if good men won't get into politics, who is left but the shyster?

More and more of us call ourselves "independents" and stand above the fray, knowing that 99 times out of 100 it is only through participation in a political party that we have only say in the selection of candidates.

It is a truism that office holders are like clothing or care. We get what we pay for—in the effort we put in.

Yet, we are surprised when the nominees are poor and our choice on election day is to choose the best—or least worse—of several mediocre men.

This is not the end of our sinning.

We phone our congressmen for special favors, making it clear these are our due. Then we complain when he gives favors to special interests.

Since we don't take the time to spend hours cavassing door-to-door or on any of the other tasks necessary to win elections, the candidate thereby becomes dependent on large amounts of money. Inasmuch as we believe we do a nominee a favor if we subsidize his campaign with a dollar, $5, $10 or $25, he then must turn to $100, $500 and $1,000 donors—or to men or special interest groups willing to give multi-thousands, leading to the corruption we all deplore after the fact.

Proof that this need not be has been demonstrated in a series of campaigns over the years in which hard driving candidates with hundreds or thousands of eager workers have won uphill campaigns on shoestring budgets. Because of our indifference, this type of electioneering has been the exception rather than the rule.

Our unwillingness to exert ourselves in politics is not limited to elections. We don't monitor the voting records of the men we put into office. We don't check to find if they favor special interests, or their own, or the public's. By our lack of action, we make it clear we don't care, except for a few issues which hit us personally. We make no effort to find if our congressman, senator, city councilman, state legislator or county supervisor has a conflict of interest, whether he does his homework and acts from knowledge, or whether he goes along with the current, being told how to vote by some group or another.

Then, too, we expect from government what we can better do ourselves. We demand our officials do something about the energy shortage, complain bitterly when gasoline lines become long, or when the price of gas leaps, yet all too many of us are driving 60 and 70 MPH down the highways, despite evidence these speeds burn fuel at a deadful rate.

We shall not have better government until we demand that government does less, but does it with excellence.

Was terrible sacrifice worth it?

SEOUL — From 1950 to 1953, 33,629 Americans lost their lives and another 103,284 were maimed in a war that stopped Kim Il-sung, the Red ruler of North Korea, from taking over the entire Korean peninsula.

Now many Americans are questioning whether this terrible sacrifice was worth it. They charge that South Korea's President Chung Hee Park has seized dictatorial powers and that his people, therefore, are no better off than are the subjects of Kim Il-sung.

To find out 22 years later whether the Korean War was a mistake, I have spent the past four days exploring South Korea. I drove from Seoul to Pusan, stopping at villages and industrial sites, with nongovernment friends as my guides. I spent one night in a native hotel, sleeping on a mat on the floor. I visited with Koreans of all levels—government officials and opposition leaders, business tycoons and simple villagers.

I also tried unsuccessfully to visit North Korea to compare conditions there. Denied personal access, I must settle for information from intelligence reports and some visitors who were taken on a carefully controlled trip to Pyongyang.

The intelligence reports depict North Korea as perhaps the world's most oppressive, monolithic society. Although dissidents tried early this year to challenge the absolute authority of Kim Il-sung, they were ruthlessly cut down on Feb. 15.

The cruel Kim keeps his subjects in line through the National Political Security Bureau (NPSB), which conducts secret surveillance on all branches of government and walks of life. NPSB advisers exercise political control, serving as Kim's eyes and ears, over the army down to the company level and over the bureaucracy down to the section level. They also reach into every neighborhood in North Korea.

Most able-bodied men, who work in the factories and fields, are pressed into a labor-peasant military reserve, which is given intensive, mandatory training to keep it combat ready. Another 700,000 youth likewise must drill five hours each week, with a full month of active duty each year.

The visitors to Pyongyang describe the North Korean capital as bleak and cheerless. The people on the streets had a haunted look, reported the visitors. There was little traffic except for government cars.

In South Korea, I found opposition leaders fearful of the Korean Central Intelligence Agency (KCIA). Visitors to my Seoul hotel room were nervous about candid conversation, showing by gestures that they believed the room was bugged.

Yet I found no one who was the least afraid to criticize the government in their homes and offices. And even the harshest critics agreed that the KCIA was by no means as omnipresent and oppressive as the NPSB.

Outside of Seoul, I found people seemingly oblivious of the government. South Korea's major cities are bustling, prosperous places, the people friendly and cheerful, the streets jammed with honking, careening civilian auto traffic.

I did some shopping in a downtown Seoul department store, which looked much like the department stores back home, complete with Christmas trimming and a surge of Christmas shoppers.

In the countryside, I notice electric lines strung to the homes in the poorest villages. Many of the peasant homes, I was told, have TV sets.

I visited a modern shipyard that is building tankers for the Japanese cheaper than they can construct them and a huge steel complex that is producing steel for the United States. I spoke to American wholesalers who told me they now buy most of their clothing imports in Korea.

South Korea's growth rate, now at an astonishing 15 per cent, is the highest in the world. The people, clearly, are more free, more prosperous and altogether better off than their cousins north of the 38th parallel.

It is true, on the other hand, that President Park has suspended some freedoms and jailed some critics. He insisted in an interview that they were jailed, not for their opposition to his rule but for violating emergency security laws. These laws, most of them now revoked, were necessary, he avowed, because of North Korean subversion.

There is no dispute that North Korean agents have been behind acts of sabotage and subversion in the south, including a recent attempt upon President Park's life. It is also true that Seoul is full of open opponents, who have managed to condemn Park without going to jail.

Of 1,024 arrests under the emergency measure, only 203 were prosecuted and 186 are in custody. Most of them are students, who have been stirring up trouble for the government on the campuses. Twelve are religious leaders, whose release I went to Korea to seek.

On the other hand, I found that Park's opponents are quite free to denounce him and to demonstrate against him. Seoul's daily newspapers carry cautious accounts of these demonstrations.

The democratic processes clearly have been curtailed, but democracy is not dead in South Korea. And economically, the country has made astonishing progress under President Park.

SCIENTIFIC DRUNKS: Alcoholics desperately seeking treatments have been used as guinea pigs for government-funded experiments in which doctors dose them with more booze in the name of science.

The hospitals used for the experiments are frequently advertised as "treatment" centers. Yet, our investigation shows that once inside, the vulnerable and distressed alcoholic may be asked whether he wants to "volunteer" for an experimental program in which he will get still more liquor.

Susceptible to any suggestion, many agree and some are even paid to go back to tippling. Then they are given varying quantities of alcohol to see how it affects them. In the end, they may be dried out and treated without alcohol.

We have found programs being carried out by doctors from such famed institutions as the Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia, Brooklyn's Downstate Medical Center and New York's Payne Whitney Clinic. Similar experiments have been conducted at Veteran's Administrations facilities and other hospitals.

For example, Dr. Milton Gross, a prestigious scientist at the Brooklyn center, got a federal grant from the National Institute of Mental Health for his study.

Alcoholic patients seeking help were paid as "volunteers" and given controlled amounts of alcohol for four to six days.

Dr. Gross and others ably defend both the history and necessity of such experiments. Gross feels the participants are helped in the long run because "it gives them a sense of worth which often helps with their future recovery."

But many doctors feel that any additional alcohol is damaging to an alcoholic, particularly to his liver.

Some doctors also question the ethics of human guinea pig techniques and recommend instead use of baboons or other manlike animals. But this runs afoul of animal lovers who are outraged when baboons, which are sober by nature, are turned into lushes.

Just in jest

Many of our women are now attending special self defense classes designed to teach them how to protect themselves against muggers and over-ardent males. Which just goes to show you how complicated life has become for today's female of the species. But truthfully, it wasn't always thus. When Great Grandma was a girl the womanly art of self defense didn't require long hours of training in jujitsu and karate. All Great Grandma had to learn was how to use a hatpin or an icepick.

And speaking of Great Grandma, remember when she used to hide her pin money in a sugar bowl? — There we have just another example of how times change. Today the sugar bowl, as its name implies, is filled with sugar and then carefully locked up in a safe deposit box.

There's an old saying in the world of entertainment which insists: "The show must go on!" And that undoubtedly is why one of our better known Movie Sex Queens refuses to retire.

"There's a need," she says with commendable unselfishness, "for what I project."

Ah yes! Truly there is no business like show business. And just to prove it, we have now been favored with an hour long TV special on "The Life of Lassie."

Berry's world

DAVID POLLING, D.D.

What makes Billy Graham No. 1?

When a group of religion editors picked the most influential Christians in the world today, they naturally included Billy Graham. What no one anticipated was the staggering popularity of the man from Montreal and the rather invisible stature of the remaining list. Just completing his 25th year as an evangelist, Dr. Billy Graham now emerges as not only a leading Christian spokesman but probably a global celebrity known to as many people as Mao or the Beatles (the who?).

Here are some obvious rasons for Graham's soaring success, which has put him in the front rank of world personalities:

1. He is an attractive, articulate speaker in a time when public speaking seems to be a lost art. His message, regarded as too conservative and fundamental by many, is filled with contemporary illustrations, quotes from the New York Times, and saturated with Biblical scenes. This proclamation of the Gospel worked well in Los Angeles (25 years ago in tent meetings) and travels just as well today on television.

2. Graham has a solid ecumenical base. Although strong in his Southern Baptist convictions, Billy has always required interdenominational support for his local crusades. Thus Christians of all brands and persuasions, rank and standing, have shared in the sponsorship of Graham's preaching. Early in his ministry, Billy integrated his staff and his public meetings. For this he enjoyed the rage of racist churchmen but gained the broad public following that now extends throughout the Third World and into Asia.

3. Organizational loyalty. In this world of drift and change and management jumping around, it is amazing to note the number of executives, associate evangelists and business types that have been with Graham for more than 20 years. Furthermore, in spite of small-fry criticism of the booming success of the Graham enterprise, there has never been a major scandal in the ranks of this Minneapolis outfit. They account for the money received and the people employed . . . If only Richard Nixon could have really asked for help before entering that moral swamp called Watergate.

4. Graham knows how to use the media. His films, publications, and books appear all over the map. The massive rally in Rio de Janeiro recently was climaxed by a public meeting of nearly 250,000 people. In Brazil, the Graham team had been working for more than a year, hitting the airways in Portuguese. As part of the Brazilian effort, representatives of the Graham organization set up a school for Christian writing, again operating in Portuguese.

5. Billy knows where the people are. His messsage is for the masses. Within a three-month period he will be a guest on the Tonight show, grant a personal interview to the National Enquirer and write an Op-Ed piece for the New York Times. He talks with the Jesus kids out on the fringe and knows the score of the last Dallas Cowboys' game. Graham now seems to stand alone. Presidents come and go, new popes are elected and retire, sports figures and movie stars glitter and fade. And here is Graham at 55 with another 20 years of world audience. No one here would be surprised to learn that Billy will be preaching in Cairo next and Peking the following.

Believing unbelievers

According to a just-published survey, "a massive defection from organized religion is taking place among the nation's affluent and better-educated young adults." To the extent, that is, that the readers of Psychology Today, which conducted the study, represent those categories.

But while two-thirds of the 2,000 people responding to the magazine's survey say they never attend church any more, three-fourths of them have faith "in some concept of the supernatural."

Interestingly, the survey found that more people believe in extrasensory perception (telepathy, clairvoyance, precognition and psychokinesis) than believe in God. Close to half are sure ESP exists and an additional 44 per cent think it probably exists.

Only one per cent are positive there is nothing to ESP, compared to 13 per cent that call themselves atheists or agnostics.

Whether this apparent shifting of beliefs—or disbeliefs—constitutes an improvement is another question.

Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions—fast. It costs you nothing. Call Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. or write Heartline, 8514 North Main St., Dayton, Ohio, 45415. Remember, Heartline pays for all calls on its toll-free number . . . 800-543-2393.

Heartline: My husband worked under Social Security for years and always paid the maximum into Social Security. When he passed away, I only received $255 lump sum death benefit. I know that I should be entitled to more. How do I go about getting it? — Mrs. K.

Answer: We are sorry but $255 is the maximum lump sum death benefit payable and therefore what you received is correct.

Heartline: What type of annuity increase will a retired railroad employee get in the future? — E. W.

Answer: There are two types of annuity increases for retirees — one for each tier. You will receive an automatic increase in the tier 1 part of your annuity for the same amount and effective at the sametime as any Social Security benefit increase. Starting in June 1977, the tier 2 part of your annuity is also subject to a separate smaller cost-of-living increase. It is based on rises in the Consumer Price Index, but limited to a total of four increases.

Heartline: I recently became eligible for Medicare and am concerned about completion and mailing of claims so that I may receive prompt service enabling me to pay my doctor promptly. What suggestions can you give? — Mr. D.

Answer: Ask your doctor if he will accept assignment on your Medicare claims. If he agrees, his office will prepare and forward claims and the Medicare check will ber sent to him. You will then be billed for any unpaid part of your annual $60 deductible and 20 per cent of the reasonable charge. If the doctor does not accept assignment, you must complete Part 1 of Claim Form SSA-1490 and attach itemized bills as they are received. Forward them promptly, and when you receive reimbursement checks you may pay the doctor his billed amount.

Heartline: My father recently purchased a hearing aid. Can you tell us approximately how much Medicare will pay on it? — Mr. T.

Answer: We are sorry, but there is no coverage for a hearing aid under the Medicare program.

We would like to inform our readers that Heartline will be closed all day Tuesday, December 24, and Wednesday, December 25.

ANN LANDERS

Is heart attack victim really trying subconsciously to take his own life?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When dolphins are kept in captivity and no longer want to live, they shut off their own oxygen and suffocate. Some of the experts in the behavioral sciences believe heart attacks may be a similar method of "ending it all," but of course, the motivation is much more subtle and subconscious.

My father is a railroad engineer. When one of the men he was working with hit a car with a woman and children in it, he really went to pieces. He kept talking about how he could see that woman and those kids, their heads sticking out of windows while their mother tried to start the car that was stalled on the tracks. That engineer could talk of nothing else for days — and then he had a fatal heart attack. Dad says he really grieved himself to death.

Please, Ann, print this letter. You ran one a few weeks ago about how people try to race the train, go through signals and lights, and ignore all warnings. Another letter might serve to remind them — as you said, "When you win, you win a few seconds. When you lose, you lose your life." — Daughter Of A Railroad Man

Dear Daughter: Here it is — and I hope it will serve as a reminder.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is the THIRD time I have written to you but this time I'm going to mail the letter.

I have a serious problem. It's me — or should I say my rotten, uncontrollable temper. I flare up over nothing and say things I regret the minute the words are out of my mouth.

I feel alone, and it's no wonder, the way I treat people. I seem to take out my meanness on those I love most. Then they stay away from me and I can't blame them. Nobody wants to be ripped to pieces.

I'm still in high school and afraid of what my life will be like when I go to college. I want so much to get along with people but I just can't control my ugly mouth. Please Ann, help me. I'll do whatever you say. — Big Mouth

Dear Friend: A problem recognized is a problem half solved. At least you know what is wrong and you are eager to do something about it.

There's a great deal of anger and hostility that needs to come out — but in ways that won't hurt you or others. I suggest counseling. When you are able to talk to a professional — someone you trust — on a continuing basis, you'll find that you won't blow up at those you love because you'll have rid yourself of the pent-up emotions. Get going — and good luck to you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I want to comment on the 14-year-old boy who had complaints about his position as the "youngest" child because I'm one of those lucky kids.

I am 17 and have two sisters ahead of me. I can see both the faults and the good points in my sisters. I watch for their characteristics in myself. I sit back and learn from their experiences.

I never worry about teachers who dread having "another one of the family." My sisters make a good impression wherever they go. I am proud to follow them.

I hope every "youngest child" will give a thought to how lucky he is to have an example to follow. — Last But Not Least

Dear Last: Refreshing to receive a letter so full of admiration for older sisters. Thanks for a cheerful little earful.

What's prudish? What's O.K.? If you aren't sure, you need some help. It's available in the booklet: "Necking and Petting — What Are the Limits?" Mail your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It wouldn't be wise to agree to something you have reservations about, particularly if you feel you're being pressured.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) This is not a good day to experiment with new tools, products, or methods where work is concerned, unless an expert shows you how.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A social situation that you'll be involved in has unique undercurrents. They will make it an experience you'll long remember.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) you won't get the attention and respect you feel you're entitled to from your family today, especially if you're temperamental.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) An opportunity that will give you a chance to talk to another on a matter of mutual importance will be coming up suddenly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) For the next few days, conditions will be choice for you in the material sense. Explore avenues that could add to your resources.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You seldom go unnoticed among your peers, but today others will observe something even more dynamic about your personality.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll learn of something quite by accident that you'll know is of value but you won't yet know exactly how to use it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You will do something today that will surprise others. It's a departure from your usual style. It will work out quite well.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Some good breaks will be coming your way, careerwise, so be on your toes. If you're not alert, they'll catch you napping.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A promising idea will start formulating in your mind later in the day, though you won't be able to do much about it till tomorrow.

Your Birthday Dec. 9

This year, you will become involved in a project with several friends. It will be conducted with a degree of secrecy. Stay with it because it will lead to profit.

Dressing properly is how to win game

Which do you put on first, your left sock or your right? That's what I asked. "Your right," reports a kindly client, "if you're an old-time professional baseball player. Superstition among just about all the ball players required them to do everything from the right side first. Right sock first, right shoe first, shave on the right side first, right leg into the pants first. Winning games depended on it."

Q. "If you were to figure the speed of Christopher Columbus' first transatlantic trip in miles per hour, how fast did he sail?"

A. Say 2.8 m.p.h.

AMONG THOSE betting citizens who play the lottery, it's a common superstition that the odd numbers are more likely to win than the even, remember that.....

DOCTOR

Pretty cagey, this old doctor. Built a pretty fair regional reputation for invariably predicting correctly the sex of an unborn infant. Upon his retirement he explained. Out loud, he declared it would be a boy, but in his notebook he wrote the word girl. If boy turned out to be right, he just smiled. But if the baby proved to be a girl, he whipped out his notebook to show the folks they must have heard him wrong. Sneaky. Very sneaky.

AM ASKED WHY most of the bourbon is distilled in Kentucky, Illinois and Indiana. That's limestone country. It filters the water in a dandy manner. What the bourbon boys say they need most is lots of pure branch seeped through limestone.

ICEBERG

It's a typical iceberg contans up to 150 million tons of water. That's enough to supply a city of eight million people each with 220 gallons a month. So a couple of Soviet scientists at the Institute of Geography in Moscow report they think icebergs should be hauled to cities to supply the population with clean fresh water. Hauled how? Shrug. They're working on it.

SLEEP RESEARCHERS contend that college men and drunks are the two types of citizens who tend to remain motionless longest when snoozing. They say it takes grownups an average of 15 minutes to doze off while kindergarten children require 38 minutes.

AT WIT'S END

Fencing with the inflationary spiral

By ERMA BOMBECK

It's been several months since President Ford prescribed that Americans "bite the bullet" in an effort to stop inflation."

Naturally, we've tried to instill in our children the sense of urgency regarding the nation's economy, but we get the same light-hearted, devil-may-care flippancy, "Nonsense. There's still the wrought iron fence."

Let me explain about the wrought iron fence. It is sixty feet long, five feet high, encompasses our back yard, and is held together by rust.

Several years ago when one of the boys was desperate for money for a new tennis racket we said to him, "Paint the wrought iron fence."

He looked at us like we had just suggested he eject himself over the Snake River on a tricycle.

"Do you know how long that would take?"

"Making allowances for phone calls, changing your radio dial, entertaining visitors, and cleaning up after you, conservatively speaking, about eight years," I said.

"I'll work until I've painted enough for a new racket," he said.

During the years to follow, the wrought iron fence has become a symbol for their entire economy. They have grown up with that fence. When they were younger and needed money to replace a science textbook they had lost, they headed for the fence. If they wanted a new record album, concert tickets, money for a movie, they slapped a few more drops of paint on the fence.

In more recent years the fence has grown in stature. It is not unusual to see one of them out there for as long as a day and a half working for a stereo component. One night I saw one of them working by moonlight for money for his insurance premium for his car.

The wrought iron fence is a monument to the capitalistic system and serves as a constant reminder that he who paints, prospers . . . and he who dawdles stays home Saturday night.

Yesterday, one of my sons came into the kitchen, his face ashen as he clutched a coffee can full of black paint and a brush. "The fence!" he shouted, "IT'S FINISHED! SOMEONE FINISHED THE FENCE!"

We all sat there numbly for a moment while the impact of his words penetrated. "What'll we do now?" he asked sullenly.

"Bite the bullet," I said.

My other son looked up. "Couldn't we paint it first?"

From wild horses, coyotes

Western livestock said threatened

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Federal regulations which protect wild horses and restrict the use of coyote poisons are threatening the Western livestock industry, says a vice president of the National Woolgrowers Association.

DeLloyd Satterthwaite, a Nevada sheepman, told the joint annual convention of Utah Cattlemen and Woolgrowers Thursday the wild horse and burro population had grown so drastically that the animals are competing with livestock for forage on his state's rangelands.

He complained that in a time when the livestock industry is already in economic trouble, the Bureau of Land Management is cutting some ranchers' forage rights by 15 per cent "to provide for mustangs."

"I wish I could bring members of Congress out here and let them see just how many wild horses there are," Satterthwaite said. "We've got to fight to keep public lands open to grazing."

The sheepman said coyotes are also experiencing a population explosion.

"We can't keep up with the ones we have now let alone the new crop each spring," he said.

Satterthwaite said both sheepmen and cattlemen have got to "strive for a relaxation of the ban on 1080 and other predator toxicants."

He said current regulations are so strict "you have to lose half your lambs before you can qualify to use an M-44 coyote getter."

"Toxicants are the cheapest, most effective way to control predators," he added. "They are a valuable tool."

Earlier, Utah Gov. Calvin L. Rampton and an official of the American National Cattlemen's Association told the Utah stockmen to avoid the sensational killing of calves because they are too costly to keep.

Rampton condemned the "dramatic" slaughters by some farm organizations, saying they "have not won any public sympathy."

"If you must destroy cattle because it is too costly to keep them, please do it quietly, and not in front of television cameras," said the Democratic governor.

George Spencer, executive vice president of the American National Cattlemen's Association, said, "If you're looking for headlines, this (slaughter) will get them. But it will provide no solution."

Spencer said too many people viewed killing calves as an "immoral destruction of food" at a time when people are going hungry both in the United States and abroad.

'New constituency'

College doors open for older Americans

NEW YORK (UPI) — College doors are swinging wide open for older Americans, often for free or at vastly reduced tuition.

State colleges and universities are putting out the biggest welcome mat for the mature students. In many cases a student must be 50, 55 or older to take advantage of the bargain.

The students are called "the new constituency." In addition to oldsters they include working adults, housewives, college dropouts, and the disabled.

The modus operandi for the special students —as well as courses designed for them from school to school.

The American Association of State Colleges and Universities, in a report on the new direction in higher education, says that most of its members cater to the unusual students. Entrance requirements are modified.

There are 313 state-assisted colleges and universities in the United States, Guam and the Virgin Islands. The institutions range from 1,200 students to 30,000.

Their turf includes isolated rural areas and the heart of major metropolitan areas. Their educational programs span a spectrum of student interest, from restaurant management to philosophy, dental and medical studies.

Some examples of programs under the "new constituency" movement:

—California State College at Sonoma gives persons 55 and over help in writing "the story of my life." Other special courses for older students help with problems of growing older. Included are courses in financial planning for the retired or about-to-retire. Also, introduction to creative activities for senior citizens. And psychosocial aspects of aging and health maintenance in the later years.

—At Metropolitan State College in Denver, Colo., oldsters may take courses in off-campus centers close to their homes. The school puts on the road a group called "musicganarians" —music students performing for senior citizens.

The school also runs a center for human effectiveness-friendly visitor. From this place students are sent forth to visit senior citizens weekly and to assist them in meeting day-today needs.

—The special courses at Columbus College in Columbus, Ga., includes one on budgeting the family income. This is to help families on fixed incomes —social security, family and children's service checks, unemployment benefits.

—The College of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey, Newark, provides dental care and denture work for elderly patients in city-operated health care programs and health care services for the Newark Elderly Day Care Center.

—At Valley City State College, Valley City, N.D., adult education courses for those over 60 are botanical workshop and shop. The botanical workshop offers household botany information and use of the campus greenhouse. The college also serves as a meal-preparation site for a Title VII (Older Americans Act).

—Special students at the University of Akron, Ohio, include women freed from child-raising chores. The "plan for the second half of your life" program provides guidance on how to use their talents and energies. They are helped through exercises of introspection to find increased insight into their potential.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

One theory about Mills' behavior

By DICK WEST

WASHANGTON (UPI) — All sorts of speculation and theories have been put forth to explain Rep. Wilbur Mills' recent behavior. Here's mine:

Anyone who stays in the newspaper business as long as two weeks learns one lesson that sticks with him forever. It is:

Whenever something happens involving show biz people, always look around to see if there is a press agent lurking behind it.

Right from the beginning I had my suspicious about the Tidal Basin incident involving stripper Fanne Foxe and Mills.

If ever an event possessed all the earmarks of a publicity stunt, this one did.

That impression was heightened when Miss Foxe turned up in Boston with a new billing as the "Tidal Basin Bombshell" and a salary five times bigger than her act had previously commanded.

There was, however, a major hurdle that kept me from jumping to conclusions.

Let's assume, for hypothetical purposes, that Miss Foxe's career as the "Argentine Firecracker" has fizzled. True to show biz tradition, she hires a press agent —call him Bernie Flackhorn —to hype things up a bit.

"I've got it, baby!" Bernie burbles. "You're in a limousine late at night with some government big shot, say the chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

"You speed through downtown Washington with the lights off to attract the cops.

"They pull you over by the Jefferson Memorial. The big shot gets out, face all bloody, apparently soused. Meanwhile, you leap from the car and jump in the Tidal Basin.

"Believe me, baby cakes, when that stuff hits the papers, your career as an ecdysiast is going to take a quantum jump."

Miss Foxe bats her eyes in admiration. "Bernie," she sighs, "you're a genius."

There was, as I was saying, one thing wrong with this picture. How could they have gotten such an august personage as Mills to go along with it?

That question was answered, at least to my satisfaction in Boston last week end when Mills showed up on stage with Miss Foxe and announced he was going to make her a movie star.

Miss Foxe was "about the 14th or 15th girl I've launched, and they've all been successful," he told reporters.

Frankly, I never dreamed that Mills was a closet impresario. Now that the secret is out, it explains everything.

And now we know what killed vaudeville.

Behavior

Barmaids—why they are disenchanted

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Cocktail waitresses put up with pinches, pats, belligerent drunks and hostile wives every night as they run themselves ragged juggling drinks and squeezing between tables. But if they quit one bar it's usually just to go to another.

Why do they endure it?

Pat Stoll worked her way through college in various bars, and later for her master's thesis in sociology went back and interviewed dozens of women. She wanted to know what kind of people they are, how the job affects them and why they stay on.

The answer was money.

Miss Stoll, 38, a vivacious, soft-spoken woman who admits she is an alcoholic, although she said it started before her short career in bars, now counsels other alcoholics professionally at the Western Missouri Mental Health Center. But she has retained her interest in her former colleagues.

Cocktail waitresses, she found, are often from lower middle class backgrounds and, though many are bright, have little education but families to support. They can make more money in a bar than many college professors, newspaper reporters, school teachers or civil service workers.

"It's a really good way to take care of your family," Miss Stoll said in an interview. "But it can be a trap. It's hard to drop back to a lower income."

A whole catalogue of occupational hazards clings to a cocktail waitress.

As one woman described it to Miss Stoll: "Drinking for some, access to promiscuity, too many opportunities to get into trouble. You're a bad credit risk, a lousy parent—it has a stigma to it."

"It's nerve-wracking," said another. "It causes you to drink. No security, lack of respect from some people who don't really understand."

The poor image of cocktail waitresses is slowly changing, Miss Stoll said, but there are still traumatic scenes, and later a seething resentment, for many young women.

The women she interviewed had comments such as these about their dislikes: "The drunks, the phony people, the fact that people think a cocktail waitress is less than human . . ." "People who get drunk and obnoxious, working nights, getting propositioned all the time gets on my nerves..." "The only good part is the money..."

The kind of behavior a cocktail waitress observes can combine with resentment about her low status to work big changes in her attitudes toward people.

"You can get very hardened," Miss Stoll said. "The older ones, especially, are very worldly and wise but totally cynical."

Her thesis research bore out the idea that a woman's alienation and cynicism increase with age and experience in the occupation. But there are some important variables. Miss Stoll found that often the more attractive, intelligent and sensitive a woman was, the more likely she was to become alienated.

"The less attractive women lacked as high a degree of hostility," she wrote. "If a woman enters the occupation at a later age the tendency to become alienated seems to lessen.

"The best explanation is that older women have learned to deal more effectively with the public and they probably receive fewer sexual advances and less attention from male customers because of their age."

Every woman builds up her own defenses. Some are the classic stereotype of the cynical barmaid—a brassy, gum-snapping woman quick with barbed comments. Others numb themselves, tuning out the leers and turning off their own emotions.

One woman said, "I have a couple of little shades to pull down. Most of the time my mind is a million miles away."

"You must learn to remove [illegible] and learn the art of self-preservation," another said.

Miss Stoll found that nearly half of the 40 women she interviewed were extremely alienated by their work. Nearly all the women seemed anxious to quit if the opportunity for another kind of work came along, but most of their plans were hazy.

She concluded that cocktail waitresses fit the classic definition of alienation.

"She has no control over the type of customer she will have or the amount of money she will make," Miss Stoll wrote. "There is little meaning in her work. She finds few rewards from her occupation, except as a way to make a living.

"The cocktail waitress feels social isolation and has no sense of belonging...She resents the stigma and degradation of the occupation."

Duck stamp color prints hot art item

By FREDERICK M. WINSHIP
UPI Senior Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — One of the most collectible items on the art market is the enlarged color print of the annual federal duck hunting stamp, and the rarity of the 1975-76 print will be the decision of one man.

He is Alfred F. King III, who hunts ducks along the Eastern seaboard when he is not running Sportsman's Edge, Ltd., the only art gallery in the United States devoted solely to contemporary wildlife originals and sporting prints. King gave up a seat on the New York Stock Exchange after he opened his gallery three years ago and has no regrets.

"I kept the seat until last July just in case I wanted to go back but I didn't want to go— not the way the market is now," the youthful dealer said as he sorted prints in his East Side Manhattan showrooms. "The art market is good. My sales are up and I'm doing well."

King is the exclusive representative of artist James P. Fisher of Oxford, Pa., who won the 40th annual contest for the $5 migratory wildfowl stamp design in November. The contest is considered the superbowl of art competitions, even though it carries no monetary prize, because the champion stands to make a profit of about $100,000 from the sale of limited edition signed and numbered prints.

"We frame the prints along with an actual duck stamp and sell to collectors for about $100 each," King said. "The print of the 1971 duck stamp already is worth $1,500 on the market. It would cost about $51,000 to buy the whole series of prints issued since the government began in 1934 to bring out a different duck stamp each year. It's the only federal revenue stamp that changes annually."

King will decide just how many copies of Fisher's picture of a canvas back duck decoy with three live ducks flying in the background will be printed. There must be more than enough to satisfy all collectors of duck prints, estimated at more than 600, but not so many that the rarity of the print would be diminished. Some collectors consider any edition of more than 600 prints as not limited.

Fisher, 62, did not develop his talents as "the decoy painter" until he retired from business a few years ago. It was King who urged him to enter the stamp competiton even though a picture of a decoy had never before been selected. There were 268 entries and Fisher's design was the choice of all but one of five judges. The stamp produces more than $10 million in revenue annually.

Sportsman's Edge displays a wide range of wildlife and sporting art including portrayals of African big game, race horses, deep sea fish, hunting dogs, wildfowl in habitat, sailing ships and scenes of fishing and hunting. Sculpture in bronze and wood depict wildlife and thoroughbreds. A new category is views of famous golf course by specialist Arthur Weaver.

"They're appealing to golfers and I've seen a whole wall of them in some country club clubhouses," King said. "It's not the greatest art in the world but it has its public. I may get into skiing and tennis art next."

Prints run from about $50 each unframed. Paintings range from $675 for atmospheric field and stream watercolors by Chet Reneson to $20,000 for a magnificent oil of a charging elephant by David Shepherd and $30,000 for one of Montague Dawson's masterpiece clipper ship paintings. Bronze sculptures begin at $700 and run into the thousands.

King has 800 buying customers including actor Henry Fonda, a clutch of DuPonts, Roosevelts, and Mellons, and others of an ilk who can pay $4,000 for a portrait of their favorite dog. The catalogue of Sportsman's Edge's inventory is a collector's item in itself and no giveaway. It is a lavishly illustrated book of high fidelity color reproductions that sells for $4.75.

"I believe in being first class all the way," King said. "I won't let a print go through with even the most minor imperfections. I use museum standards of framing. And I go to the best printers, American printers. European printers aren't setting the standards any more, even though their reputation lingers on."

"We'd be out of business if we improved every road in the county," he declared.

It would cost Ogg $2,000 to pave the road with asphalt, Grove said, the county would put in curbs and gutters, and thereafter maintain it.

Brandon thought Grove's estimate for improving the road to be way under the actual cost. "It would be beaucoup money," he said, "and right now the county has no plans to help Ogg."

Ogg's chances of getting any help from his neighboring property owners are not good, either. The family occupying the only other house on Mariposa does not have funds to improve the road, he noted, and other vacant lots are owned by Pomona Valley Water Co. "which likewise is not interested in improvements."

"I guess we'll just have to slosh through another winter."

Border Patrol—a frustrating headache

SAN YSIDRO, Calif. (UPI) — Louis Werne, second in command at the busiest immigration point on the U.S.-Mexican border, stared out an office window at a chain link fence separating the two nations.

About 100 yards up a hillside were three rectangular holes neatly cut by wire clippers.

"Every once in a while I swing around from my desk I see a couple of people walking through those holes," Werne said.

"Sometimes I pick up a phone and alert the Border Patrol. Other times I figure, oh, what the hell. We mend the fence and the next morning the holes are there again."

It's not that Werne is unconcerned. Just the contrary

It underlines the physical inability of American border officers to cope with a flood of illegal aliens from Mexico which is conservatively estimated to number more than 1,000 a day in this one sector alone.

Last year 285,977 were returned to Mexico from California. The number who got through was about the same as those turned back.

In the 12 months ending last June 30, there were 34.8 million legal crossings through the San Ysidro checkpoint.

On one typical Sunday last August, 112,260 persons came through. The next day there were 89,492 crossings. Each of them had to be checked by Werne's force of six supervisors, 24 journeymen immigration officers and four trainees spread over three eight-hour shifts a day, seven days a week.

So thinly spread is the immigration force at San Ysidro that for the past year its officers have not manned the initial "contact" points where automobiles pull up to one of the 18 lanes of the entry station.

Instead, the job of spotting suspected illegal entrants has been turned over to inspectors of the U.S. Customs Agency, who have taken only a brief course in fundamental immigration procedures.

On top of the automobile check is the task of examining pedestrians.

On an average weekday about 15,000 come across the border at San Ysidro on foot. The number increases to around 17,000 a day on weekends. The vast majority are Mexican aliens.

Werne tries to keep an immigration officer on duty as much of the time as possible at the pedestrian checkpoint but there, too, customs officers are the primary checkers.

"We're so damned undermanned we're hurting," Werne said.

Swamped as it is, San Ysidro is at least a funnel for organized examination of people and documents.

There remains the rest of the 70-mile stretch of California-Mexico border from the Pacific inland to where the El Centro office takes jurisdiction and that stretch leaks illegal aliens like a sieve.

This is the desolate back country where "people" smugglers bring in truckloads of Mexicans who have paid $200 or more to get deposited inside the United States, and where more rugged individuals cross on foot and try to disappear in the mountains.

Richard Batchelor, assistant director of the agency's police arm in the sector and a 34-year veteran with the Border Patrol, is at once proud of the accomplishments of his men and candid about how far short their efforts fall.

In the 12 months ending June 30, the Border Patrol apprehended and expelled 196,981 aliens in this sector. Batchelor pointed out that his sector comprises only 3 per cent of the 2,000-mile border from the Pacific Ocean to the Gulf of Mexico, but that last year it accounted for 33 per cent of the illegal alien catch.

In the next breath he acknowledgdes that the Border Patrol is at best 50 per cent effective, which means that another 200,000 aliens are slipping through each year in his area.

"On almost any Saturday night we can pick up as many as 400 to 500 men crossing along one 13-mile stretch from the beach inland in the Tijuana area," Batchelor said. "I'm sure we miss at least that many more simply because we don't have the personnel."

Along the 70-mile portion, the patrol has installed one of the most effective and sophisticated sensor alarm systems in the world, including seismic, metallic and infrared equipment.

So sensitive are the seismic instruments that they can pick up the footfall of a single man walking across the border. Through computer enhancement, it can be determined whether the intruder is a human or an animal grazing.

During the night, the monitoring picket line flashes in alarms constantly but the Border Patrol has nowhere near the manpower to check them all out.

Once apprehended, an alien has little to fear beyond being sent back into Mexico. The same man may keep trying until he makes it. Once he blends into the barrios of eastern Los Angeles, he becomes the problem of the "investigative" branch of the Immigration Department.

He falls then into the category which Attorney General William Saxbe last month singled out as constituting "a severe national crisis."

Saxbe said illegal aliens hold millions of jobs, drain the social services from schools to welfare, constitute a disproportionate percentage of criminals and make a mockery of the over-all system of immigration. He called for deportation of a million aliens next year.

Batchelor does not see deportation as the answer.

"You can send an illegal alien back to Pakistan and he stays deported," Batchelor said. "But when you have a 2,000-mile contiguous border and enough motivation there is no way you can eliminate illegal immigration until you deal with the motivation."

Batchelor said that while an increase in border officers would raise the effectiveness of the patrol tremendously, it would not solve the problem.

The heart of the matter, he said, is the lure of jobs open to illegal aliens, as low paid maids, as workers in garment and food processing plants and other industries or as agricultural workers.

Batchelor would like to see Congress act on a bill sponsored by Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., which would make it both a civil and criminal offense to employ illegal aliens.

Batchelor said similar legislation passed in California several years ago had a drastic effect.

The California law was declared unconstitutional on grounds that only the federal government can deal with immigration affairs, but in the brief time it was operative many employers voluntarily complied and discharged illegal alien employes.

"When the word gets back to Mexico that there are no jobs, there is a deterrent far more effective than a border watch," he said.

Batchelor pointed out that the bus fare from Mexico City to the border is about $25 or $30 and he added:

"A man can make that much in one day's work in the United States. And if he works three weeks and is caught and returned he is still better off than making virtually nothing in Guadalajara."

Batchelor is aware that his views and those of Saxbe may not sound "humanitarian."

"You know, the public is sympathetic to the individual but apathetic toward the problem. No one wants immigration controlled until it pinches them and now it is beginning to pinch."

Border Patrolman Bill Grier mends fence

One activist's solution

NORTHRIDGE, Calif. (UPI) — A leader of California's Mexican-American community says the Ford administration's effort to expel illegal Mexican immigrants is really an attempt to find scapegoats for the nation's ailing economy.

One of their most articulate spokesmen is Dr. Roy Acuna, a professor and head of the Chicano Studies Department at California State University at Northridge, Calif. Since Acuna came to Northridge in 1969, the college enrollment of Mexican-Americans has risen from about 30 to more than 2,000.

Acuna says the call for deporting Mexican aliens and beefing up the Border Patrol is an obvious move by the Ford administration to find a scapegoat for the slump among the most defenseless section of the American populace.

"Read your history," Acuna says. "Back in 1931 the Hoover administration was looking for a scapegoat for the Depression. What did they do? They appropriated funds for just such a project and deported more than 400,000 Mexicans."

Acuna says the aliens are a productive and basic part of the economy and that they are working at jobs, both in industry and agriculture, that other segments of the population, including blacks, will not take.

Acuna and other militants take the position that Mexicans are not aliens in any case and should be treated entirely differently than immigrants from other nations.

"The United States took from Mexico 50 per cent of its territory and 75 per cent of its arable land and national resources," he says. "If Mexico had the Texas oil fields today it would have financial reserves as great as Saudi Arabia."

What would Acuna do about the illegal alien problem?

"I would give an amnesty to all the Mexicans in this country. Let them come in here freely and raise the minimum wage to $3 and let the free market determine who gets jobs," he said.

Alan Shepard—from astronaut to millionaire tycoon

HOUSTON (UPI) — Alan B. Shepard Jr., took a 15-minute rocket ride to American space history in 1961 and then overcame a physical ailment that threatened his chance to walk on the moon 10 years later.

Today, at 51, the former astronaut and naval officer is meeting a new challenge—that of being a private citizen.

Shepard is immersed in a business career far removed from the glamor of the astronaut corps.

"I can't change that identity and I don't want to because I'm proud of what I've done," the former test pilot said. "It will get easier as the years go by to lead a normal life. I hope."

He's as intense in his new job of running a company that builds shopping centers as he was May 5, 1961, when he climbed aboard Freedom 7 for the first of America's 30 journeys into space.

He still has an aloofness developed as insulation from too much fame, and later the dismay of being grounded from spaceflight by inner ear trouble.

Shepard was reared in the Christian Science religion which does not believe in medical surgery. But when the ailment, called Meniere's syndrome, persisted, he was faced with a choice of surgery or remaining grounded.

Using the alias "Victor Poulis", Shepard secretly entered a hospital in 1968 to have a tiny plastic tube implanted that would drain off the fluid causing his problems.

"Obviously, there was a lot of motivation on my part," he said. "Having been allowed the privilege of making one flight, particularly a short one, it kind of whetted my appetite for more."

The decision wasn't that simple because of his religious background, he admitted.

"Well, if you're familiar with the religion you probably know it requires a great deal of inner strength and belief. People are able to express that in varying degrees. For some it's easier than others to make a decision for surgery."

The return to flight status meant the chance to go to the moon. Shepard, Edgar D. Mitchell and Stuart A. Roosa made man's sixth trip to the moon and the third landing on the surface.

At the time of Apollo 14, in 1971, Shepard at age 47 was the oldest American to fly in space. He also may have been the only millionaire to do so.

Despite constant disclaimers by Shepard, many believe he was worth well over six figures.

A native of East Derry, N.H., where his mother still lives, Shepard used the extra time he had while grounded for six years to become an active businessman and investor.

Although being first American in space obviously helped him find business partners, he never used his name for endorsements of products nor anything but charity functions.

"I think it's incorrect for me to use that (his name) in any manner, in any endorsement of anything except myself," he said. "Sure I do charity things as time permits but only those I believe in.

"But as far as the endorsement thing is concerned, I think there is a clearcut issue there."

Shepard, a good golfer who won't reveal his handicap other than to say it's below 15, delighted worldwide audiences at the end of his second lunar surface walk on Apollo 14 by hitting two golfballs in the one-sixth gravity of the moon.

He avoided any commercialism by never revealing what brand of golf balls he used.

"I've refused to tell anybody, even my wife, the name of the golf balls," he said. "The golf club is now in the U.S. Geological Survey museum."

Shepard retired Aug. 1 from NASA and as an admiral in the Navy.

Shepard's wife, Louise, still drives to the Johnson Space Center area regularly because she and several other astronauts' wives run a small flower shop.

"I certainly miss the flying, there's no question about that," Shepard said. "It's been my life for so long. I hope I continue to miss it forever because it's a very pleasant part of my life to recollect. There's been a change, but I'm living with it gracefully."

Recalling his two flights in space, the former chief of the astronaut corps said:

"Certainly from the standpoint of sheer excitement, the first one would have to win that contest. There were so many unknowns in the first one, obviously there was much more fun. I recomend it for anybody who likes to fly."

adrenalin flowing.

"From the standpoint of satisfaction of getting the job done, being able to really assess what it was like to be in space, weightless, what it was like to be on the surface of the moon, certainly the latter one had to be the more satisfying of the two.

"They were both a lot of

Petroleum strongman

Indonesian oil's champion

JAKARTA (UPI) — One of the most powerful men in Indonesia and a man considered by many as a blueprint for future Southeast Asian oil nationalism is a 60-year old medical doctor.

Ibnu Sutowo, or "General Ib" as he is known to the foreign oilmen who have poured into Indonesia in the past eight years, is head of the nation's state oil company, Pertamina.

As he turned 60 this September, Ibnu controlled not only the oil company but the largest private airline in Asia, a shipping line, his own tankers, hotels, fleets of Mercedes and Datsun cars and trucks, rice and cattle estates, villas and the best part of an island industrial estate.

In addition, Pertamina money was being funneled into state roads, geothermal exploration, a steel mill, public buildings, stadiums, a massive modern hospital for foreign oilmen and their families, housing estates and office blocks.

And as neighboring Asian countries react to the oil crisis with their own frantic searches for oil, they look to Ibnu as a model of how to attract foreign capital without falling under foreign economic domination.

It was he who challenged the oil world in the mid-60s by stating flatly, "the oil is ours."

Foreign companies were allowed in only to take a share of the oil profits, not the oil itself, and later only if they submitted to Pertamina management.

Then came the oil crisis and Ibnu and Pertamina grew richer to the point where today the state oil company provides 75 per cent of the nation's foreign exchange earnings.

That a single company, albeit a state company, can become so wealthy and powerful in a nation of 130 million persons raises almost as many questions as it does dollars.

When one of Indonesia's airlines cannot afford to buy a new jet, it rents one from Pertamina's air subsidiary, Pelita, with more than 100 helicopters and planes including a 707.

When a state project runs short of funds, Pertamina can complete it.

That the bulk of Pertamina's money is ploughed back into the country and its development in widening fields has earned Ibnu the name of nationalist, and forestalled much of the sort of criticism that usually comes the way of the rich and powerful.

Students do, however, take periodic swipes at corruption within Pertamina, questioning why so much of the money is plowed back into Pertamina itself, and Ibnu's apparently secure position as president director.

They point at Pertamina money behind numerous public figures and the lack of public accounting.

But pride in and dependence on what Indonesia has been able to achieve as a result of the oil boom has for the most part won out.

Ibnu himself is a small, rather gaunt man whose appearance, activities and prowess on the golf course belie his age.

He appears two or three times a month at the opening of new projects in all corners of the country, speaking always of Indonesia's need to develop and rely on herself.

His speeches, almost like the echo of an inner fear, continually warn that oil is an exhaustible commodity, and urge the development of other power sources—atomic, geothermal and hydroelectric.

The reaction of foreign oil companies to Ibnu has changed from the overt hostility of the 1960s to one that could be described as grudging admiration.

"He knows what we want and we know what he wants. Dealing with him is dealing with a hard man, but essentially we want to get the same things done and he's the only man in Indonesia who can make it possible, so they get done—but if General Ib doesn't agree, forget it," one American oil company executive said.

A medical doctor by training, Ibnu was chosen after the war to salvage what he could of the country's fledgling oil industry. He begged, borrowed, bullied and scraped, studied oilmen and their ways the world over and then, with the consolidation of the country's oil companies, became over-all president with awesome decision-making powers on policy and expenditure.

Ibnu's nationalism boosts his image at home and is being copied in other fields such as timber and mining and in other countries such as Malaysia and Burma.

By his edict, foreign companies must train Indonesians on the job at their own expense, limit foreign personnel to a bare minimum and use Pertamina-run or chosen services and sub-contractors. Pertamina also can tell a company to change a man on the job, or locate branch offices and service companies on Indonesian soil.

That one man can control so much so conspicuously without falling victim to local political and financial jealousies is attributed largely to Ibnu's shrewdness and his army of talent—the company has more than 50,000 employees.

His personal life presents no target. A soft-spoken Muslim who has made the journey to Mecca, he is married with five children. He dresses quietly, usually in dark suits or safari uniforms.

While there are those that claim he uses large amounts of money to buy off potential critics and business rivals, there are others who argue that Sutowo stretches his budget to its limits and beyond to get things done that President Suharto and the country need.

That argument has been going on for two years and more.

AMA sees malpractice suit crisis

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The American Medical Association will ask Congress to require that persons who receive medical benefits under federal programs agree to arbitrate disputes over their care instead of filing malpractice suits.

The request stems from what the AMA considers a crisis in medical malpractice insurance.

Dr. Malcolm C. Todd, Long Beach, Calif., said in an interview at the close of the AMA's 28th Clinical Convention Wednesday that he plans to propose the arbitration requirement to Caspar Weinberger, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

"I think he will react favorably," Todd said. "I plan to urge legislation in Congress whereby all federal programs— Medicare, Medicaid, national health insurance, if passed— would require recipients of this care to agree to arbitration if there is a dispute.

Todd said action on the malpractice insurance issue probably had the most significance for the public of any taken by the AMA House of Delegates during the five-day convention.

The delegates urged state medical associations to seek state legislation to remedy the problem, which the AMA said is leading to higher doctor bills to consumers.

The delegates acted on the basis of a report from the AMA Board of Trustees that the medical profession "is faced with the prospect in the near future of being unable to obtain" malpractice insurance. One delegate said some doctors would be unable to obtain such insurance after Jan. 1 and another said some already are unable to obtain it.

Awards of up to $4 million were cited as one reason prices for malpractice insurance are rising, when it is available. This, the AMA said, is "reflected in higher physician fees, thereby increasing the overall cost of health care."

The AMA recommends state legislation to remove pain and suffering and punitive damages as bases on which patients may collect in malpractice suits, excluding costs already paid by other insurance from court awards, placing a ceiling on damages and establishing systems for handling small claims.

Todd said state legislation was necessary to solve the immediate problem but education and claim prevention, as well as the proposed federal legislation, are long term solutions.

He said the delegates' action in approving a Board of Trustees report on national health insurance "gives me an opportunity to try to build a program that can be attractive to other health providers and insurers." The report calls for federal health insurance for uninsurable persons and the temporarily unemployed and to cover catastrophic health costs.

Although the AMA remains adamantly opposed to payment or administration of a plan through the Social Security system, Todd said the new report was a compromise in some areas. "We will have a bill introduced" in the next session of Congress, he said.

Other AMA actions which Todd said had significance for the public were support for a continued war on quackery; a call for strict enforcement of medicare rules limiting payments to chiropractors; and a consensus to limit the practice of acupuncture.

Modern living

At 64 years, she's a feminist Sam Spade

By JAMES O. CLIFFORD

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — At 64 years old, Florence Sperbeck is just starting to catch her stride in the rough and tumble world of the private eye.

"Right now I work for other private investigators but I'll be opening up my own firm very soon," said Mrs. Sperbeck, one of 15 women licensed as private detectives in California.

Mrs. Sperbeck decided to become a detective after a long career as a policewoman and investigator for the Contra Costa County sheriff's office.

Since then she has become the first woman ever elected to the board of directors of the California Association of Licensed Investigators. She also has established a reputation as a master of disguise, with a closet full of wigs and change-of-personality costumes she uses in her work.

Two of her favorite covers are posing as a gregarious, overdressed matron or a shawl-wearing little old lady.

"The little old lady is very effective in my work in supermarkets and department stores," she said. "It's surprising what a little old lady can get away with. People don't pay any attention to her."

Mrs. Sperbeck, a grandmother three times over, says much of her work concerns shoplifting, both by customers and employes.

"Most of the stuff that is lifted is taken by workers," she said.

She also tests security at the stores and teaches classes in how to counteract shoplifting.

"I stole half of one store and no one stopped me," she recalled. "I repeated this in several branches of the same company."

Mrs. Sperbeck, who received her license six years ago, also uses a variety of ruses to gather information on cases.

"A lot of people won't talk to you about a neighbor, say, if they know you are an investigator.

"You can get a lot of information out of people by telling them you are a survey taker. The recent political campaign made it easy for me. I just told people I was gathering information for voter statistics."

The antishoplifting campaigns are far less challenging than some of her other cases. She currently is on the track of a beautiful woman a man met just once in a restaurant, a case of love at first sight.

"This guy knew only her first name," she said. "That's all I have to go on except that she was divorced.

"I narrowed it down by flipping through court papers in divorce cases. It was a common first name but surprisingly there weren't that many women with that name who were getting divorced."

Despite the fact that California now has a no-fault divorce law, Mrs. Sperbeck thinks there is still plenty of private eye work in the divorce field.

"We don't kick open bedroom doors any more and take pictures but we do a lot of finding out about hidden assets," she said.

Under current divorce laws, the husband and wife split their property 50-50. Sometimes attempts are made to conceal items, and other skullduggery.

"I had one case where a store was trying to get a woman to pay for a table she had never seen," the lady detective said. "I finally traced it to the husband's girlfriend."

Mrs. Sperbeck said that being a woman helps in her work.

"I believe, with many others, that a woman is more disarming. People open the door and invite me in who would never do that for a man."

And she doesn't think her age has been a handicap.

"I even know of one woman investigator who is older than I am," she said. "She won't admit it but she is."

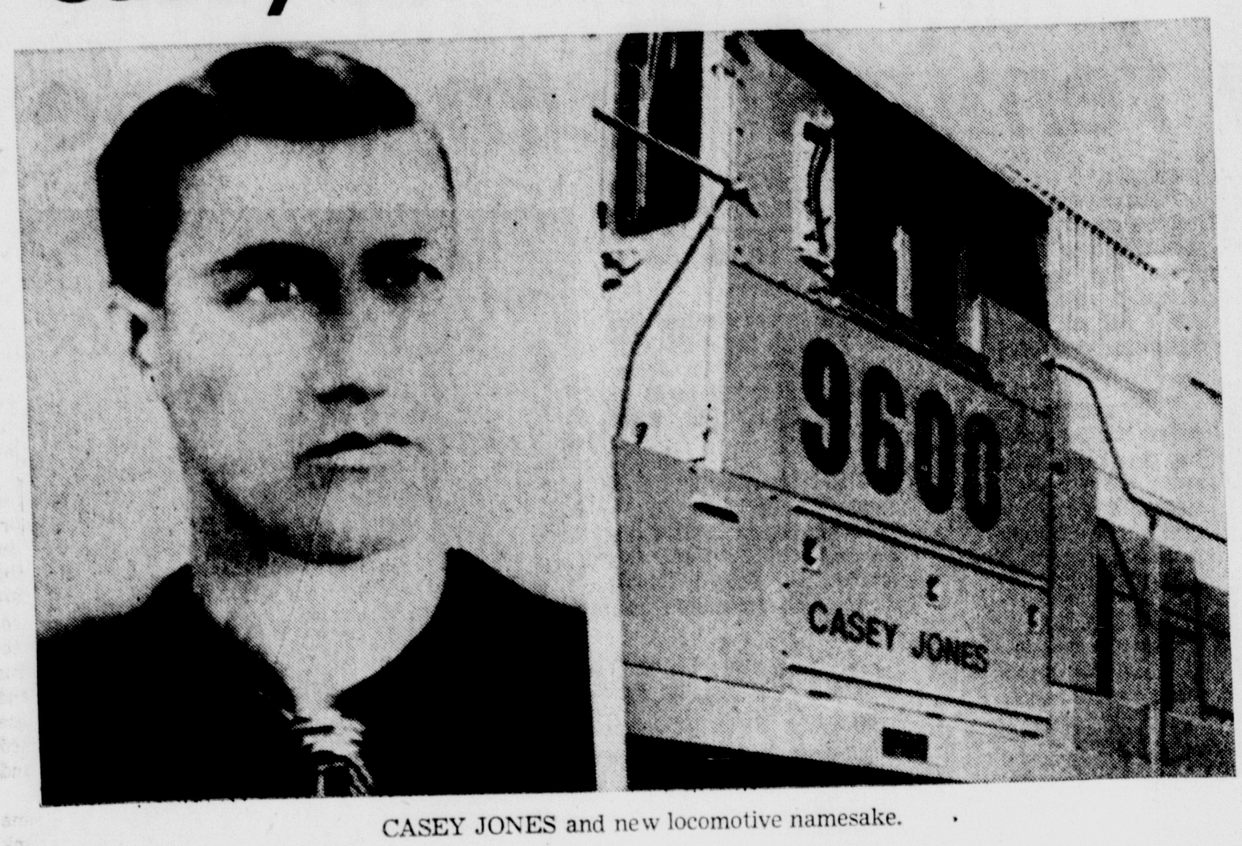
Casey Jones back on rails



CASEY JONES and new locomotive namesake.

This time, Casey Jones is the name given to engine 9600, one of 40 new diesels the Illinois Central Gulf Railroad has introduced to carry freight along the Mississippi Valley.

New No. 9600, a big orange and white diesel, departed Chicago for New Orleans last Friday on its first run as part of a big dispatch freight train.

All 40 of the new engines are named for men prominent in the history of the railroads as part of the American bicentennial observance. They include Abraham Lincoln and his political foe, Stephen A. Douglas.

They also include Sim Webb, the fireman who jumped to safety in the crash that killed Casey Jones April 30, 1900, near Vaughan, Miss.

The ballad of Casey Jones lives in countless versions, most of them beginning with the words:

"Come, all you rounders,
I want you to hear;
The story told
Of a brave engineer;
Casey Jones was the rounder's name;
On a big ten-wheeler he rode to fame ..."

But the railroad insists he was a teetotaler, not a rounder (slang in those days for a man who liked a drink).

What's more, it maintains, suggestions that Casey had several affairs on the road were canards.

Casey's wife, Jane Brady Jones of Jackson, Tenn., "hated the song," said ICG spokesman John O'Brien.

Casey's real name was John Luther Jones. Biographer Fred J. Lee said he was born in southwestern Missouri March 14, 1864.

His family later moved to Cayce, Ky., pronounced kaycee, and the town that provided him with his nickname when railroaders wanted to designate him from the other Joneses.

At 15, Casey started with the Mobile and Ohio Railroad. He joined the Illinois Central in 1888 as a fireman.

He was an engineer at 26 and became celebrated as the lean fellow so tall he was forced to stick his head outside the cab a foot or so.

For years, Casey rode Engine 638 between Jackson, Tenn., and Water Valley, Miss. His trade mark was a six-tone calliope whistle which sounded like a whippoorwill call.

Up and down the line, people would hear the whistle and say, "There goes Casey Jones."

On Casey's last run, he and fireman Webb were working a double shift and trying to make up 95 minutes on the southbound No. 1 Cannonball passenger train from Memphis to Canton, Miss., a 190-mile run.

The six-car train, made up of mail, baggage, coaches and sleepers, was nearly on time only 14 miles north of Canton when late-running freight trains began piling up at Vaughan.

Casey, at the throttle of No. 382, a McQueen 10-wheeler steam locomotive, was hitting 70 miles an hour in murky weather when he highballed past a frantic, lamp-waving trainman and a warning torpedo on the track.

Casey managed to slow the train, but it still demolished a caboose and car of hay and damaged two other freight cars which were on the mainline.

Casey died in the overturned engine, one hand on the throttle, the other on the airbrake control. He was credited with saving the lives of all the passengers and other crewmen. Webb lived 57 more years.

Wallace Saunders, a black engine-wiper for the Illinois Central, knew Casey and began the chant which later led to the ballad. The most popular version was published in 1903, with words by T. Lawrence Siebert and music by Eddie Newton.

Iran interested in Lockheed's huge transport

BURBANK, Calif. (UPI) — The Lockheed Aircraft Corp. said today it had discussed during the past months with the Iranian government possible sale of an undetermined number of C5 Galaxy transport planes to the Arab nation.

A Lockheed apokesman said the United States government has been a party to the talks.

The Galaxy, the world's largest airplane, has been out of production for two years and a start of production would require the approval of the U.S. Government.

The spokesman said production and tooling for the plane was still in place at Lockheed's plant in Georgia.

Roller rink revival: reverse old image

By NICK GREGORY

CHICAGO (UPI) — If Bert Anselmi cringes when a roller derby girl dumps an opponent over a guard rail, it's because his brand of roller skating is for family outings, scouting groups and Sunday School children.

Anselmi is the president of the Roller Skating Rink Operators Association of America, and he also operates his own rink, the Rolladium in Pontiac, Mich.

A former professional skater, he and his wife, Marilyn, have won trophies as a skate-dance team. Their children skate in national competition.

Anselmi also is a businessman. He is trying to capture his share of the recreational dollar, and a major effort in that direction has been the development of rinks in sound business areas.

Surveys now determine where rinks figure to prosper. The association also recognizes the need to reverse an old image that roller rinks are usually located in broken down warehouses or abandoned garages.

"Those eyesores are a thing of the past," Anselmi said. "We know they were a black eye and we're doing something about it."

New rinks are recommended in areas with populations of no less than 75,000 persons within a five mile radius of the site, Anselmi said.

"Our suggestions for a new rink call from plenty of lighting, climate control, instructors and crowd control personnel and design. We forbid the sale or consumption of alcoholic beverages and provide snack shops and vending machines, depending on the type of rink the operator is building.

"We recommend that new rinks go up on city or town outskirts on no less than two acres of land which includes parking. Minimum size is around 18,000 square feet and maximum depends on the operator, although a few go over 40,000," Anselmi said.

An investment range of from $200,000 to $1 million will handle a modern rink of the type Anselmi's group recommends. "That's enough to make the operators insist on keeping a clean operation...That's what's going to get back skaters."

BERT ANSELMI laces wife's skates.

Anselmi said there are 20 million skaters in the nation and 2,500 rinks. The return of skaters to new rinks has been gaining momentum, he said. In the last two years nearly 100 new rinks have been added to his organization.

"As far as recreation goes," Anselmi said, "roller skating is a lot better than jogging.

"There still are places where rinks are resisted, mostly in small towns where they had problems in the old days.

"A recent movie on roller derbies didn't help us, either."

Steps taken by operators to encourage more rink useage include competition in roller hockey and in figure, dance and speed skating on a national level with winners competing internationally.

The association boasts members in the United States, New Zealand, Australia, Japan, Brazil and Europe. "There is some specialization, too," Anselmi said. "The Italians go for speed; the South Americans like hockey and Americans prefer figure and dancing."

Clown's insight as related to church

CHURCH CLOWN—Korey Thompson

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "It's a kind of death when you put on white face," Korey Thompson said, "and when you put on make-up over the white face, you assume a new kind of life."

For the past two years, Miss Thompson, 27, an artist and former fulltime church social worker, has been donning greasepaint and carrying the style and insights of the clown into the life of the church.

The symbolism of the clown, of death and rebirth, goes beyond mere make-up.

"The clown, you know, is always someone who comes back," she said. "There is a kind of constant resurrection, and the clown never really gets hurt. You never worry about the clown going to pieces."

A graduate of Concordia College, Moorhead, Minn., Miss Thompson worked for more than five years as a community worker for Lutheran parishes in Pittsburgh and Washington.

She is one of a group of clowns in the Washington area, mostly in the new town of Columbia, Md. The group grew out of a "Faith and Fantasy" study led by the Rev. Floyd T. Shaffer, a Lutheran pastor at Columbia who also performs as a clown.

Together the group has appeared at a liturgical conference at Valparaiso University in Indiana and an American Lutheran Church convention in Detroit. Individually or in small groups, the clowns also have taken their message to parish liturgical workshops and worship services.

The grease pencil is one of their most important props. With it they bestow a red dot, "the mark of the clown," on people's cheeks or noses.

"It's a mark of both joy and of suffering," Miss Thompson said. "It's not something you apply now and again, it's something you try to integrate into your whole life.

"I guess if you're going to put it into words, it has something to do with love, with affirmation. It's a red dot, it's happy, it's kind of a kiss but it's not just that, either. Theologically, if you're going to use traditional language, it is a sign of grace."

The clown, she and her companions have discovered, is rich in religious symbolism, in silently conveying Christ's message of death, resurrection and hope of eternal life, of humiliation but never defeat.

It is a symbol everyone can recognize. "The clown, or white face, has been a symbol of death in almost every culture," Miss Thompson said. "The clown, or the fool, cuts across cultural lines."

She sees the clown or the fool as "the sufferer," possibly even a kind of Christ figure.

Miss Thompson prefers not to burden her clown with theological profundities, but to let it speak silently in the universal language of laughter and joy.

She and her friends are mimes.

"We've decided to hang in there with silence because in our highly verbal society, it is a powerful way to act."

Like most clown faces, hers emphasizes two features. She has chosen the smile and the eyes. "But you keep something from the death," she said. "The death is not a static thing, and the sign that you carry with you is not being able to speak."

Miss Thompson believes the church can learn valuable lessons from the clown.

"There is such a thirst for something to happen besides words, words, words, and the clown rings true with what the words are about."

Moreover, she said, the clown can help the church "rediscover and affirm its own sense of humor," which she believes it sadly lacks.

Miss Thompson turned her head impishly and said: "Sometimes I think the church would be a much easier place to take if it just threw a party."

British royalty on record

LONDON (UPI) — Now you can hear King Edward VIII surrendering the British throne for "the woman I love" on your own hi-fi.

Or King George V speaking to his empire "through one of the marvels of modern science." Or a young girl called Princess Elizabeth turning to her sister and urging, "Come on, Margaret, say 'good night, children'."

For 50 years, since that same King George V opened the British Empire Exhibition in 1924, the British Broadcasting Corp., has been recording royal speeches and occasions. Now it has issued a two-record LP album from its royal archives.

"Fifty Years of Royal Broadcasts, 1924-1974" contains the voice of every monarch in those five decades, and much else besides.

Its royal broadcasts are linked by "reminders of related events and situations of national importance as recalled through BBC news bulletins, proclamations, the sounds of war and celebrations of peace," the BBC said.

Included are the voices of Sir Winston Churchill and Adolf Hitler as well as Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's announcement on Sept. 3, 1939, that "this country is at war with Germany."

Britain's kings and queens have made "both formal and delightfully informal broadcasts," the BBC said, and the records contain a generous helping of both.

On side one is Queen Mary in a christening speech: "I am happy to name this ship 'the 'Queen Mary.' I wish success to her and to all who sail in her."

On side four is Queen Elizabeth taking a gentle dig at herself with a small parody of the words she is forced to parrot in so many formal speeches: "My husband and I, and by that I mean both of us...."

Skiing's 'hot dogs'

Bright colors and antics

NEW YORK (UPI) — If you see a brilliantly clad skier whizzing down a slope, leap into space, perform a backwards "Moebius Flip" and land on his feet, you are watching a hot dogger, one of the men who revolutionized skiing and ski wear a couple of years ago.

Hot dogging is a free style form of skiing, sometimes called acrobatic skiing, and is performed by rugged athletic types, some of them frustrated racers or former instructors, who decided to do something spectacular to increase the public interest in skiing.

There are hundreds of maneuvers but one of the better known is the "Wong Banger Roll," named for a skier named Wang Wong, who developed a technique of throwing himself onto his shoulders at full speed and then flopping on over to land on his skis and keep going as if nothing had happened.

Another is called the "worm turn." In this the speedster throws one leg way out, hurls himself into space sideways, in what might have been called an Immelman turn in the World War I days of the Red Baron, and lands again on his skis without losing speed.

And there is the "outrigger," where a skier crouches on one ski while holding the other out like an outrigger. Good ones can change back and forth without losing momentum. Another is the "layback" in which a skier simply lies back and skies with his body parallel to the ground —swiftly.

These antics created a lot of attention, and so did their wearing apparel. First the hot doggers' ski boots were something else —brilliant red, yellow, orange, or bright blue instead of the traditional black. Even their skis took on brilliant coloring.

But it was their clothing that set a new fashion that still dominates ski wear today. Their ski pants and jackets were bright, bright, bright colors. Navy blue might be combined with emerald green. Or they might combine red, orange, yellow and white in stripes or checks.

This year there is more of the same, plus some spinoff from the space program which has produced scientific fabrics which are lightweight and warm. The old padded, bulky look is gone —and so is the reverse snobbism of blue jeans and dungarees on the ski slopes.

White Stag, one of the large skiwear manufacturers, reports that in current ski wear strong, bright colors prevail but that are clear pastels are returning to the scene. Newest in their line is the two-piece ski suit which zips together at the waist and the bib pant which rises in the front like a pair of farmer's overalls. One was in red with a vertical zipper closing and a matching jacket trimmed in black pile.

Head Ski Wear, another of the giants, shows skiwear in a more elegant, subtler end of the color spectrum —but with such bright colors as what it calls Fuchsia Shock and Lift Lime. Parkas feature new down treatments and there is innovation with brilliantly colored piping.

Head has a customized pant for today's high-back buckle boots —the over-the-boot pants of rayon-nylon-Lycra have a metal window insert over the boot buckle. A wool sweater in red had racing stripes in yellow and blue —and the colors were repeated in stripes down the leg.

Some of the Hang Ten jackets featured sausage padding on the shoulder and sleeves. That is rows of padding stitched like a row of sausages. There was a parka in a metallic space-age finish and some after-ski socks with different colored toes.

The real hot dogger colors showed up in some brilliant red, yellow and green ski pants by Roffe. There were yellow racing stripes and keeds padded with that sausage padding in green. Edelweiss showed a nylon taffeta racing jacket in yellow with bold blue trims and yellow stripes down the blue pants.

Sweaters were incredible in their wide variety of colors and styles and some of the best designs came from John Demetre who won the 1974 Woolknit Design Award. There are cheerful, bright colors in imaginative patterns of stripes and jacquards and combinations of both. Those for hot dogging were designed to give plenty of shoulder and arm movement.

Another crop of handsome sweaters came from Frank E. Vener who revived the classic Iceland sweater and matching hats. Some of the colors look like the northern lights and probably were inspired by them.

Ski boots retain their bright hot dogging colors and many are made in a molded urethane shell.

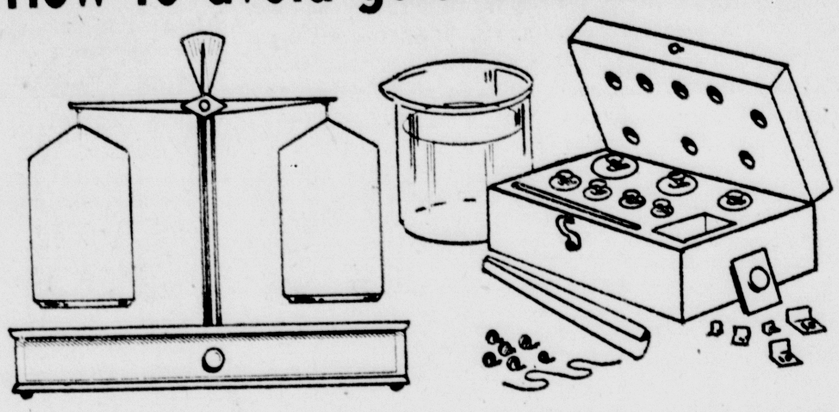
Gold fever

How to avoid gold counterfeiters



By MORT REED

With a few pieces of simple laboratory equipment and a little effort it is possible to check the composition of gold and silver coins for genuineness without the aid of an expert. This includes fakes of all kinds not involving date alterations.

VISUAL COMPARISON

Before jumping to conclusions either way, compare a suspected fake with a similar coin known to be genuine and in a comparable condition. Examine the lettering, the date, the border pattern and the edge with a good magnifier. Look for fallen or flat configurations that should be raised in a radius. The reeded edge will be uneven and irregular on a fake.

Check the following areas for differences between the two coins. 1) Start with the left edge of the design and work around and down to the date. 2) Observe the areas betwen the border and the inscription as well as those between the letters. On a genuine coin the surface in these places will be free of any rough or metallic obstructions. 3) Look at the normally sharp points on the serifs and edges of the lettering. A counterfeit will show them to be nubbed or slightly rounded. Finally, check the thickness and the diameter by holding the good coin along with the suspected counterfeit.

TOUCH COMPARISON

Lay a known genuine alongside the suspected fake on the same surface for approximately one minute to allow both pieces time to assume the same temperature. Pick one up in each hand and close both fists for a few seconds. The unauthorized piece will seem to generate more heat than the genuine.

Next, rub the tip of the index finger back and forth under very light pressure on each coin surface. The counterfeit will feel greasy. Repeat this test at least three times for assurance.

SOUND TEST

Place the questionable coin on the ball of the left index finger and strike it gently with a good coin. Reverse the pieces and strike the good coin with the fake. The genuine will have a much higher and melodious tone.

CHEMICAL TEST

A chemical test is a bit more technical and requires some caution. Using a small candle, let one drop of wax fall on the reeded edge of the coin. When it has set, remove the wax from a valley between two of the reedings with a needle, making sure not to disturb the wax on the outer surface of either rim.

Stand the coin upright between two small objects sufficiently heavy to hold the coin steady. Apply a small touch of the proper formula to the unwaxed area in the valley. If the surface darkens, the coin is of a silver or gold composition.

U.S. will sell some gold

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Treasury will sell 2 million ounces of gold bars from the national stockpile in early January to meet an expected demand from American citizens entitled to own gold for the first time in 40 years, Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said Tuesday.

However, few individuals will be able to afford the minimum purchase of one 400-ounce bar. At current prices of about $187 an ounce on the London and Geneva gold exchanges, a 400-ounce bar would cost about $74,800.

The entire quantity to be auctioned by the General Services Administration on Jan. 6 from bullion depositories in San Francisco, New York and Denver would have a current free market value of $374 million.

The ban on private ownership of gold, imposed in 1934, will be lifted Dec. 31 and a number of banks and fine metals dealers already have announced plans for gold sales in much smaller amounts, giving less affluent U.S. citizens a chance to pick up some of the glamor metal.

Simon said there were two reasons for the sale:

—Increasing the supply available for purchase domestically when the ban is lifted may dissuade Americans from seeking to buy gold on foreign markets which would tend to worsen the U.S balance of payments.

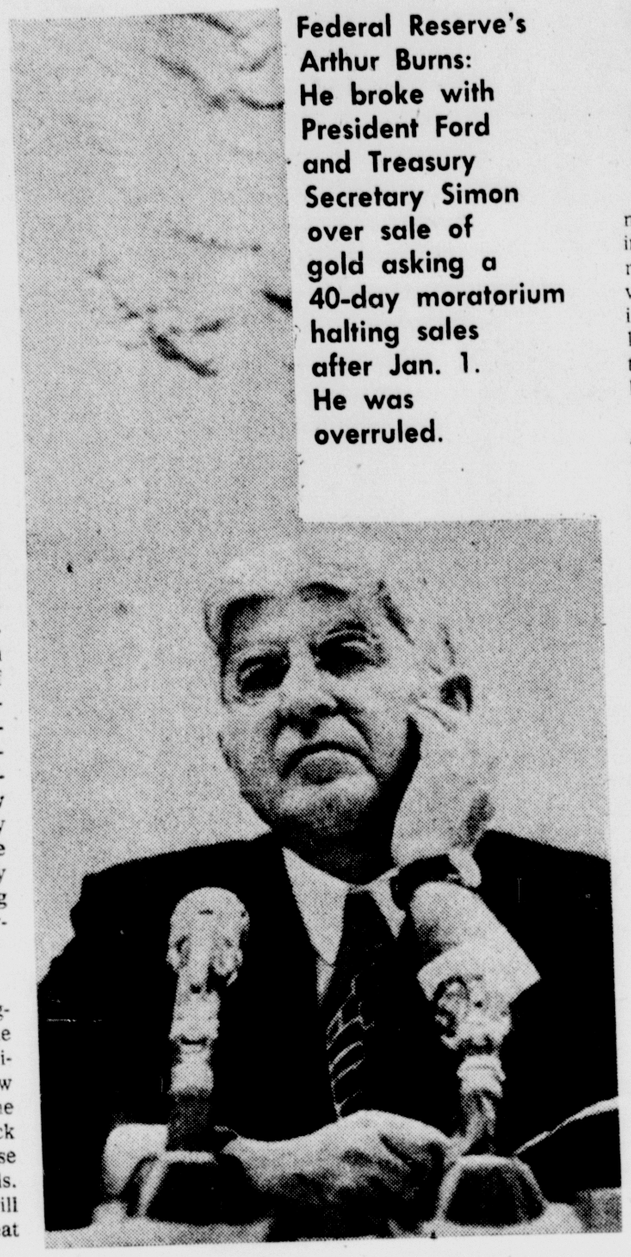
—Since gold in national stockpiles is, by international agreement, priced at $42.22 an ounce, sales at the much higher free market price will earn a tidy profit for the Treasury. This will reduce the government's need to raise money in the private market to finance its day-to-day operations, "thus leaving more funds available for private investment in industry, housing and other activites."

Treasury officials strongly denied that a related aim was to drive down the free-market price from its current record levels.

The U.S. position in international monetary negotiations has been that gold should play a lesser role in monetary affairs. The record runup in gold prices in the past year has reflected investor disenchantment in the value of hard currency, securities and other traditional forms of investment and, in the eyes of some officials, frustrated U.S. attempts to "demonetize" the precious metal.

Simon indicated that additional small sales from the U.S. gold stockpile might be held in the future and he downplayed the effects of these public offerings.

"The amount being offered in the initial sale, the 2 million ounces, is not large in relation to our 276 million stockpile," Simon said. He noted that military and industrial users annually buy between 6 and 7 million ounces, an amount more than equalled by new gold production without any need to dip into the national stockpile.



Federal Reserve's Arthur Burns: He broke with President Ford and Treasury Secretary Simon over sale of gold asking a 40-day moratorium halting sales after Jan. 1. He was overruled.

California now only state with regulated gold sales

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A multi-billion-dollar gold trading industry expected to mushroom after Jan. 1 will go virtually unregulated except in California when Americans legally begin to buy and sell the precious metal, it was learned today.

Security Exchange Officials conceded no federal agency will have legal authority to regulate potentially thousands of gold dealers until April, when the Commodities Futures Trading Commission will be set up.

Until then California will be the only state in the nation mandated by law to control gold speculation through the enforcement of specific licensing procedures.

California enacted legislation in 1973 to apply regulations to precious metals in an effort to control a silver speculating industry that carries out transactions totaling anywhere from $3 billion to $6 billion annually.

The measure authorized the state to demand brokers meet capital reserve requirements to guarantee a certain amount of financial security in order to earn and maintain a license to trade silver. The law will apply to gold.

"Our experience has been that this commodity (silver) attracts businesses with low capital, minimum resources, limited knowledge—those in there for a quick kill," said Robert L. Toms, commissioner of the Department of Corporations which regulates the precious metal brokers.

The measure put California apart from other states and the federal government which rely on securities law that only require "fair disclosure statements" of the proposed investments.

Toms said he expects the eventual federal regulation of gold and silver trading to supercede all state efforts.

One SEC official warned a "very great danger" exists with the lack of control and unwary investors could be drawn into multi-million dollar swindles similar to one that recently rocked the silver trading industry.

State officials said the lack of clearly defined federal authority for a "four month hiatus" would make it possible for speculators to take advantage of the "emotional character" of gold.

A measure to ban private gold ownership for another six months has been proposed in Congress because of uncertainties about existing provisions of the law.

Restrictions on private ownership of gold by Americans, in effect since 1934, will be removed on the first of the year and individuals will be able to buy and sell the metal as freely as they have silver.

"There is no federal enforcement or regulation of gold and silver as commodities," said the SEC official, who asked to remain anonymous.

"If the action is fraudulent and causes public loss the operation is still subject to prosecution under a number of federal laws," he said.

But the official added that this "after the fact" action does nothing to regulate speculation in commodites.

The proposed federal commodities commission will regulate gold and silver brokers much like the SEC regulates stock brokers, subjecting them to annual audits, federal inspections and general reviews.

The official said that type of regulatory procedure "could reduce the possibility" of multimillion dollar swindles such as one the SEC recently alleged was committed by the Western Pacific Gold and Silver Co. The SEC charged the firm sold about 4 million in silver coins that were never delivered.

Legislation has been introduced in Congress by Rep. Henry Gonzalez, D-Texas, to block the lifting of restrictions on gold ownership.

But Gonzalez has argued that little is known of what the federal government can and will do under existing provisions of the law. He said he is particulary concerned about the fact it would be possible to stop the exportation of gold.

The Inflation Fighter

This year aim for the holiday spirit without all the decorative holiday lighting we've grown accustomed to.

Low-wattage bulbs for decorative lighting will give you similar ambience on a lower scale. And except for unoccupied areas where illumination is needed for security, remember to turn off all lights when they aren't being viewed.

Did you know that cold water is more effective than hot water for removing lint from clothing?

That's an added attraction to all the other benefits of using cold or warm water for washing clothes. The energy to make hot water is the major cost in washing clothes.

Cold or warm water can be used to wash permanent press items, washable woolens and lightly soiled articles. Read garment tags with cleaning instructions to maximize energy conservation.

Try to avoid using the dishwasher when it's only partially filled to avoid wasting fuel, water and detergent. A quick scrape and rinse under cold water will usually suffice until the dishwasher is full.

Some dishwashers have special features such as partial-load cycles, rinse-only cycle and midcycle turnoff that can be used for energy conservation as well as convenience.

Using too much detergent can result in dishes that need to be washed again. Follow the manufacturer's directions.

When vacuuming, empty or replace the dust bag frequently. A full dust bag reduces the suction and increases vacuuming time.

The dishwasher filters and drains must also be kept clean to avoid reducing efficiency and wasting energy.

Clean the lint filter on your dryer every time you use it to maintain full air flow for maximum efficiency.

A properly handled complaint can result in a satisfied customer. Notify people who can solve your problem—the retailer or manufacturer.

First, get all the facts together so that you can discuss the matter intelligently and without heat.

Offer a complete description of the unsatisfactory item, including model or serial number, date and place of purchase, salesperson's name or number and the specific reason for your complaint.

Also, attach copies of the sales receipt and any labels, hang tags, seals, guarantees or warranties that came with the item.

Inflation

By JAMES L. OVERTON

HOUSTON (UPI) — Mayor Carlos Romero Barcelo of San Juan, Puerto Rico, the new president of the National League of Cities, has called on municipal governments to cut and control their budgets.

Barcelo appealed to the federal government to return municipal power to the city. And he asked his colleagues who closed their five-day convention this week to trim dispensible programs.

"We will have to take a serious look at our programs and determine which program we just can't afford to go ahead with," Barcelo said. "We have to make some kind of cuts in our budgets."

Despite urging the shift of power back to municipal governments, Barcelo said he represented a segment of Puerto Rico which still seeks full political equality and statehood.

"Because I represent the last sizeable bloc of American citizens who have still not attained full political equality, I can tell you what the American Revolution of 1776 tells me and should certainly tell you about our nation's ability to survive seemingly insurmountable problems."

"We are at a critical juncture in American history, a period when doubt and uncertainty surrounds us. At this congress we have attempted to cope with the danger signals all around us —signals that tell us that the days will not be easy ones."

No-frill sky train facing controversy

You will be able to fly between New York and London soon for $125 if Freddie Laker has his way. Laker Airways—a British supplemental carrier—proposes a novel service: a no-reservation, no-frill skytrain.

You'd simply go to the airport six hours in advance and book passage on a first-come, first-served basis. For a meal or beverages, you'd pay extra. Luggage would be limited to 33 pounds. You'd fly in a DC-10 that had 345 seats. The skytrain fare would remain the same the year around.

The scheduled airlines presently operating on this route oppose the skytrain. They're afraid you would take it rather than using their service, which costs $292 one way economy in winter, more in spring, summer and fall.

Travel agents object to the skytrain because they will have to book your own passage, thereby denying them a commission.

The Civil Aeronautics Board disapproves on the grounds that the fare will be uneconomic for Laker. A bit of arithmetic, though, shows their figuring to be faulty.

Laker's fare is set at about the same rate—.036 cents a mile —that the CAB says is necessary for charters to operate profitably with wide-bodied aircraft. Laker expects to have high load factors and can make a profit with a 75 per cent load.

The CAB has not taken into consideration either that it costs considerably less for Laker Airways to operate than for Pan American or TWA. About 50 employees are required to keep a Laker plan flying compared to more than 200 for a Pan Am plane. Part of Laker's no-frill concept is that it maintains no sales offices or reservations services and pays no commissions; it doesn't even have a elevator to its fourth floor airport office. Too, a DC-10 captain's yearly salary in Great Britain is $22,000, compared with about $55,000 in the U.S.

Laker Airways has no back-up planes; if a plane needs service you'll have to wait until it's fixed. Fact: Laker requires only one DC-10 for skytrain service most of the year. It has two other DC-10s and two 707s for back-up.

A plane wouldn't leave until it's full, so you would have to go to the airport and wait. Fact: Laker planes would depart regularly on a set schedule, regardless of number of passengers.

The skytrain will cause congestion at Kennedy Airport. Fact: An average of more than 60,000 passengers a day pastt through Kennedy; Laker's maximum of 345 passengers (690 in peak season) will scarcely be noticeable.

No one questions Laker Airways' financial or operational qualifications. In 23 years of serving the British market, the airline has been financially sound and never has had a fatal accident.

Proponents of the skytrain say it will:

Make low-cost travel available to anyone.

Conserve fuel and cut down pollution through high load factors.

Bring in needed foreign exchange by encouraging British tourists. (Laker estimates 60 per cent of his passengers will be North Ameicaans, 40 per cent British.)

Help fight inflation by keeping costs down.

A bilateral agreement between the United States and the United Kingdom covers airline service. American companies flying to London are Pan American, TWA and National. Only one U.K. carrier—British Airways—now serves the U.S. The U.K. government has designated Laker Airways as its second carrier. It has asked the U.S. for favorable action immediately so skytrain service can commence at once.

Pressure is being put on the White House, however, to deny Laker permission to operate the skytrain. If lobbying efforts now under way are successful, it probably will be the first time in history that the U.S. will have broken an international agreement.

The decision is up to the White House. If you would like to express your view—either for or against the skytrain—write President Gerald R. Ford.

MEXICO CITY — Lucio Cabanas ha muerto, pero no asi su leyenda. Las baladas en los cafes aun cuentan de su decada de rebeldia en la montana Sierra Madre. El gobierno mejicano dice que el lider izquierdista, de 36 anos, fue muerto el 2 de diciembre cerca de Acapulco. Cabanas, que goza de la reputacion de un Robin Hood entre los mejicanos de condicion humilde, es mostrado aqui, a la izquierda, cuando era estudiante, y a la derecha, despues de convertirse en guerrillero en 1966. Confrontacion en Espana

por PETER UEBESAX

De acuerdo a fuentes cercanas al gobierno, Espana esta en camino a una confrontacion entre conservadores y reformistas en el regimen del Generalisimo Franciso Franco, que lleva ya 35 anos.

El caso es la liberalizacion politica. El Primer Ministro Carlos Arias Navarro ha prometido llevar e efecto ciertos puntos importantes en un programa que aumentaria la libertad politica para fin de ano.

Pero los conservativos, muchos de ellos alarmados por el derrocamiento de un regimen derechista en el vecino Portugal, tratan de desacreditar el plan de Arias. Franco, de 81 anos, que recientemente se recupero de una seria enfermedad, tiende a inclinarse a la derecha, de acuerdo a la fuente informativa.

Jose Antonio Giron, uno de los lideres del movimiento derechista Falange, advierte que un movimiento en la direccion de la democracia parlamentaria podria producir "en un pais vehementemente inclinado hacia la pasion politica, una nueva confrontacion, odio entre hermandades, y el debilitamiento de la nacion."

Giron y sus companeros derechistas obtuvieron una victoria en octubre cuando forzaron a Arias a despedir a su Ministro de Informacion, el liberal Pio Cabanillas, quien habia relajado los controles sobre la prensa y television. Las fuentes informativas indican que Franco tuvo la ultima palabra, y ordeno que Arias despidiera al Ministro.

El episodio de Cabanillas desperto protestas de la prensa, y deman das de explicaciones, que el gobierno aun no ha dado. Algunos altos oficiales, entre ellos el Ministro de Finanzas Antonio Barrera de Irimo, renunciaron disgustados.

Las fuentes informan que el acontecimiento de Cabanillas fue solo el comienzo de una batalla que envuelve much mas que el derecho de la prensa de expresar discentimiento por lo bajo, y el derecho de la television de reportear los hechos en Portugal y Grecia.

Dicen que el problema primordial era la promesa de Arias de legalizar las llamadas asociaciones politicas, o partidos politicos nacientes. Su consolidacion seria un rudo departir del sistema unipartidario de Franco.

Ricardo de La Cierva, el biografo oficial de Franco, que renuncio al puesto de Director General de Cultura Popular, en senal de protesta por el despido de Cabanillas, explico una vez, por que Arias trataba de democratizar el sistema. Dice que si el gobierno no provee una entrada politica ahora, "sera hecho por nuestros enemigos un dia."

Fue una referencia directa a la creacion de un grupo de izquierdistas clandestinos que han formado "juntas democraticas" en los ultimos meses, y la presumida fuerza del partido comunista.

Los convervadores estan centralizando su fuego en el proyecto de las asociaci nes politicas, dicen los expertos. La mayoria de ellos no se oponen, pero tratan de apaciguarlo proponiendo que las organizaciones nacientes sean puestas bajo el control directo del "Movimiento Nacional", el unico partido legal en Espana.

Bajo el plan de Arias, dicen las fuentes, las asociaciones servirian como anal autentico para la opinion popular, incluyendo derechistas, moderados del ala izquierda, y los del medio. La linea seria trazada ligeramente a la izquierda del centro.

Se informa que Arias no planeaba colocar las asociaciones bajo el Movimiento Nacional, sino bajo el Ministerio del Interior, en otras palabras, su propio control. Las asociaciones serian permitidas a participar en elecciones nacionales, pero las campanas serian severamente controladas.

Franco, hasta ahora, no ha participado en este juego de tira y afloja, pero ha prometido que no tolerara nunca el retorno de los partidos politicos.

Las fuentes recuerdan que hace cinco anos, un proyecto similar iba a ser puesto en accion, pero fue retirado solo horas antes de su publicacion en el boletin oficial del estado.

Franco tiene poder absoluto, y puede controlar su gobierno. Desde su vuelta al gobierno desde su enfermedad, ha reasumido control total.

Dicen fue se dudaba que Arias se conformaria con el vencimiento de las asociaciones. Dicen que el ministro planeaba decretar la ley para el 15 de diciembre, o conside aria renunciar. Un gobierno de extrema derecha, con la posibilidad de una fuerte participacion militar podria ser el resultado de dicho movimiento.

Peligro pulmonar en vaporizadores

Un nuevo estudio realizado por el gobierno, indica que los antisudorales que contienen zirconio (zirconium), pueden causar enfermedades de los pulmones.

La Comision de Comidas y Drogas, en su estudio, tambien duda que dichos productos, el de mayor venta es "Sure" de Procter & Gamble, sean relmente mas efectivos en la batalla de los olores corporales, que aquellos que no contienen Zirconio.

Estos descubrimientos fueron hechos por un panel del F.D.A:, quienes tienen a su cargo investigar la securidad y beneficios de los antisudorales, como parte de su supervision sobre drogas y cosmeticos. La comision estuvo cercana a recomendar la prohibicion de la venta de desodorantes que contienen dicho producto quimico.

Una reunion fue llevada a cabo el 16 de diciembre para discutir la situacion, y hacer publicos los conocimientos del gobierno. La desicion final sera hecha por el FDA, una vez que haya recibido los informes finales del panel.

El problema con el zriconio, de acuerdo al reportaje, es que penetra en el aire en particulas minusculas que se mantienen suspendidas por horas, y pueden entrar a los pulmones al respirar.

El elemento metalico tiene la seriamente extrema posibilidad de causar una reaccion inflamatoria en las celulas del pulmon, que tienden a causar crecimineto en los tumores, rebajando en este caso la capacidad pulmonar.

El reportaje indica que aun no han sido conducidos suficientes examenes que pudieran proveer la "indisputable evidencia" de que este crecimiento de tumores es causado por el zirconio, pero agrega: "En este momento, el analisis de los beneficios y riesgos tomados en consideracion, hacen que este panel se incline a pensar que los compuestos de zirconio no deberian ser vendidos para el uso en vaporizadores antisudorales, hasta que las dudas acerca de su seguridad hayan sido adecuadamente disipadas."

Procter & Gamble tambien vende otro cproducto con zirconio llamando "Secret", y los fabricantes de "Arrid" se dice que han estado vendiendo un producto experimantal que tambien contiene zirconio.

El ano pasado, Gillette introdujo dos productos con zirconio — "Extra Strength RIGHT Guard," y "Extra Strength Soft and Dry" — pero los retiro del mercado cuando estudios de laboratorio demostraron que algunos animales reaccionaron en forma adversa.

Trojans impressive again in 102-82 win

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES — It's still too early to say this is USC's best ever basketball team.

Since the Trojans only scored 100 points once last season, it's apparent they are more of a high-scoring power.

Coach Bob Boyd certainly agrees this isn't the time to talk about high praises yet.

"It's too early to know how good we are" he said. "We'll find out more when we go on the road, especially at Houston."

Utah (3-1) made it a game until midway through the first half when USC went on an eight-point spurt to move ahead 29-20. The trojans outscored the Utes, 12-2, late in the first half to take a commanding 20-pound lead, 53-33, at halftime.

USC built its lead to 30 points late in the second half before Utah closed the final gap against the reserves.

Forward John Lambert paced the Trojan attack by scoring a career-high 29 points, 21 in the first half. The 6-10 senior from Berkeley also led Troy in rebounding by grabbing 16.

All 12 Trojans who had suited up scored, and that is part of Boyd's plans.

"We're trying to play everybody," Boyd said. "It's mainly for morale purposes. We have good depth and a variety of skills."

Cleve Porter, last year's Pomona Valley Player of the Year at Ganesha High, scored his first two points as a Trojan by tipping in a basket with 7:06 left in the game. Porter, who was elevated to the varsity before Friday's 107-88 win over Oklahoma State, played nine minutes and 10 seconds. In that span, he grabbed three rebounds and had one assist.

USC did an excellent defensive job on Utah's high-scoring guard Tinky Burden, who was held to a season low of 20 points. And most those came in the latter stages of the game after the Trojan starters went to the bench.

USC shot 48.8 per cent in making 41 of 84 shots while Utah hit on 41.6 with 32 of 77.

Kings coast past Flames in 6-2 rout

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Whitey Widing and Mike Murphy each fired in two goals Saturday night to power the Los Angeles Kings to a 6-2 victory over the injury-plagued Atlanta Flames.

Widing scored twice on 40-foot slap shots and also contributed a pair of assists to help keep the Kings unbeaten in their last seven matches.

Widing, who now leads the Kings in points with 22, opened the assault on Atlanta goalie Phil Myre 12:29 into the opening period. Then Butch Goring took advantage of a bounce off the backboards to score an unassisted goal to put Los Angeles in front 2-0 after one period.

Just 42 seconds into the second period, Murphy tipped in a Widing long shot with Atlanta a man short to make it 3-0.

A minute later, Flames' forward Eric Vail capped a three-on-one breakaway to end Rogie Vachon's hopes of a shutout. But later in the same period, Vail suffered a shoulder injury and was taken to a hospital for X-rays.

Widing's second score and his ninth of the season came on a power play with 7:07 left in the second period. Widing then helped to set up the Kings' final goal by Don Kozak midway through the third period.

Johnson sparks UCLA win

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Marques Johnson, who has been sidelined by a mild case of hepatitis this fall, scored 13 points Saturday night to help second-ranked UCLA trounce Oklahoma State 82-51.

Playing in only his second game this season, Johnson scored all his points in a reserve role.

UCLA led only 28-22 with 5:54 left in the first half, but then put the game away with an 18-4 spurt for a commanding 46-26 intermission advantage.

The victory gave UCLA a 4-0 record this year, while Oklahoma State slipped to 1-3.

Andy Hopson became the Cowboys' all-time No. 1 career rebounder with six against the Bruins to give him a three-year varsity mark of 776. The old standard was 772 held by Bob Mattick, 1951-54.

Dave Meyers added 11 and Wilbert Olinde 10 for the Bruins.

Glickman doesn't think so

Is Walton really quitting?

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Basketball's celebrated Bill Walton sits down with Portland Trail Blazer executive vice president Harry Glickman today to discuss the big redhead's future, and Glickman already predicts the UCLA All-American's decision will be to "continue to play basketball."

"It's a gut feeling," said Glickman in discussing a situation which produced a story that Walton may be on the verge of quitting pro basketball.

"I haven't talked with Walton since this story broke," Glickman said from Buffalo Friday night. "I don't think we will know what the situation is until Sunday when the Blazers return home from this road trip."

Glickman said when the story first broke he thought it mainly was rumor, but when statements about Walton and disenchantment with pro basketball were attributed to Sam Gilbert, Glickman said "Sam's remarks gave the story credence."

Gilbert is a Los Angeles area businessman and adviser to Walton and other former UCLA stars who turned pro.

"I tried to call him," added Glickman, "but he is now on his way to Switzerland. I talked to Bill's lawyer and he told me Bill would be back in Portland to talk with me Sunday.

"When I talked to Bill Wednesday about his ankle, he didn't hint at any of this." The story broke less than 24 hours later.

Walton has talked to no newsmen.

The root of the problem might be Walton's concern over his aches and pains and medical attention.

He has missed eight games, one because of a dislocated little finger on his left hand and one because of the flu, and the last six because of a bone spur on his ankle.

Portland team physician, Dr. Frank Smith said the spur would be painful, but Walton would not suffer further injury if he played on the ankle. Walton told Glickman he couldn't cut without feeling severe pain. He asked if he could go to Los Angeles to see the doctor that had treated him as a three-time All American at UCLA—Dr. Robert Kerlan, team physician for the Los Angeles Lakers.

Gilbert and Kerlan both called Glickman for permission to look at Walton, and Glickman gave it. Glickman said, "Dr. Kerlan arrived at the exact same conclusion that Dr. Smith did and that is a little unusual because doctors usually don't see exactly alike on things but they do on this."

Greg Smith, one of Walton's teammates, asked following the Buffalo game what the team's reaction might be, said he didn't think the team would feel a Walton decision to leave basketball would be a "slap in the face, but the fans in Portland might think so."

Smith stressed strongly "pain threshold" as a way of life in the NBA.

"You play when you're hurt," Smith said. "That is part of the sacrifice to your profession, your team and your family. It is a matter of pain threshold. Maybe Bill's isn't high. But if you are going to play in this league, you play when you have pain. I know that Larry Steele is playing for us with a painful ankle injury and he has for more than a week. Geoff Petrie is playing on a very painful knee.

"But we all hope that Bill will rejoin our team, because we believe he can help us."

Galindez scores 13th-round KO

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Bullstrong Victor Galindez of Argentina threw dozens of roundhouse punches that left Len "Stinger" Hutchins of Detroit unable to come out for the 13th round and gave the Argentine the World Boxing Association share of the light heavyweight title Saturday night.

Galindez, bleeding from a cut over the right eye caused by a butt in the fourth round, swarmed over the American boxer and knocked him down three times, punching so much Hutchins could hardly raise his arms to defend himself.

Lakers remain in last place after 92-88 loss to Phoenix

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Charlie Scott scored 20 of his 25 points in the second half Saturday night to lead the Phoenix Suns to a 92-88 NBA victory over the Los Angeles Lakers.

The decision broke a tie between the two teams for last place in the league's Pacific Division. Phoenix is now 11-14 while the Lakers are 10-15.

Scott took over the Suns' offense late in the fourth quarter as they held onto a lead that ranged from four to nine points. They put the game away with a driving layup with 1:17 to play.

Guard Lucius Allen paced the Lakers with 25 points, tying Scott for game honors, and added six assists and five steals. Forward Pat Riley, hitting on a variety of outside shots, added 23.

Laker forward Happy Hairston led Los Angeles' rebounders with 10, despite being ejected by referee Richie Powers after drawing two quick technicals late in the fourth quarter.

Ducks' Ballard stars in tourney

PITTSBURGH — Five Oregon players hit in double figures, including 19 points by former Garey High standout Greg Ballard, to defeat Duquesne 90-82 Saturday night and win the Steel Bowl Basketball Tourney championship.

Duquesne built up a 38-32 advantage at the half, but the Ducks reeled off six straight points at the outset of the second half to pull even at 38-38. The Ducks then went on a tear to build up a 58-50 advantage midway through the final 20 minutes and held on to win the tourney championship going away.

The Ducks dominated both backboards and out-rebounded Duquesne 62-38 as the Dukes suffered their first loss for a 2-1 record.

Oregon, now 3-0 on the season, was led by Gerald Willett's 24 points and 21 rebounds. Ducks Stu Jackson had 22 and Ron Lee 18 in addition to Ballard's point total.

Orioles stole the show at winter meetings

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The Montreal Expos made the most trades at the winter baseball meetings, the Baltimore Orioles came home with the most quality and the city fathers of New Orleans gleaned the most hope for a future major league franchise.

The annual meetings, which concluded late Friday night, featured a total of 15 trades with 39 players changing uniforms. Of those 39, it would appear the Orioles, who reeled off three deals, came up with the most blue-chippers for the smallest return.

The Orioles, obviously forced to make some moves toward adding some punch to their 1975 lineup after their closest competitors in the American League east, the New York Yankees, picked up superstar Bobby Bonds from San Francisco in October, came up with just that in first baseman Lee May and rightfielder Ken Singleton, both 100-RBI men only one season ago.

But the beauty of the Baltimore swapping was the fact that they were forced to yield only one man who could be considered "front line" material —32-year old southpaw Dave McNally, who went to Montreal along with reserve outfielder Rich Coggins in exchange for Singleton and righthander Mike Torrez.

The Expos, who led all comers in activity with four deals, unfortunately did not reap the same rewards as the Orioles.

The deal with Baltimore is the best example of the Expos' plight. Desperate for lefthanded pitching, Montreal had to take the best southpaw available (McNally). But to get him, they were forced to yield Singleton, 27, and Torrez, four years McNally's junior, who won only one less game in '74 than the former four-time 20-game winner.

Later the Expos embarked on a house-cleaning of highsalaried veterans, unloading 34-year old Ron Fairly to St. Louis for a pair of unproven minor leaguers and $110,000 centerfielder Willie Davis, also 34, to Texas for two other youngsters of unknown calibre.

Davis, who only a year ago figured in a celebrated one-for-one swap from the Dodgers to Montreal for relief ace Mike Marshall, was the fourth $100,000 player to change uniforms at the meetings. Dick Allen, baseball's highest paid player at $250,000 per year, who moved from the Chicago White Sox to the Atlanta Braves for cash and a player to be named later. May ($100,000) and McNally ($105,000) were the others.

The only other trade that could have a major effect on the standings next season was the six-player exchange between the New York Mets and Philadelphia which gave the Mets the centerfielder they've been seeking for three years (Del Unser) and the Phillies another cheerleader in reliever Tug "Ya Gotta Believe" McGraw to go along with Dave "Yes We Can" Cash.

Expansion and franchise-shifting drew most of the owners' other attention, the most ourtageous proposal coming from Los Angeles Dodger board chairman Walter O'Malley, who suggested a third major league comprised of New Orleans, Seattle, Buffalo, Denver, Washington and Toronto to solve baseball's ills.

Although O'Malley's plan is unlikely to ever be adopted, it nonetheless rocked the establishment into serious thought regarding the possibility of an entrepreneur like Gary Davidson founding a "World Football League" structure that would in turn touch off an all-new bidding war of player jumpings.

The owners are aware that in particular, New Orleans and Seattle with their domed stadia, are ripe for big league baseball and both cities plus Toronto had persuasive delegations at the meetings lobbying for franchises "now."

Of the two, New Orleans was given the closest thing you could call "assurance" of a big league club from Commissioner Bowie Kuhn. Kuhn, in a private meeting with the New Orleans delegation, promised "every effort would be made to bring baseball to the Crescent City by 1976."

In other words, expansion may be out for the time being, but with a little bit of luck someone in the San Francisco Bay area —either the Giants or the A's —will be able to worm out of their lease and hustle off to New Orleans.

As for the Seattle people, who are suing the baseball lords for non-support after the desertion of the Pilots four years ago, the trip to the meetings was uneventful. They were again given a lot of legal-talk banalities from the commissioner and told to "be patient."

That will not happen and in the words of Seattle's King County executive John Spellman: "We came away empty-handed. The suit is on."

So with the expansion and franchise-shifting issues still left unsettled and the adoption of a second inter-league trading period set for March 16-31 the immediate outlook for baseball is two-fold:

More trades and more lawsuits.

Martinez wins with knockout

MERIDA, Mexico (UPI) — Mexico's Rodolfo Martinez won the World Boxing Council's world bantamweight crown Saturday night, knocking out champion Rafael Herreran also of Mexico, in the first 30 seconds of the fourth round.

The title bout, a scheduled 15-pound encounter, was held at the Merida bullring, the first championship fight ever held in the Yucatan capital.

By MIKE BROSSART
P-B Correspondent

FULLERTON — If the Garey High Vikings continue to score fewer points each time they play a game of basketball, they will eventually lose a game.

But it hasn't yet, as Garey won its fifth straight game Saturday night, beating the Fullerton High Indians 44-43.

Weber made the first shot to cut the Garey lead to 44-43. But he missed his second try and time ran out on the Indians when Viking center David Larry grabbed the rebound, his seventh in the final period.

Garey took the lead for the first time with just 3:31 left in the contest when forward Gary Carpenter made his third basket of the night.

Fifty seconds later guard Billy Evans gave the Vikings a three-point lead on a layup after backcourt mate Kent Jordan made his sixth steal of the game.

Evans led the Viking scorers with 14 points, 12 of them in the second half. Larry scored 11 points for the visitors, but made his presence felt most with his rebounding late in the game.

In the first half Larry got just three rebounds while Webber got 15 for Fullerton. But through the final two periods Larry hauled down eight boards to six for the Indian forward.

Weber was the offensive star for the Indians. He finished with 18 points and 21 rebounds.

Garey was beaten badly on the boards overall, 44-28. But while Garey managed only a poor 29 per cent from the floor, and 62 per cent from the free throw line, Fullerton had a terrible 22 per cent from the field and hit on only 50 per cent of its charity tosses.

Western wins again, American drops two

Don Harris accounted for 23 points as Western Christian High stayed unbeaten with a 60-43 basketball victory over Avalon Saturday night.

In other prep cage action over the weekend, American Christian dropped a pair of games in San Diego. The Minutemen were beaten by La Jolla 62-26 Friday and lost to Francis Parker 77-12 Saturday.

Harris continued his fine play this year in the Lancers win Saturday. Western led all the way in the contest, taking an 18-6 first-quarter edge and breezing from there. Ken Neilson added 10 points for WCHS, now 3-0 on the young season.

American's season mark dropped to 0-3 with the two losses in San Diego. Bill Mayberry did account for 12 points in Friday's loss to La Jolla to pace American scoring efforts.

APC nipped in overtime by Eagles

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

REDLANDS — A three-point play by Rob Webb with 32 seconds left broke Azusa Pacific's two-tournament winning streak and gave Biola College an 82-81 overtime win over the Cougars Saturday night at Redlands College.

La Verne won the consolation title on Don Barter's four free throws in two pressure-packed one-and-one situations to give the Leos a 77-76 win over Claremont-Mudd in regulation time.

Azusa Pacific appeared to have its third championship in a row. But Billy Ingraham's shot that dropped through after the buzzer tied the score 76-76 to send the thriller into overtime. Ingraham barely got the shot off before the buzzer sounded.

In the other two games, Kevin Finnerty of Chino scored 18 points to lead Cal Baptist to a 91-68 over Redlands for third place. Pacific Christian beat L.A. Baptist 95-76 for seventh place. Upland's Curt Oldenkamp came off the bench to score four points.

Victimize Chaffey, 68-53

Mounties get No. 5

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

Gene Victor is not ready to concede anything about his Mt. San Antonio College basketball team despite its 5-0 record.

The Mounties picked up victory No. 5 Saturday night with a 68-53 decision over stubborn Chaffey in a game that was much closer most of the way than the final score.

It was Chaffey's fourth loss in a row, and the Panthers were giving away both size and experience to Victor's club which is the winningest team in the valley so far in a young season.

"We've got a ways to go yet," said Victor after Saturday's win was in the bag. "We rebounded better tonight, but that's about all I can say."

The Mounties had a big bulge in that department, 53-20, and in shooting percentage, 43-29, which was MSAC's lowest in five games. The Mounties went into the game as better than 50 per cent shooters for the season.

Forward George Schader again led the team in points and rebounds with 20 and 17, respectively. Center Duaine Harding pulled down 15 rebounds but added only six points. Veteran forward Gary Melugin had 12 points and Tom Pokorski came off the bench to add 10.

Chaffey's veteran forward Russ Williams led all the scorers with 21 points, and guard David Seckrater, a freshman from Fontana, hit 15.

MSAC led from the outset but couldn't put the game out of reach until Schader and guard Jeff Nelson caught fire about four minutes into the second half.

They hit the key buckets in a drive that increased MSAC's lead from seven points to 13, 50-37, at the mid-way point in the half.

The lead was never larger than 15 or smaller than nine thereafter.

The Panthers were as close as three points several times in the first half but couldn't close the gap.

Both teams return to action Tuesday. Chaffey visits East L.A. and MSAC gets its severest test of the season at Riverside City College. Both games are scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. Chaffey completes the week at Ventura Friday and Fullerton Saturday. The Mounties visit Citrus College Friday.

In other games Saturday night, Pasadena won the championship of the Don Edwards Memorial Tournament hosted by Citrus, with an 83-78 decision over Santa Monica. East L.A. beat Barstow, 57-55 for third place and Cerritos won the consolation title with a 48-47 win over Cypress.

The Owls lost their first two games in the tourney to be eliminated. Citrus will take a 2-2 record into their next game Wednesday against the Whittier junior varsity.

USIU rallies, now 'Hens must also

By GRAHAM CROW
P-B Correspondent

Last season, Pomona-Pitzer won eight of its first 12 games before having the season turned around and winding up with a 9-14 overall mark.

Yet with four returning starters back for the 1974-75 campaign, Les Nagler had good reason to be optimistic. But the Sagehens are going to once again have to find their season turn around to find any success this year as they dropped another game Saturday before the home fans, 52-46 to United States International University.

The visiting Westerners, more gratiously called USIU, got a fine second half performance from forward Chet Hancock after former Chaffey High star and last year's NAIA District III center, R.J. Kunysz, got into foul trouble.

Pomona led at the intermission thanks to some fine foul shooting as the Sagehens were perfect on all eight attempts. USIU scored once more field goal in the opening 20 minutes (11 to Pomona's 10) as each team got off 25 shots.

Ironically, Pomona did not even attempt a single free throw in the final half as the sticky man-to-man defense employed by USIU limited the 'Hens to just 18 points.

Center Geoff Northrup was the leading scorer for Pomona with 18 points, 14 coming in the initial 20 minutes. Brandon Boyd with 14 and Garry Stewart with eight, were the only other starters to score as the 'Hens once again had very unbalanced scoring.

Kunysz, who sat out some time with a twisted ankle in the first half, and missed 12 minutes of the second period with foul trouble, wound up with just 10.

The game was actually decided in the opening minutes of the second half as USIU scored on eight of its first 12 shots while Pomona was being held scoreless over a five minute stretch.

For the game, USIU shot a fine 50 per cent (24-48) while the Sagehens were once again cold from the field with a 19-51 performance.

Pomona-Pitzer, 1-4 on the season, will host Cal Baptist Tuesday while USIU,s next outing will come Friday night against Cal Poly in the opening round of the University of San Diego Tournament.

CLAREMONT TENNIS CLUB'S TWO GREAT CHRISTMAS GIFT IDEAS

ONE: A Series of tennis lessons or a clinic with one of our outstanding tennis professionals. Lessons at the club are available to non-members as well as members.

Our teaching pros are Claremont's own tennis star, nationally ranked Janice Metcalf, and Steve Kronseder, a graduate of Claremont Men's College. Janice has won the U.S. Women's Amateur three times as well as many, many other tournaments. Steve was the number two player at CMC and since that time has had considerable tournament experience here and in Europe. Steve has taught for Davis Cup Captain Donald Dell and Gene Scott at their school in New York, and for one year was the assistant to Ted Ducey at CMC.

TWO: A family membership in the beautiful Claremont Tennis Club. Only about 20 memberships are still available. If you don't act now you may be too late. There is a reason we have more than 3 times as many members than the other two clubs combined, even though our cost is slightly higher. Our price is still the best recreation bargain available. To see for yourself come in for a tour of the facilities at 2225 Padua Avenue (between Foothill and Baseline) any day before 5:00 p.m.

SPORTS NEWS IN BRIEF

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) Kenneth Illodigwe hit the goal post once, missed an open net, then scored on a 10-yard bullet shot in front of the net in the fourth overtime Saturday to give Howard University a 2-1 victory over St. Louis University and the NCAA Division I soccer championship.

The No. 1-ranked Bisons, completing a perfect season with their 19th straight win, gained the title that was denied them in 1971 for using ineligible players. They beat St. Louis 3-2 that year, but the courts later ruled the law which forced them to forfeit the title was unconstitutional.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The 19th annual National Association of Intercollegiate Atheltic (NAIA) Champion Bowl football game will be played next Saturday between Texas A&I University, Kingsville, Tex., and Henderson State College, Arkadelphia, Ark.

The announcement was made Saturday by officials at NAIA headquarters.

The event will be staged at Javelinas Stadium on the Texas A&I University campus in Kingsville.

Texas A&I, with a 12-0 record, earned the berth in the Champion Bowl with a 21-19 victory over Cameron University of Lawton, Okla. Saturday in Kingsville.

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Jeff Moody of Southern Pines, N.C. overtook David Cornwell of White Hall, Md. in the last 75 yards Saturday to win the cross country championship in the Amateur Athletic Union National Junior Olympics here.

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Defending champion Amy Alcott of Los Angeles won the final two holes of her match with Lauren Howe of Colorado Springs, Colo., Saturday to advance to the final of the California State Women's Amateur golf tournament.

Mary Elizabeth Shea of Los Angeles defeated Alice Miller of Marysville, 3 and 2, in the other semifinal on a perfect day for golf at Pebble Beach and will face Miss Alcott in the final this morning.

BURLINGTON, Vt. (UPI) — The 77-year football history at the University of Vermont came to an official end Saturday when its trustees voted to kill the program and save $200,000.

Money was the official reason, but student apathy played a large part.

"Student interest in football is almost non-existent," said trustee Francis R. Peisch. "Only the alumni care."

MIYAZAKI, Japan (UPI) — "I think I can win because somebody would have to shoot a sensational round to beat me."

That was Johnny Miller's attitude as he prepared to defend his three stroke lead in the final round of the $170,000 Dunlop Phoenix golf tournament over the 7,012-yard, par 72 Phoenix CC course.

Pomona boxer loses in draw

SOUTH LAKE TAHOE, Calif. — American and Asian boxers, meeting for the first time in dual competition in the United States, split 12 fights here Saturday for a standoff in a special amateur boxing event.

Pomona's Albert Sandoval was the U.S. representative in the light flyweight bout, but the local fighter didn't fare very well as Park Chan-hee of South Korea scored a TKO over him.

American winners were Leo Randolph in the flyweight bout, Davey Armstrong in the lightweight battle, Tilio Maldonado in a welterweight brawl, Tommy Sullivan as a light heavyweight and Jerome Bennett in the light middleweight clash.

In addition, the U.S. received a forfeit in the heavyweight class when Iranian boxer Abdoreza Andaweh failed to show to meet Golden Glove champ James Chapman of Reno.

Osborn scores twice in 23-10 Viking win

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Veteran running back Dave Osborn scored two touchdowns Saturday to pace the NFC Central Division champion Minnesota Vikings to a 23-10 victory over Atlanta, the Falcons' seventh straight loss.

Osborn rushed for 96 yards in 24 carries and caught six passes for another 39 yards as the Vikings upped their record to 9-4. The Minnesota defense spoiled quarterback Kim McQuilken's first pro start by sacking the rookie four times for 50 yards.

The loss dropped Atlanta to 2-1 and was the fifth straight defeat for Marion Campbell since he replaced Norm Van Brocklin as Falcon coach.

Bob Berry, making his initial start of the season in place of Fran Tarkenton, completed 14 of 22 passes for 114 yards, including a 10-yard scoring pass to Stu Voigt.

Osborn, a 10-year man from North Dakota, gave the Vikings a 16-7 lead midway through the third quarter on a three-yard scoring run. Minnesota marched 60 yards in 13 plays for the touchdown after taking the kickoff following intermission.

Atlanta got its only points of the second half on a 36-yard fourth quarter field goal by Nick Mike-Mayer.

Vikings' running back Chuck Foreman, who left the game in the second quarter with an injured knee, caught two passes to set a team season reception record of 53. The old mark was 51, set by Paul Flatley 11 years ago.

Minnesota took a 10-7 halftime lead on a 10-yard first period scoring run by Osborn and a 21-yard Fred Cox field goal in the second quarter.

Leos nip C-M in consolation title contest

The Claremont - La Verne game was just as exciting and just as close as the final score indicates. The game was tied a total of 18 times.

The Stags, now 1-4 held a slim two-point lead at the half, 41-39. But with center Tim Gillette hitting his first three shots and guard Dave Castenada his first two, the Leopards forged out in front, 49-43.

The Leos (now 3-2) held a lead varying from two to six points until successive baskets by Ray Rotolo and reserve center Stu DuVall knotted it at 65-65 with 7:49 left in the game.

The game was tied for the last times at 67-67 and 69-69. Dave Willhite hit one of two free throws to put C-M ahead 70-69. The two teams exchanged one point leads until Dave Waterhouse fouled Carter with 2:36 left in the game.

Carter, in a one-and-one situation, sank two free throws to put the Leos ahead to stay, 75-74. La Verne then ran the clock down until Ron Kasdorf fouled Carter again with 25 seconds remaining. Again, Carter was equal to the task and made two free throws.

West roster completed for grid classic

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The West team for the Dec. 28 Shrine East-West football classic at Stanford Stadium was completed Saturday with the naming of ace Arizona running back Jim Upchurch, Iowa State's record-breaking kicker Tom Goedjen, four receivers and two linemen.

Bob Farr of the Air Force, Morris Owens of Arizona State, Wayne Hoffman of Oklahoma and Oscar Roan of Southern Methodist were the receivers picked to the 30-man squad and West player selection representative Pappy Waldorf completed naming of the team by picking offensive guards Al Simpson of Colorado State and Harvey Goodman of Colorado.

The addition of Upchurch to the backfield gives the West the potential for one of its most versatile and gifted offenses. Upchurch has rushed for more than 1,000 yards in each of the last two seasons and he joins such other running backs as Andrew Jones of Washington State, Mike Thomas of Nevada-Las Vegas and Willard Harrell of Pacific. Jim McMillan of Boise State is the backup quarterback.

Goedjan ended his collegiate career at Iowa State with 50 straight PATs. That helped him to the all-time scoring title in school history—79 extra points and 40 field goals for 199 points.

The West team: Steve Bartkowski, California, qb; Bob Farr, Air Force, wr; Harvey Goodman, Colorado,og; Tom Goedjan, Iowa State, k; Willard Harrell, Pacific, rb; Jeff Hart, Oregon State, ot; Wayne Hoffman, Oklahoma, te; Andrew Jones, Washington State, rb; Art Kuehn, UCCLA, c; Chris Mackie, California, og; Jim McMillan, Boise State, qb; Morris Owens, Arizona State, wr; Cecil Reece, Washington State, c; Oscar Roan, SMU, te; Al Simpson, Colorado State, og; Mike Thomas, Nevada-Las Vegas, rb; Jim Upchurch, Arizona, rb; Bob Breunig, Arizona State, lb; Skip Boyd, Washington, db-p; Fred Dean, Louisiana Tech, lb; Pat Donovan, Stanford, de; Monte Jackson, San Diego State, db; Gary Johnson, Grambling, dt; Fulton Kuykendall, UCLA, lb; Dave Pear, Washington, de; Rod Perry, Colorado, db; Tony Peters, Oklahoma, db; Gordon Riggel, Stanford, lb; Roger Stillwell, Stanford, de; Louie Wright, San Jose State, db.

Cowboys' hopes still alive

Staubach bombs Browns

IRVING, Tex. (UPI) — Roger Staubach threw three touchdown passes, Walt Garrison ran for two scores and the Dallas defense came up with four interceptions Saturday in a 41-17 crunching of Cleveland that preserved the Cowboys' modest hopes for a playoff spot.

Staubach hit Golden Richards with scoring throws of 35 and 43 yards only 68 seconds apart in the first quarter to give Dallas a quick lead.

Cleveland fought back to within three points at 20-17 early in the third period, but Dallas then put on a quick three touchdown blitz featuring runs of three and one yards by Garrison and a 42-yard touchdown pass from Staubach to Billy Joe Dupree.

Cleveland's Mike Phipps, starting his first game in six weeks, hit Steve Holden with a four-yard touchdown throw, Don Cockroft kicked a 28-yard field goal and Ken Brown ran for 12 yards for another Cleveland score.

Brown's touchdown run came on the opening drive of the second half and put Cleveland back in the contest.

But in quick order Dallas put the game away. After Brown scored, Dennis Morgan ran the kickoff back 43 yards and six plays later Garrison scored from the three.

Dallas scored again four minutes later when Staubach hit Dupree with back-to-back passes of 21 and 42 yards, the latter for a score.

The Cowboys took only 22 more seconds to score their third touchdown of the period. D. D. Lewis intercepted Phipps at the Browns' 27 and dashed back to the one, from where Garrison scored.

The victory boosted Dallas to an 8-5 mark, but to make the playoffs for the ninth consecutive year, the Cowboys must beat Oakland next week and Washington must lose its two remaining games to Los Angeles and Chicago. Cleveland, on the way to only its second losing season in history, is 4-9.

Staubach, who was knocked out of the Cowboys' last game against Washington, completed 14 of 24 passes for 230 yards, while Phipps suffered through an unfortunate afternoon.

Seaborne's heroics pace Webb to consolation title

Webb School copped the Pasadena Poly consolation title Saturday by downing Pacific Christian 52-30 at Poly High.

The Gauls used a stifling defense to limit Pacific to 13 points in the second half in the easy victory. Webb had gained the consolation finals by defeating Nelles School on Friday after a tourney-opening loss to Rio Hondo High.

Gaul Center Doug Seaborne once again led the Webb effort, pulling down 15 rebounds to go with a 14-point effort. Webb forward Wally Pitts also had 14 points, while Gaul guard Craig Young added 10.

Mickey McGuire was Pacific's top point man with only 10 points, as the losers from Los Angeles were outplayed by the hustling Gauls.

With the victory Webb pushes its season mark to 2-2. The Gauls will be in action again on Thursday as the Western Christian Tourney opens.

Garey matmen place fourth

Tommy Larry of the Vikings paced his team by winning the 138-pound title with three straight pins. Larry was voted co-Outstanding Wrestler of the meet for his fine showing.

Vikings Mario Olmos in the 95-poind class and Randy Dexter in the 103-pound division also nabbed first place medals.

In addition, Garey grapplers John Sergant (second at 175 pounds), Ishmael Templos (third in the 165-pound class) and Anthony Pasqualetto (third at 154 pounds) also were awarded medals in the eight-team event.

Santa Barbara surprises Wolfpack in soccer opener

The two teams battled on even terms until Guzman took a pass from Don teammate Rudy Ybarra and beat Jim Van Zee and Claremont goalie Casey Roberts for the winning goal.

The visiting Dons had a slight edge in shots on goal, 18 to 13 for the Pack, but Roberts kept the game score less until Guzman's shot.

The Claremont varsity will not return to action until Dec. 19 when the Pack hosts Torrance High.

Bobby Nichols to defend title at San Diego Open

By PHIL ROCHE
P-B Staff Writer

BOBBY NICHOLS is due to defend his title and the nation's leading pros to challenge him for a $170,000 purse when the eighth annual Andy Williams San Diego Open golf tournament is held at Torrey Pines golf course on Feb. 13-16.

The Open will be preceded on Feb. 12 by a $10,000 Pro-Am at north and south Torrey Pines courses and on Feb. 11 by a Celebrity-Amateur competition at Stardust Country Club.

Pros will play both north and south courses on the first two days of the Open as they have the past two years. Following the cut, action will be concentrated on the south course where a program of renovating all greens was concluded this year. The north is 6,667 yards, the south 7,047.

Nichols maintained a seven-year tradition of garrison finishes on Jan. 27, 1973 when he edged out Rod Curl on the final hole, the latter barely missing a putt that would have required a sudden-death playoff. Meanwhile, Gene Littler sneaked up on the leaders with a final round 66 to tie Curl for second, a stroke behind Nichols' 275. Miller Barber and Tom Watson tied for fourth at 278.

Previous winners of the AWSDO have been Tom Weiskopf, Jack Nicklaus, Pete Brown, George Archer, Paul Harney and Bob Dickson.

Among others expected to make a strong bid for the $34,000 top prize are Hubert Green, J.C. Snead, Dave Stockton, Hale Irwin, Jerry Heard, Brian Allin, Dave Hill, Bruce Crampton and Leonard Mahaffey, John Thompson, Ray Floyd, Jim Colbert, Al Geiberger, Forrest Fezler, Bill Casper, and Ben Crenshaw.

Tourney officials are hopeful their scenic and challenging seaside course, rated one of the world's finest municipal layouts, will lure the much-in-demand Johnny Miller, Jack Nicklaus and Lee Trevino.

A RECORD-BREAKING $722,521 has been distributed to 23 desert area charities by Ernie Dunlevie, president and tournament chairman of the 1974 Bob Hope Desert Classic.

It was the eighth consecutive year a record has been set for funds raised by the Hope Classic and allied activities.

The 15th annual tournament raised $677,289. This, coupled with proceeds from the Kemper International Desert Tennis Classic featuring the James Franciscus Pro-Celebrity, pushed the record total distributed to desert charities close to the three-quarter-million mark.

In recent years, the Hope Classic has raised more money for charity than any other event in American golf.

Mrs. Bob Hope, president of Eisenhower Medical Center, principal beneficiary of the tourney, accepted a check for $502,765, including $31,662 as its share from the Kemper-Franciscus tourney.

Like the golf Classic, the tennis tournament was also held under the direction of the Bob Hope Desert Classic and raised a total of $45,232 from the March 25-31 event played at Ironwood in Palm Desert.

The remaining $13,570 was allocated to the Foundation for Retarded Children of the Desert, which thus received $27,570 including its share from the non-profit Hope Classic.

The 16th annual Classic, whose new president is George K. Collins, will be played Feb. 5-9 at Bermuda Dunes, Indian Wells, La Quinta and Tamarisk Country Clubs NBC Sports will televise the finals at Bermuda Dunes, the 1975 host club.

THE DEPRESSED STATE of the nation's economy has caught up with the pro golf tour, too, and in 1975 the professionals will be playing for nearly $1 million less in purses than they did this year.

The PGA's Tournament Players Division announced its complete 1975 schedule, and it included 41 major tournaments, 10 satellite events, and total purses, including pro-ams, of just under $7.9 million. Total purses this year were about $8.7 million.

The schedule is two events shorter than this year's 43. The American Golf Classic won't be held in 1975 since the PGA Championship is being contested on its course at Firestone County Club in Akron, Ohio. And the Ohio-Kings Island Open on Jack Nicklaus' course near Cincinnati will be absent from next year's schedule since it otherwise would have been assigned dates opposite the Ryder Cup matches.

THE PRO-AM GOLF Association will play again at San Dimas Canyon on Sunday, Dec. 29. First tee-off times are scheduled for 10:30. Entry fee for the tournament is $25 for pros and $20 for amateurs.

THE NEXT AWAY golf tournament for members of Marshall Canyons Men's Club is at Fallbrook at 10 a.m. on Saturday, Jan. 4. The Seniors and Foursome Best ball tourney is scheduled for Saturday, Dec. 14. First tee-off is 10 a.m.

Eighty players of the 105 golfers who entered won turkeys at the November Turkey Shoot at San Dimas Canyon. The December tourney on Saturday, Dec. 21 will be "Two Clubs and a Putter."

REPLACING MIKE Phelan, who recently moved to Canada 26-year-old Norm Goodmanson has assumed the position of head pro at the Vista Valencia and Chica golf courses, located just south of Magic Mountain.

Formerly affiliated with Big Canyon Country Club in Newport Beach for a year and a half as first assistant, Goodmanson, who has written articles for some of the national magazines, has established residence with his wife Linda in Newberry Park.

EMPLOYEES of IMB will engage in their annual company golf tournament Thursday on the 7,000-yard Valencia course, located adjacent to Magic Mountain.

Slated as a shotgun-style tournament, more than 100 players are expected to participate in the event that will get under way at at 1:00 p.m.

National Football League roundup

Dolphins sweating it out

By United Press International

The World Champion Miami Dolphins, coming off their finest all-around performance of the season, are tied for first place in the American Conference East with just two games left to play.

But things aren't as rosy as they seem. The Dolphins are sweating out a playoff spot.

Under the National Football League playoff system, the three division champions and the team with the best runner-up record qualify for post-season play. Oakland is all set in the AFC West but the rest of the conference is still jumbled entering today's play.

Miami's 24-3 triumph over Cincinnati Monday night ousted the Bengals from wild card consideration but they could still overtake Pittsburgh for the division title. The Steelers lead by 1½ games and a loss to New England today and a Cincinnati victory over Detroit would set up a do-or-die showdown in Pittsburgh Saturday.

The AFC East shapes up this way. Miami and Buffalo are tied at 9-3. Buffalo already has clinched at least a wild card berth and Miami must win one of its last two games to make the playoffs. New England, at 7-5, is still in the picture and could make the playoffs if Miami loses to Baltimore today and then to the Patriots next Sunday.

That would leave Buffalo, which faces the New York Jets today, as the Eastern champion, New England the wild card and Miami very disturbed.

Should Miami and Buffalo win their last two games, the Dolphins would emerge as champions after beating the Bills twice and open the playoffs at Oakland. The Bills would take on the Pittsburgh-Cincinnati survivor of the Central champion's home field.

In the NFC, the East again is the muddled race. Los Angeles has clinched in the West and Minnesota in the Central. St. Louis, which is in the playoffs at 9-3, needs to beat New Orleans today and the New York Giants Sunday to win its first title in 25 years. Washington, a game behind would capture, the wild card by beating Los Angeles Monday night and Chicago next week.

Dallas, two games behind the Cardinals at 9-3, has a wild card chance if it can overtake the Redskins' one-game lead.

In the NFC, the Eastern champion will be at Minnesota and the wild card team at Los Angeles to open the playoffs. They are scheduled for Dec. 21-22, with the championship games set for Sunday, Dec. 29 and the Super Bowl for Jan. 12 in New Orleans.

The remainder of today's schedule has Houston at Denver, Oakland at Kansas City, Chicago at San Diego, Green Bay at San Francisco, Philadelphia at the Giants and St. Louis at New Orleans.

Rams may be looking at NFC wild card on Monday night

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The NFC West champion Los Angeles Rams, seeking to build up momentum going into the NFL playoffs, collide with ex-Ram coach George Allen's Washington Redskins Monday night in what may be an opening playoff game preview.

The Redskins, who trail St. Louis by one game with two to play in the NFC East, need a victory in their final two games to make the playoffs for the fourth consecutive year.

The Rams will host the NFC wild card team, which appears will be Washington, Dec. 22.

A Ram win in the final Monday night national TV game of the season would not necessarily wreck Washington's playoff chances.

Allen coached the Rams successfully for five seasons—1966 through 1970—before he was fired in a personality conflict with then Los Angeles owner Dan Reeves. Reeves died of cancer in 1971.

The Redskin coach gained a measure of revenge in '71 as Washington scored a 38-24 victory here and the following season rubbed salt in the Ram fans' wounds when he guided his club to the Super Bowl at the Coliseum where it lost to Miami 14-7. Washington's win eliminated Los Angeles from a possible playoff berth that year.

More than 80,000 fans are expected for the 6 p.m. PST contest, the first meeting of the clubs since Washington's win three years ago.

The Rams go into the game with a 9-3 record while the Redskins take an 8-4 mark into the contest. Los Angeles has allowed the least points in the NFL this season—144—compared to 179 given up by the Redskins.

Under Chuck Knox, the Rams have compiled a 12-0 home record during the last two years and they don't figure to ease off against Washington.

Los Angeles won its last two regular season games a year ago after clinching the NFC West title and clobbered Atlanta 30-7 last weekend with the championship under its belt.

Since taking over as the Rams' No. 1 quarterback from John Hadl, James Harris has directed the club to a 6-1 record. For the season, he's completed 92 of 168 passes for 1,308 yards and nine touchdowns.

Lawrence McCutcheon of the Rams is the NFC's leading rusher with 1,004 yards—his second straight 1,000-yard season—and seems a cinch to capture the conference rushing title. He holds a 234-yard lead over Chuck Foreman of Minnesota. McCutcheon also has caught 36 passes for 372 yeards.

Hobbled all season, Larry Brown will be back for Washington but Allen is expected to start controversial Duane Thomas at running back. Brown hasn't played the past two weeks because of a knee injury suffered in practice.

Bill Kilmer figures to open at quarterback for Washington over the ailing Sonny Jurgensen, who has been hampered by leg injuries.

Stolen base mark

The Angels set a club record for stolen bases in one season with 119 in 1974. During the final month they stole 34 in 28 games.

Ollie Matson Jr. chooses basketball

He said 'no' to N.D.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — With a name like Ollie Matson, he had to have athletic talent.

At Los Angeles' Daniel Murphy High School, the son of the Pro Football Hall of Famer was outstanding in football and basketball.

Ollie Matson Jr. narrowed "a drawer full of scholarship offers for college" to two—a football scholarship offer from Notre Dame and one for basketball from Pepperdine.

Surprisingly, Matson opted for basketball over football.

"I was going to go to Notre Dame with a friend of mine (Reynold Pattillo, also from Daniel Murphy, a member of the Notre Dame varsity this season) but I decided I wanted to stay in Southern California," he explained.

"I liked Pepperdine because it was a small school and I knew I'd get a chance to play right off. I didn't want to get lost in the shuffle."

Ollie Matson Sr., one of football's all-time great running backs who once was acquired in a trade by the Los Angeles Rams for eight players and a draft choice, told his 6-6, 200-pound son to go where he'd be the most happy.

"I may not start this season," said Matson, 18, "but I know I'm going to play a lot. I think I can help this team."

"He could be a super," said Pepperdine coach Gary Colson. "He's a real diamond in the rough. I don't think we'll start him all year but he's going to play 20 minutes or so a game.

"He has an arm span of 83½ inches and that makes him 6-9 or 6-10 out there. This also is the first year he's devoted himself entirely to one sport (Pepperdine has no football)."

A defensive end in football in high school, Matson suffered a dislocated shoulder in his team's third game and he was through for the year. But he averaged 24.4 points and 16.5 rebounds to lead his basketball team to a 17-10 record.

In high school, he had career highs of 40 points and 30 rebounds. As a prep senior, he was voted Daniel Murphy's Athlete of the Year.

Matson's dad is now an assistant football coach at San Diego State. The Aztecs had an 8-2-1 record this season.

"They (San Diego State) talked to me but I didn't give them that much thought because I thought that would put too much pressure on my father," young Matson offered.

The son admitted there were some drawbacks to having a famous football player for a dad.

"Coaches were always trying to make a running back out of me," he declared. "Well, I didn't want to be a running back. I always wanted to play defense. I like to hit people instead of being hit.

"But I had a lot of advantages other kids didn't have. I got to meet a lot of people a kid wouldn't normally get to meet. I got to hear a lot of inside things and I got to go a lot of places.

"My father never pushed me either. Most parents do push their kids into sports whether they're good or not. My father said I didn't have to play if I didn't want to. Of course, he encouraged me.

"But then he saw I had some potential and he was just telling me something for my own good.

"Oh, yes, needless to say, I'm very proud of my dad."

Poly cagers now can focus on basketball

Now that final quarter exams are over, Cal Poly can concentrate on basketball again.

The Broncos are in the midst of a two-week break because of the exams and coach Don Hogan is ready to get going again.

Poly, which doesn't play a home game until Jan. 10, will return to action next Friday and Saturday in the University of San Diego Tournament.

The Broncs open play at 7 p.m. Friday against USIU. Host USD will meet UC San Diego in the 9 p.m. contest. The third place and championship games are on Saturday.

Hogan has had time to think about the opening 83-80 loss to Biola.

"We're going to have to get better position on the boards to make up for our lack of height," he said in reviewing the game. "Most of the teams we play this year will have a height advantage on us. It'll take a little more on our part to overcome that problem."

Hogan is also counting on better shooting.

"I know we are a better shooting team than the 36 per cent effort we showed against Biola," he explained. "We didn't take the best shots on offense. That will come as the season progresses."

There were some bright signs in the loss.

One was the number of turnovers (30) caused by Poly's pressing tactics.

"I think this is the quickest team we've ever had here at Poly," Hogan said. "That quickness kept us in the game in the early going and brought us back from a 16-point deficit late in the game."

Individually, Hogan was pleased with the performance of junior forward Paul Newton, the team's only returning starter. Newton scored 16 points and grabbed 14 rebounds.

"I've said all along Paul could pay with anybody on our schedule this year," Hogan said.

Center Bill Cantwell, a transfer from Long Beach City College, led Poly in scoring with 20 points in the opener and grabbed eight rebounds.

Whatever happened to . . .

PAUL GETTY

. . . Paul Getty?

ROME (UPI) — He was a ninth-grade dropout who liked to hang around with photographers and painters. He posed in the nude for Italy's version of Playboy magazine and peddled home-made jewelry on the Spanish steps. He was always short of money.

But his grandfather was one of the world's richest men so J. Paul Getty III wasn't just another hippie. He was known as Rome's "golden hippie."

On a July night in 1973 Calabrian smugglers turned kidnapers to cash in on some of that gold.

They seized the 16-year-old Getty as he walked through Piazza Farnese and they held him for five months, demanding $17 million in ransom.

Billionaire oilman J.Paul Getty balked. He said that if he paid ransom for one grandchild his 14 other grandchildren might be kidnaped. Family sources wondered if the kidnaping might be a hoax on the boy's part.

Proof came in the mail. The kidnapers cut off young Getty's right ear and mailed it to a Rome newspaper. They also sent a picture of the boy without the ear.

They settled on a ransom of $2.9 million dollars, and two days after it was paid the kidnapers drove the boy from the Calabrian mountains to a country road near Lagonegro and set him free.

It took Paul Getty months to recover from the effects of the kidnaping. But today he has returned to the life of the golden but penniless hippie.

First he opened a public relations firm called "Firefly" with three partners in Rome, but it went broke in two months.

In September Getty, now 18, married his pregnant girlfriend, Marti no Zacher, a 26-year-old German divorcee. His age and his marriage qualified him for an income of $3,000 a month under terms of a Getty trust fund for each of the grandchildren. But his mother is trying to block payment until he is 21, claiming he is still incapable of handling money.

His latest plan, friends said, is to go back to the United States for the birth of his child around the end of this month.

. . . Andes survivors?

MONTEVIDEO (UPI) — Forty-five persons were aboard the Uruguayan military plane that crashed in the snowcovered Andes Oct. 13, 1972, en route to Santiago, Chile, for a rugby match.

Most of those aboard were young men, members of an amateur rugby team, the Old Christian Brothers of Montevideo, traveling with relatives and friends.

Despite the lack of food supplies or cold-weather gear, 16 members of the team survived 70 days in subfreezing temperatures and were rescued alive.

The survivors told their story to American author Piers Paul Reed, whose book "Alive!" hit best-seller lists around the world.

"I think that any other human being would have done what we did," says Roberto Canesa, now a third-year medical student. "We wanted to save our lives and probably the memory of our loved ones gave us more strength."

Canesa, tall and husky, acted as doctor to the stranded crash victims. He and another survivor, Fernando Parrado, finally found help by hiking 10 days through snow-covered peaks and valleys.

The pair recently finished an international tour describing their experiences in news conferences and television interviews.

Canesa said all 16 survivors are now leading completely normal lives in Uruguay. He laughed as he recalled that the question he is most often asked is "whether we have constant nightmares."

Four of his companions — Jose Luis Inciarte, Alfredo Delgado, Pedro Algorta and Alvaro Mangino —have married since their Andean experience, Canesa said.

Seven of the survivors are now working with farmers as university agricultural experts, one is in industry, another recently received his law degree and the remainder are finishing their university studies.

Mood of America

Wall Street's smaller investors are angry

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mrs. Marie Wainwright, of Orlando, Fla., has been in the stock market since 1929—her first job was with a brokerage. She's not about to get out now, but she is "hot under the collar" about the ways of Wall Street.

A native of Pittsburgh, Mrs. Wainwright spent most of her working years in New York, moving to Florida five years ago. Retired this year from a secretarial career, she lives on $650 a month—social security plus the income from a small, conservative portfolio. "I put it together myself. I was divorced 40 years ago—raised a son, an engineer."

Of her investments she said, "I'm in good, solid companies. If they don't last, what will? I'm not hurting. I don't have to sell. I had $40 increased dividend income for the September quarter. I'm used to managing.

"I'm not under the collar, though. The small investor can't get good investment advice. I should have quit work when I came to Florida five years ago, sold my stocks, paid the capital gains and reinvested in bonds or certificates of deposit. I'd be flying high. I've lost three times as much in the market as I earned by working."

Dr. Martin Kaplan, a Briarcliff, N.Y., dentist, got into the market when he left the service in 1963. "In those days," he said, "anything was good. You'd hit two out of three." Sitting on $50,000 to $60,000 of paper losses, he's not about to get out of the market either, but he's "pretty bitter about my experiences with the brokers. When I do go back, it won't be with brokerage advice.

"The small guy gets taken for a ride by the brokers. Don't talk about investment advice. They never tell you when to get out. It's not just the salesmen; many of them were as much in the dark as I was."

Michael Fortanasce, Elmont, N.Y., a teletype operator, has raised four children. He has seen a daughter through college, a son through medical school. In 1962 he went into a mutual fund that "was supposed to provide $10,000 to pay dental school tuition for a second son." Faced with soaring college tuition and a falling market, he sold at a $2,500 loss in 1972. He still has $1,800 in one stock, now worth one-sixth that. He says, "It's paying dividends, 10 per cent on the reduced value."

Soon to retire, Fortanasce will sell his house, using at least half the proceeds for the big dental school tuition he still faces. Concluding the stock market is "no place for a little guy—the institutions run it," Fortanasce philosophized, "I'd rather be lucky with my kids than lucky in Wall Street."

These comments indicate the small investor, reflecting on the stock market at the depth of a six-year roller coaster, is committed still to the capitalist system, to the companies whose shares he holds, although some are disillusioned over their treatment at the hands of "Wall Street"—the men who administer the system.

All kinds of small, and not so small, investors have been hurt on the see-saw on which the Dow industrial average has bounced from 985 on Dec. 3, 1968 to 631 on May 26, 1970, climbed back to an all-time high 1,051 on Jan. 11, 1973, plunged to a 12-year low of 584.56 on Oct. 4 this year, recovered nearly 100 points and then turned down again.

It is chiefly those who have found it necessary to liquidate who have been hurt so far. Dividend income has been cut for some, but most have seen their dividends hold up and even increase.

Some retirees, sold on the idea of variable annuities tied to stock values as a hedge against the hazards of fixed retirement income, have seen their pension checks shrink monthly.

There are, too, all the folks locked into investments they would like to sell but can't afford to.

Of the record 32.5 million individual investors who owned their own share of America in 1972, at least 1.6 million, more by many estimates, have deserted the marketplace entirely. Many of the others are inactive, leaving the institutions to do perhaps 70 per cent of the dollar volume of trading today.

What will it take to get the small investor back into the market? Should he get back into the market?

Ray Garrett, Jr., chairman of the Securities & Exchange Commission, predicted recently it will be hard to get individuals back. "I'm sure," he said, "many people were oversold by brokers five or six years ago. This leads to disillusionment."

A. A. Sommer, Jr., an SEC commissioner, in a recent speech raised the question of the individual investor and whether he will get a "fair shake" when he returns.

He suggested "as starters...the need for raising the standards of conduct and performance" of people in the investment profession.

This question was raised more personally by Gregory Esposito of Buckner, Ky., formerly an account executive with a Wall Street brokerage. Esposito, now a construction company executive, got out of Wall Street in April, 1972.

"I made my decision in the fall of 1971," he said, "because the system would not allow me to do the job I should have done and be successful. The motivation and incentives are wrong. There is conflict of interest.

"The individual generally must rely on the judgment of others. The individual never has been given preferred treatment or advice. The men who handled individual investors' accounts were not given the advice."

Esposito said there is built-in conflict of interest in commissions as the form of remuneration.

"Instead," he suggested, "remuneration should be based on size or performance of portfolio; anything so that a salesman's income is not dependent on the amount of trading he generates.

"Institutional accounts can't keep Wall Street healthy. The market needs the individual investor. Wall Street must figure out a way to treat the individual fairly if it is to survive."

Wall Street Briefs

The Dines Letter says the current market has hit only a temporary bottom and not a solid bottom. "The bear will return in 1975 in full force and fury," it predicts. "If the stock market caves in from here, and especially if it makes a new low," the letter adds, "sell out immediately."

Market ends at lowest in 12 years

By FRANK W. SLUSSER
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market reeled this week under the onslaught of recession news—plant closings, surging unemployment, declining consumer credit demand, lagging retail sales—and closed at its lowest level in 12 years.

The Dow Jones industrial average plunged 41.06 points to 577.60, its lowest level since it finished at 569.02 on Oct. 26, 1962 during the Cuban crisis. Its previous low this year was 584.56 on Oct. 4.

The closely watched average of 30 selected blue-chip stocks went into a slide after the Labor Department reported the November jobless rate soared to 6.5 per cent from October's 6 per cent, its highest level in 13 years. The 0.5 per cent jump was the largest monthly rise since December, 1960. A Labor Department spokesman predicted another rise in the unemployment rate this month.

"The unemployment figures had a tremendous emotional impact on the market," Monte Gordon, vice president of Dreyfus Corp., said.

They affected other averages, which closed sharply lower this week. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index loss 4.95 to 65.01 The New York Stock Exchange common stock index lost 2.68 to 34.45.

The number of stocks declining in price routed those advancing, 1,692 to 175, among the 1,996 issues crossing the tape.

Volume totaled 65,731,110 shares, compared with 47,107,570 shares for the four sessions last Thanksgiving week and 102,622,800 in the corresponding week a year ago. The heaviest trading was Friday when the unemployment figures were released and numerous firms announced plant closings and layoffs.

"With the market caught in this whirlpool of terrible news," Gordon said, "we need more forceful fiscal and monetary action in Washington." The White House said President Ford would announce a new energy program in his State-of-the Union address, but did not elaborate.

Wall Street was making similarly depressing statements two months ago when the market reached its previous low. The week after that, Ford announced his economic program —which included a 5 per cent surtax, some incentives for business and voluntary proposals to reduce oil consumption by one million barrels a day — and the oversold market took off for its best weekly gain in history. The action prompted considerable speculation the bear market had reached a bottom.

But Congress has done little with the program and the problems remain almost the same. Many observers were disappointed Ford offered no new incentives in his news conference Monday night, when he said he would stick to his economic plans.

Some of the President's advisers have said they thought some mandatory controls were needed, but Ford thought otherwise. Treasury Secretary William Simon said he thought a tax cut would be among the options which would be sent to the President for consideration. But the White House said no such option would reach his desk.

Oil exploration

Independent's woes

TULSA, OKLA. (UPI) — The giants of the oil industry play only minor roles in the discovery and recovery of America's domestic oil.

The bulk of the work, more than 75 per cent, is now and has always been done by independents like E.A. Smith, who brought in his first two wells in 1928. Smith, now 79, is board chairman of Service Drilling Co. of Tulsa, and still an independent after 61 years in the industry.

Statistically, the independent is in an impossible business. The odds are 50-to-1 against him.

On the average, one of every 50 wells drilled produces enough oil to make it worthwhile, and 40 of those drilled are dry holes. It would take an independent more than three years and $30 million to do all that before he sold a drop of oil.

"I don't know of any independent who could stand a load like that, but those are the figures," Smith says. "What we try to do is get down to the minimum of exploratory wells to get a pool. The average is so high because it's a hazardous business and so many don't succeed."

The number of active independents is only 10 per cent of what it was 20 years ago. Smith sees even those few being forced out by congressional threats to the oil depletion allowance and roll back of domestic prices, already considerably below what foreign producers charge, because of "windfall profits."

"You only earn about an 8 per cent return on your investment, so where's the windfall profit?" Smith says. "You can get 11 per cent on certificates of deposit and have no risk —but if everybody did that we'd all be hungry, wouldn't we?"

The depletion allowance, which exempts a percentage of the net profit from taxation, has been the lifeblood of the independent, Smith says, enabling him to encourage investments in his operations.

"If it hadn't been for the depletion allowance, a lot of independants would never have started," he says. "Elimination of the depletion allowance would make this industry go flat and the cost would go up to the consumers.

"The independent just couldn't stay. That would leave only the majors, which is what everybody is complaining about in the first place. The majors can't do it as cheaply as we can, so the price of oil would go right on up."

Chorale to present Christmas concerts

The San Gabriel Valley Philharmonia Chorale will present a Christmas concert at the Covina Women's Club, 128 S. San Jose Ave., at 8 p.m. Tuesday. Thomas Schultz directs.

The concert will be repeated at the Iglesia Presbyterian, Second and A streets, La Verne, at 5:30 p.m. next Sunday.

The program will include the Christmas portion of Handel's "Messiah" and a selection of carols.

Schultz will be the tenor soloist in "Messiah," with sporano Ellen Antal, alto Jeanne Kolasick and bass John Roberts. Annette Lyford will sing "I Wonder as I Wander," Miss Kolasick will solo in "Carol of the Mother," Robert Krider will take the solo in "Cherry Tree Carol" and Loretta Nichols in "Come Unto Him."

Admission is by freewill donation.

HANK GARCIA, new Mexican-American comedy find, will perform with Vikki Carr in a program at the Pavilion of the Los Angeles Music Center Dec. 26 through New Year's Day. Also on the bill are the Stan Farber Singers and the Bob Florence Orchestra.

ROYAL DANCERS—Judith Aaen as the Queen of the Snowflakes and Anthony Sellars as the Snow Prince are the principal dancers of the Pacific Ballet Theater production of "The Nutcracker." The complete ballet will be presented in Bridges Auditorium of the Claremont Colleges at 7:30 Friday night. Choreography is by Andrei Tremaine.

At Bridges Auditorium

Pacific Ballet Theater to do 'The Nutcracker'

The Pacific Ballet Theater will present the complete ballet, "The Nutcracker," in Bridges Auditorium of the Claremont Colleges at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

"The Nutcracker," a classic ballet in two acts and three scenes, will have the music of Peter Ilich Tschaikowsky and the choreography of Andrei Tremaine, artistic director of Pacific Ballet Theater. Sets are by Palmer Schoppe and Howard Furtow, with costumes by Aleta Davis.

Principal dancers are Judith Aaen as Queen of the Snowflakes and Anthony Sellars as the Snow Prince. Miss Aaen, a native Californian, made her professional debut with the New York City Ballet in Balanchine's production of his "Serenade" at the Los Angeles Greek Theater. She has been prima ballerina with the Vladimir Oukhtomsky Repertory Company and principal dancer with the Houston Ballet. There she met Sellars, principal male dancer and her future husband.

Sellars, born in Los Angeles, made his debut with the New York City Ballet dancing the role of the Nutcracker Prince. Sellars has made many major television appearances including the role of Hansel in the NBC television special "Hansel and Gretel."

Tickets are available at the box office and Mutual and Liberty agencies. Telephone orders are available at 626-4523 with either a Master Charge or BankAmericard.

Move over, Barbra

Pop singer a hit in concert halls

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Last summer, I went to the Hollywood Bowl to see Hank Mancini. He was great, as always, but I came away captivated by his costar that night. Before then, I had never even heard of Cleo Laine.

She is, very possibly, the greatest pop singer in the world. She can do things with her voice that make Barbra Streisand sound like a rusty hinge. She is utterly thrilling.

I made a point to see her again, on her next West Coast visit, and to spend some time with her. She and her husband, John Dankworth, who is a brilliant musician and her conductor, were on a whirlwind visit, but gave me some time.

Cleo Laine is a gracious, beautiful woman. Her father is a Jamaican, her mother "an English lady." Her real name is Clementina Campbell, but when she started her career, her husband thought that was too long for a marquee.

"I'd always been called Clem," she says, "so we changed that to Cleo and found Laine somewhere. It's been a lucky name."

She has only recently—late 1972—tried her wings in the U.S. Well-established in England, she had enough there, with her career, her home, her two children.

"Besides," she says, "I didn't want to come here and just be another singer. I didn't necessarily want to be better, but I certainly wanted to be different."

So, she waited, she says, until she had "eliminated all the influences" on her. Now, she feels, she is herself and has a recognizable style.

She and John both felt that she should start her American career in the concert field.

"I didn't want to be a cabaret singer," she says.

So, she began at Carnegie Hall, which automatically set her apart. And that's precisely where she belongs—apart.

CLEO LAINE

"When you roll a stone down a hill," John Dankworth says, "you don't always get an avalanche. We've rolled the stone down. Now we'll have to see what happens. In a year, we could be so big, we'd have to spend all our time here."

Rhoda

Valerie wants job, gets stardom

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "All I wanted to do was work steady," said Valerie Harper, stunned at having the most popular new show on television.

"I never dreamed anything like this would happen. After all, stardom is for the stars — Rita Hayworth, Lana Turner."

Valerie was in her trailer dressing room alongside Stage 14 at CBS Studio Center. She had no eye makeup on. Her hair was hidden under a bandana. She wore slacks and a sweater which outlined a generous bosom.

She didn't look as good as Rhoda Morgenstern, and yet she looked better because Valerie was just being herself.

Audiences have taken Rhoda to their hearts. But one suspects they would be fonder of the actress who plays the role. She is as honest and outspoken as Rhoda, but a touch more sensitive and considerably brighter.

"I was satisfied on 'The Mary Tyler Moore Show,'" Valerie went on. "It wasn't my idea for Rhoda to branch out on her own.

"When Mary and Grant (Grant Tinker, Mary's producer-husband) told me 'Rhoda' would be going on the air this year I wanted to wait another season.

"Mary told me she felt like a parent sending a child out into the world. How does she imagine I felt?"

Valerie is playing anyone but herself when she characterizes Rhoda. She says, as a matter of fact, "I love Rhoda and I wouldn't mind being her.

"She has a great sense of humor. My own humor has changed and improved since I began playing Rhoda."

Rhoda is a New Yorker, Jewish and compassionate. Valerie has lived all over the country, is non-Jewish and compassionate. In private life Valerie is married to actor-writer Dick Schaal.

The move from Minneapolis back to New York and her subsequent marriage on the show cannot have been more traumatic for Rhoda than soaring stardom for Valerie.

"My life will never be the same again," Valerie said. "Now I've got a secretary and a housekeeper. I never had either one before.

"And my days just seem to fly by at work because I'm in every scene.

"Dick and I went clothes shopping together the other day and for the first time in our lives we literally didn't look at the price tags.

"But I'm still middle class. I guess I always will be because I sort of approximated the cost of everything I bought even though I didn't glance at the price tags."

Fortunately for her nervous system Valerie was so busy preparing her new series, working in one episode after the other during the summer, she didn't have time to think of the consequences.

"It didn't occur to me to worry about the public response to my series," she said, "until the first show actually went on the air.

"I kept telling myself if 'Rhoda' bombed I could always go back to 'The Mary Tyler Moore Show.' Or I could get work playing in stock companies or something like that.

"But I feel more secure about it now. The ratings have been wonderful and the new cast is terrific. But I still can't think of myself as a star. I don't think I ever will."

Bit Parts: Barbra Streisand's "Funny Lady" will have its world premiere at the Kennedy Center in Washington March 9 ... Twentieth Century-Fox will convert Marineland of the Pacific into a "Winter Wonderland" during the holiday season with machine-made snow ... Universal Studios acquired film rights to "Sidney and the Werewolf's Widow."

DREAM WORLD — Valerie Harper, star of CBS Television's popular Rhoda series, is starry-eyed over her new stardom. "All I wanted to do was work steady," she says. Now, as star of the comedy blockbuster, she no longer looks at price tags while shopping.

One glazed eye OK, but not 2; man was drunk

LONDON (UPI) — The policeman testified that he had arrested Hugh Henry because "he was unsteady on his feet, his breath smelled of alcohol and his eyes were glazed."

Whereupon Henry, removing his one glass eye and holding it aloft, explained to the court that "it was bound to be glazed."

"The other one was glazed, too," said constable John Osborne.

Ruled the judge: three months suspended sentence for drunkenness for Henry, 40. It happened at Thames court Tuesday.

Is the curtain coming down on big Broadway musicals?

By FREDERICK M. WINSHIP

NEW YORK (UPI) — Inflation has put the big Broadway musical out of business, according to composer-lyricist Jerry Herman of "Mame" and "Hello, Dolly!" fame.

"I'm glad I was here for part of the big musical era," Herman said as he began a year's leave-of-absence following the successful launching of his "Mack and Mabel" this season. The musical, based on the love affair of silent film director Mack Sennett and actress Mabel Normand, may be one of the last of a theatrical form perfected in the late 1930s.

"There will be nothing but small musicals on Broadway for at least the next five years —shows with casts of 20 or less and no chorus. You have to spend over $1 million now to produce a big show, so there's no way. The economic problem of the musical is wildly out of control. You just have to stop and say 'there must be some other way'."

If the other way is intimate chamber musicals, Herman is having nothing to do with them, at least for the moment.

"I won't fit in because right now I don't want to," he said in an interview in his Greenwich Village home, a converted carriage house previously owned by playwright Edward Albee and actor Maurice Evans. "I love the Broadway musical, as I know it, too much. I'd rather do a musical film that has some of the same values."

The slight 41-year-old native New Yorker, the only composer-lyricist ever to have three musicals on Broadway simultaneously (1969), admits he was disappointed in the Hollywood versions of "Dolly" and "Mame". The musicals were designed as "theatrical confections" and lost their stylization in realistic film translation, he said.

"I'd like to conceive a screen musical just for film as Bob Fosse conceived 'Cabaret'," he said. "It wouldn't matter if it was an original plot or taken from a novel as long as the concept is right for the camera. I've talked about a few things with producers, but right now I just want a year's vacation."

Herman's early musical studies were encouraged by his singer-pianist mother. His career since he began writing high school theatricals has had only one deviation. He thought he might become an interior decorator and attended the Parsons School of Design for a year. But he changed his mind when a friend interested a publisher in one of his songs.

He wrote his first musical at the University of Miami, where he received a degree in drama. The success of three off-Broadway revues led to a Broadway flop, "Madame Aphrodite" and then to a smasheroo, "Milk and Honey", in 1961. "Dolly", "Mame", and "Dear World" followed.

Unlike musical comedy's only other stellar composer-lyricist, Stephen Sondheim, Herman has never collaborated with another composer or lyricist.

"I really am a song writer and think in terms of total song," he explained. "I've had invitations to collaborate, but I know I wouldn't be very successful. You know, it's nice to get along with your collaborator and I like mine."

At Lang Gallery

Scripps shows work of six sculptors

The work of six young Southern California sculptors will go on exhibition Tuesday at the Lang Art Gallery, Scripps College.

The public is invited to view the exhibit free of charge from 1 to 5 p.m. daily through Jan. 25. The galleries will be closed during the Christmas holidays, Dec. 21 to Jan. 5.

The six vastly different approaches to sculpture present a lesson in the diversity of contemporary trends and techniques. All use non-traditional materials. Sandra Beek, a Cal State Long Beach graduate, shows a monumental sculptural environment, a deep relief 34 feet long formed with polyurethane foam.

Gary Beydler, a UC Irvine graduate, combines drawing with real objects, playing with space and illusions of space in a way sculptors confined to three dimensionality cannot.

Susan Titleman, a graduate of UCLA, reveals a taste for color, texture, shadow and light in her ceramic sculpture.

Two Claremont Graduate School artists are represented in the exhibit. Michael Cochran reinterprets everyday objects such as an anvil, a country mailbox or a telephone by recreating them in transparent plexiglas. Sometimes words or phrases accompany the objects imbuing them with suggested meaning. One work shows a cluster of eggs, one of them broken, in a plexiglas box, the top of which is ripped open.

Marsia Alexander is also a CGS graduate. Her pieces, made of rolled paper tubing and hand dyed textiles, suggest ancient Indian objects.

Van Romans, a USC graduate, shapes space with plastic sheeting and flourescent tubing. The lit tubes act as battens and spreaders for the suspended and draped sheeting which splinters, diminishes and diffuses the light. Preparatory drawings accompany the work.

Unlike traditional sculpture which often rests isolated on a pedestal, many of these works cling to walls and floor for support and meaning.

FEATURED SOLOIST — Zvi Zeitlin, Russian-born, Israeli-raised violinist, will play Schoenberg's Violin Concerto with the Los Angeles Philharmonic in the Pavilion of the Los Angeles Music Center at 8:30 p.m. Thursday, 1:30 p.m. Friday and 3 p.m. next Sunday. James Levine conducts. Also on the program are Brahms' Symphony No. 1 and Bach's Suite No. 2 in B Minor for Flute and Strings.

Max Bill

County museum to show works by Swiss artist

A comprehensive exhibition of painting, sculpture and graphics by contemporary Swiss artist Max Bill will go on view Dec. 19 at the county Museum of Art in Los Angeles. It will continue through Feb. 16.

Composed of over 100 examples of the 66-year-old abstract artist's work the exhibition, according to the museum's curator of modern art Jane Livingston, will provide a comprehensive view of 20th Century art more sweeping than is ordinarily possible with the work of a single artist.

Originated by the Albright-Knox Gallery in Buffalo, New York, the Bill exhibition is the first comprehensive presentation of his work in the United States. A majority of the works being shown in Los Angeles, including several monumental sculptures in stone or marble, had never been seen in this country prior to the Buffalo showing.

Bill's career spans the evolution of European culture from the Weimar Republic to the present. Active as an architect, urban planner, product designer, typographer, teacher, theoretician and politician as well as an artist, he has played a central role in creating and defining this evolution. Although the exhibition concentrates on Bill the sculptor, painter and graphic artist, it ranges across this entire 50-year period.

Bill was born in Winterthur, Switzerland, in 1908. In the late '20s he participated in the historic Bauhaus in Dessau, Germany. In the '30s Bill continued to work in his diversified exploratory manner, making important contacts with most of the major artists of the time, including Mondrian, Vantongerloo and Giacometti. In the '40s and '50s he continued primarily to evolve his abstract, mathematically inspired vocabulary of forms, engaging periodically in Bauhaus-type design problems as well. In the '60s, when important abstract sculpture had shifted its arena to the United States, Bill's systematically formulated geometric forms — often serialized in various materials and scales — were among the most relevant of any European artist. The exhibition illustrates many of these recurring themes, such as several manifestations in stone and metal of the mobius strip. A 1971 gold-plated sculpture, based on this mathematical configuration, was recently acquired by the museum for its permanent collection.

Following the Los Angeles showing, the exhibition will travel to the San Francisco Museum of Art.

Hours for the exhibition are Tuesday through Friday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and weekends 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Admission is $1, students and senior citizens 50 cents. Free guided Docent tours are offered Tuesday through Sunday at 1 p.m.

Russian stars to perform at Auditorium

Valery and Galina Panov, formerly with the Leningrad-Kirov Ballet, will dance at Shrine Auditorium Saturday evening, Jan. 4 and Sunday afternoon, Jan. 5.

The two artists caused international attention in their quest to leave the Soviet Union and finally were granted permission to emigrate to Israel. In a limited tour of the United States which begins in Philadelphia Tuesday, the dancers are offering their talent to American audiences in gratitude to the countless voices raised on their behalf.

In a program to be announced, the dancers will be seen in selected solos and pas de deux and will be accompanied by full symphony orchestra conducted by Robert Zeller.

Tickets for the Panov performances, presented in cooperation with the Jewish Federation Council of Greater Los Angeles, are available by Mail order. Prices are $15, $12.50, $8 and $6. Tickets may be ordered at Panov Concerts, Suite 722, 427 W. Fifth St., Los Angeles 90013.

STAINED GLASS ARTIST—Jane Marquis, shown working on a leaded stained glass panel in her Claremont studio, will give a talk and a demonstration of her art at a meeting of the Chaffey Community Art Association at the Chaffey Communities Cultural Center Museum in Upland at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

Chaffey art group slates lecture on stained glass

The ancient art of making stained glass will be reviewed and demonstrated by Claremont artist Jane Marquis at a meeting of the Chaffey Community Art Association at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Chaffey Communities Cultural Center Museum, 523 W. 18th St., Upland. The meeting is open to the public.

Mrs. Marquis specializes in glass art in her Claremont working studio. She will give a demonstration of the step-by-step procedure of making a leaded stain glass panel and also show slides.

Mrs. Marquis studied with Joseph Albers at Black Mountain College, N.C., and has had her works published in Architecture West, Glass-Art, and House Beautiful.

She has exhibited at Cerritos College, Pitzer College, The Egg and the Eye Gallery, and the Pasadena Design 11 Show. She designed 12 windows depicting the 12 Tribes of Israel for Rodef Sholem Synagogue in San Rafael.

Dinner theater proving tasty

By ELLIE GROSSMAN

NEW YORK — (NEA) — They were doing it in Shakespeare's day. Cracking nuts, guzzling ale and eating apples while, on stage, Hamlet brooded and King Lear worried about his daughters.

The penny audience at the Globe Theater didn't know it then, but it was attending a dinner theater.

Today's audience knows it and appreciates it.

"People are looking for a new form of entertainment, that's why dinner theaters are popular," says Vincent Sardi, owner of the famed Sardi's and the recently opened Vincent Sardi Dinner Theater on Long Island.

"Also," he says, citing inflation, "they know what they're going to pay."

For just about $15 including tax and tip, Sardi says, a couple gets free parking, a choice of hot and cold dishes served buffet style, and "Hello, Dolly!" to boot.

(That's without liquor, however, and, as any dinner theater proprietor will tell you with some nudging, the highest margin of profit in a dinner theater is the liquor sale and the price of liquor is not included in the ticket.)

The dinner theater industry, reportedly valued at $150 million this year alone, consists of 79 Actors' Equity-franchised dinner theaters across the country (in addition to countless non-Equity dinner theaters), and the number will probably increase.

"Every time one dinner theater goes out of business (an estimated one out of three a year), two more crop up," says Actor's Equity representative Willard Swire.

"They're doing well in respect to the economy, although not as well as last year. Still, roughly 500 Equity actors work per week in dinner theaters out of a paid membership of 14,000. That's the same number that works on Broadway."

Generally, those actors work in whatever has proven popular in the past—musicals such as "The Boyfriend" and "South Pacific," and comedies like "Forty Carats" and "Any Wednesday."

The audience is the same audience that watches television. Consequently, personalities such as Arte Johnson, Vivian Vance, Mickey Rooney and Van Johnson are in demand.

"We only follow the star system to attract the people," explains Don Crute, president of Dinner Theaters, Inc., which owns four dinner theaters in Texas, Florida and Ohio. "They've got to have some sort of inducement, not just the play."

But last year, the Hayloft Dinner Theater in Manassas, Virginia, a suburb of Washington, D.C., took a chance and presented "The Lion in Winter," with gratifying results.

"We did 85 per cent capacity business, seven days a week," reports owner-manager Frank Matthews.

"I don't think you necessarily have to do the ordinary shows. I read 150 plays a year. I read 'Lion in Winter,' liked it and decided to do it."

Cash Baxter agrees. He owns the Coachlight Dinner Theater in Hartford, Conn. It is, he says, "the most financially successful dinner theater in the history of dinner theater."

"While I honor the sure-fire formula of comedies and musicals," Baxter says, "I feel when the theater loses its element of surprise, it ceases to function as theater. Why not feature a melodrama or a good solid play or try original material? Why can't you challenge and expand an audience?"

In the Parkway Casino Dinner Theater in Tuckahoe, N.Y., Baxter's new enterprise, he's "toying with the idea of doing Shakespeare.

"We're going to see just how far dinner theater can go," he says.

Eventually, he hopes it will go straight into the Hilton.

"I'm talking to Hilton Hotels on the coast right now, with regard to utilizing banquet rooms for dinner theaters. They sit there empty between conventions. Why not make use of them?"

And finally, how about an honest to goodness TV dinner?

Art group plans second crafts show

Because Saturday's arts and crafts show and sale by the Heights Art Association was so successful, the group will hold another one next Saturday.

Oils, acrylics and watercolors will be on exhibit and sale at the Patio Shop, Hacienda Boulevard and Newton Avenue, Hacienda Heights from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Low prices will be asked for both framed and unframed works.

At Montgomery Art Gallery

Colleges showing works from collections

Selections from the permanent collections of Pomona and Scripps colleges are on exhibit till Jan. 22 at the Montgomery Art Gallery, Pomona College.

The exhibition features many of the new acquisitions of 1974, including a number of fine ivory sculptures dating from the 16th to the 20th centuries given to Pomona College by Dr. and Mrs. Walter Mosher. One of the treasures of the Mosher collection is a three-foot hexagonal plaque from the court of the 16th Century Germany Emperor, Maximillian, which was formerly in the J.P. Morgan collection. Another exceptional piece is a large 16th Century French sculpture of Diana, the goddess of the hunt.

The exhibition is arranged in chronological groups. A 16th Century selection includes the ivories and several Italian paintings, two drawings and several chiaroscuro woodcuts. The 17th Century is presented by several engravings by Rembrandt, Callot, and a painting by Salvator Rosa.

A selection of prints by Jongkind, Meissonier, Whistler, Homer and the Italian artist, Fortuny, forms the nucleus of a 19th Century group which also includes several elaborate Victorian ivory tankards and delicate French ivory figurines from the Mosher collection.

The 20th Century selection includes a painting by De Chirico, prints by Picasso, a drawing by Gorky, three contemporary prints purchased recently with funds given by the Rembrandt Club, an anonymous donor and the National Endowment for the Arts, and several examples of contemporary ceramics donated to Scripps College.

The exhibition also includes a selection of Oriental art including scrolls, some Japanese woodcuts from the Johnson Collection and several fine pieces of Chinese cloisonne from the Dorothy Adler Routh collection. All of the Oriental objects are from the Scripps collection.

Montgomery Gallery is open 1-5 p.m. daily. Admission is free. The gallery will be closed during the colleges' recess Dec. 21-Jan. 6.

Citrus College theater to offer original play

"Escort Tonight," an original play by Ron Monello, Citrus College theater arts major, will be presented in the La Theater Thursday through next Sunday and Dec. 19-21.

Monello has had acting roles in college productions of "Boys in the Band," "Picnic" and "The Crucible." "Escort Tonight" marks his initial attempt at playwriting. Drama instructor Mrs. Jac O'Rourke, will direct.

The play, recommended for mature audiences only, has been entered in the American College Theater Festival, which will hold finals in March, at the John F. Kennedy Center of Performing Arts in Washington, D.C.

Information on tickets and time of performances, can be obtained from Frederic Carlson, drama department chairman, or Mrs. O'Rourke at Citrus College, (213) 335-0521, ext. 259.

Old Dog Tray

The forerunner of the dog as a house pet is believed to be the Asiatic wolf, first brought under human control between 11,000 B.C. and 8,000 B.C.

Annual home tour

Guests will visit valley homes

Outstanding homes located in the Ganesha Hills of Pomona have been selected for viewing for the third annual Christmas home tour planned by Pomona Valley Branch, American Association of University Women on Saturday afternoon.

Because the homes are close to one another, it will be convenient for guests to park on one parking lot at Los Robles and Hillcrest and walk to all of the homes.

The tri-level home of Mr. and Mrs. Kurt Guehr on Hillcrest Drive features high beamed ceilings and spectacular view of Pomona Valley. The John Sievers home is unique in its furnishings and painted wall murals. Another home on display, owned by the Raymond Youngquists, possesses distinctive collections from Europe.

At the fourth home, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Noonan, former President Richard Nixon was once a guest, and last summer, the then Vice President Ford was greeted there at a reception.

Miss Erin Mulcahy is chairman for the home tour and members of her general committee are Mmes. Keith Brown, J. C. Menees, George MacKenzie and David Orr.

Tea will be served at the Sievers home. Miss Florence Christensen is chairman for the tea and will be assisted by Mrs. Dennis Dalsimer and Mrs. John L. Whitham.

Handicrafts, potted plants and food will be on display at the Noonan home. In charge of these arrangements are Mrs. George MacKenzie, Mrs. David Orr and Mrs. Duncan H. Douglas.

Mrs. John Mason is chairman of the hostess committee.

Greeting guests at the homes will be Mmes. Denton Horner, L. Wesley Gaddis, Lester Pollock, U.J. Morris, T.W. Scott, David Orr, V. F. Mistretta, Frank Howell, Ellis Jenkins, Morgan Sly, Hugh Folkins, Stanley Adams, Marvin Long, Kenneth F. Kirkpatrick, Donald Roberts, G.W. Willmore, Albert Sutton, George MacKenzie, Theodore W. Swartz, D.V. Jones, Margaret Womack, Virginia Coffey and Misses Lisabeth Romspert, Mary Daniels, Lois Swanson, Lynn Piatt and Helen Gipson.

Mrs. Coffey, Mrs. Albert Sutton and Mrs. Jones are in charge of publicity. Tickets may be obtained by calling 984-8454 or 593-0141. Tickets will also be available at each home on the tour.

Funds from the home tour will go into the Pomona Branch fellowship and scholarship fund.

MAKE FINAL PLANS

Mrs. George MacKenzie, Mrs. Theodore Swartz and Mrs. Thomas Noonan, from left, visit in the Noonan home, one of the homes on the Pomona Valley AAUW home tour scheduled Saturday.

DISPLAY DECORATIONS

Love and thought

Important items make Christmas

Because of them, some 10,000 merchant mariners from almost every seafaring nation on Christmas Day will open packages that have been a year-round project operated through the Seamen's Church Institute of New York.

In each, they'll find a handknit sweater, or a combination of any two of the following—scarf, watchcap, two pairs of socks and gloves, also handknit.

There also will be individually wrapped "stocking stuffers" such as stationery, pen, sewing kit, playing cards, manicure set, world map, magnifying glass, Christmas candy, and a greeting card with message in several languages.

"Surely, the men can go out and buy a sweater," said Mrs. Constance B. West, director, the Women's Council of the institute. "But they can't buy the love and thought that goes into it."

There are the caring hands of Miss Lynn Mettler, 70, born within a couple of blocks of the old Brooklyn Navy Yard. Her father, William Spencer Mettler, a machinist, had helped to build such great battleships as the Tennessee, the New Mexico and the Arizona, of Pearl Harbor memory.

Miss Mettler, a volunteer "for about five years", wears around her neck medals presented her father at their launchings between 1915 and 1919.

And there is Miss Gertrude Kilburn, 70, who's knit for the seamen "since I was a teenager. Our minister brought me into the project."

Mrs. West, a widow who joined the institute in 1967, explained the program.

It grew from a "few concerned women" knitting warm clothing during World War I for brothers, husbands, sweethearts. The sweater evolved as the most basic idea for the gift box.

Now the project has hundreds of women in every state but Alaska knitting from wool or acrylic they provide themselves if they wish or get from the Women's Council. "We use about three tons of wool a year," said Mrs. West.

"Our volunteer knitters no sooner finish this Christmas than they start on the next," she said. "A grandmother in Schenectady, N.Y., estimates she's knit 1,000 pairs of socks over the years."

Actual wrapping and packing get in full swing in mid-October and don't stop until just before Christmas.

Payment for the project is through a couple of special appeals the council makes each year, by the institute, and through private grants and legacies.

As the wrapping volunteers finish, paid staff and other volunteers —men, many of whom make the institute home when they're not at sea —take over to get the by-now-heavy parcels distributed through New York-New Jersey ports. Every type of non-passenger ship benefits, from container carriers to fishing vessels to tankers.

And the letters of thanks come in by the dozens.

Typical, Mrs. West said, was one last year from the chief officer on the M.V. Port Caroline. It read in part, "In this day and age when the tendency is towards a more impersonal way of life, it comes as a very pleasant surprise to receive a present from strangers. It puts Christmas right back on the map."

Attention, brides

The Progress-Bulletin Women's Department looks forward to printing the stories of your engagement and wedding.

Please pick up engagement and wedding forms at the newspaper office and return them with the picture you wish used.

Engagement forms are not accepted if they are received less than six weeks before the wedding, and wedding forms should be returned within two weeks after the wedding with a black and white picture of the bride only.

Inflation gnaws at our budgets

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Webster says that to be penny-wise is "to be prudent in small matters."

Several essayists are credited with variations of the "pennywise and pound-foolish" warning. And throughout literature you'll find the axiom, "Take care of the pennies and the pounds (dollars) will take care of themselves" and "a penny saved is a penny earned."

More than ever saving those pennies is becoming necessary as inflation gnaws away at the spending spread of our budgets.

I don't refer to literal hoarding of coins. The U.S. Bureau of the Mint has a campaign to keep coins circulating, so that they won't end up on the scarcity list like sugar.

What I'm talking about is little ways to cut corners by reusing, recycling, repairing. This list of suggestions was compiled in a check around our newsroom and some of them you're already doing. Others may give you ideas on savings —or saying, "It's not worth all THAT!"

It's pretty extreme, for instance, to reuse dental floss. But there's sense in washing the aluminum containers in which frozen foods come and refilling with something for your freezer, say a casserole.

Some recycle aluminum foil, wiping it clean after each use. Many plastic containers for foods can be used again and again for storage in refrigerator or freezer. Some types of glass containers such as baby food jars and wide-mouthed olive bottles, can be reused for jellies and jams.

Now that the holiday season is here, recycle the trappings. Most everyone carries over some trimmings and lights for the tree and the house each year.

Don't pinch, however, when it comes to spending love, friendship, hospitality, unselfishness, and charity.

Perfect timing

Being late for appointments is not fashionable, it's just annoying and discourteous to the people you keep waiting.

Fine Arts Foundation books Zajac program

Claremont's own internationally renowned sculptor and winner of the prix de Rome will speak to Scripps Fine Arts Foundation at 2 p.m. Tuesday in Balch Hall.

Jack Zajac has chosen as his topic "Confessions of a Wayward Sculptor" and he will show slides of his work.

Mr. Zajac was brought to Claremont by Millard Sheets who recognized his great talent. He received his master of fine arts in painting at Claremont Graduate School and developed his interest in sculpture when he was studying in Rome. He is currently a professor of art at the University of California at Santa Cruz.

The Young Sculptors, whose works will be on exhibit in the Lang Gallery, will be guests at the meeting and at the tea which follows. These six artists are graduate students at UCLA, USC, Cal State Long Beach, UC Irvine and Claremont Graduate School.

Guests are welcome and those interested in joining the Fine Arts Foundation can call Mae Esterline at 621-2057.

Christmas social set Saturday

Members of the San Gabriel Valley alumnae chapter of Phi Mu will gather Saturday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gore in San Dimas at 7:30 p.m. for a Christmas social.

Entertainment will include music by Lorrayne Harris of Claremont, guitarist.

The new chapter has found that there are 87 Phi Mu alumnae living in San Gabriel Valley and all are invited to attend the social. They may call 622-0158 for further information.

Phi Mu Sorority was founded in 1852 at Wesleyan College, Macon, Ga. The San Gabriel Valley Alumnae chapter is one of 17 newly organized units across the country.

Nutrition club to hear lecturer

Pomona Valley Chapter, American Nutrition Society, will present a program by George J. Prastka, M.D., when the group meets at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Pomona First Federal Saving and Loan, Indian Hill and Foothill Boulevards, Claremont.

His topic will be "Biological Approach to Good Health."

The program is open to the public and there is no admission fee.

Quilting exhibition is planned

An exhibit entitled "The Quiet Art of Quilting" is planned next March by the Claremont Folk Art Guild and the Claremont Parks and Recreation Department.

The public is invited to enter quilts — traditional or contemporary, new or old — in the two-day exhibit. A junior and senior division is planned. The show will also include booths for the selling of quilt books, supplies, quilts and related items.

Forms for entry and instructions are available from Joan Bunte, 326 De Paul Road, Claremont. February 10 is the entry deadline.

Yule music to entertain clubwomen

Christmas music by the students of Mrs. Lucy Nordyke will entertain members of the Pomona Woman's Club when they meet Monday at 1:30 p.m. at her home, 691 Edwin Ave.

Thought for the month will be presented by Mrs. Florence Reeves. Members will respond to roll call by describing a favorite home decoration.

MRS. PAUL WEISEND

Republican Women install

Officers for 1975 will be installed at the Thuraday dinner meeting of Pomona Valley Republican Women's Club.

The program at Buffums Palomares Room will begin with a 6:30 p.m. social hour and include dinner at 7:30 p.m. Members are invited to bring husbands and friends to the dinner.

Speaker for the evening will be Jerrold Gonce, Pomona city administrator, who will discuss "Good Government at the Local Level."

Officers to be seated are Mrs. Paul F. Weisend, president; Mrs. Alex Duarte, first vice president; Mrs. Ernest P. Gordon, second vice president; Mrs. Arthur Jaynes, third vice president; Mrs. William L. Hunt, fourth vice president; Ms. Foster Artis, recording secretary; Mrs. James N. Popovich, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. C. Arnold Stevenson, treasurer.

Special Christmas music will also be featured.

Reservations may be made with Mrs. Jaynes or Mrs. Artis.

Cafe filter

Inveterate coffee drinkers will appreciate a new filter coffeemaker system. The Melitta system takes a cue from European coffee drinkers who never percolate or boil coffee. Comes in three to eight cup glass carafe and cover, plastic filtertop and wire grid for reheating on electric ranges.

Ontario BPW sets Christmas dinner meeting

The Girls' Choir of Redeemer Lutheran Church of Ontario will present a Christmas program following the dinner meeting of Ontario Business and Professional Women's Club Tuesday evening.

The dinner will be held at 6:30 p.m. at Holiday Inn.

Program chairmen are Miss Eleanor Ladwig and Miss Alma Kinnett. Leader of the coir is Laurie Wahner.

There will be a Christmas gift exchange and members will bring unwrapped gifts to be presented to Patton Hospital and to the San Bernardino Juvenile Home.

Center hall serves to channel traffic in home

By HIAWATHA ESTES

Besides having an unusually attractive exterior, this luxurious four bedroom home has an equally imaginative interior design. Careful planning of this home has provided many features that are usually only found in much larger and expensive homes.

The front door opens to a center hall entry which channels traffic to each area of the house. All rooms are very generous in size. The living and dining areas appear even larger since there is no separation between the two and due to the large sliding glass doors which open from the dinng to the patio.

There is space for family meals in the roomy kitchen. Foot traffic has been directed away from the nook area by locating the dining door in the opposite corner.

Laundry facilities plus a broom closet are in the service. There is access from this room to both the kitchen and the bedroom hall. The master bedroom suite consists of a huge bedroom, a dressing area with two wardrobes and a semi-private bath. This bath plus the family bath features pullman lavatories.

The garage roof extends over a roofed passageway which leads to the front entry, on this contemporary, eye-catching exterior. The entry to this passageway is flanked by stone veneer columns. Vertical, wooden members have been placed on each side of the living room windows.

This same basic exterior plus another spanish exterior is available in a three aod two bedroom plan but at a different price structure and is illustrated in our book, Ranch & Modern Homes.

Complete working drawings for plan 41105 can be purchased for $12.67 for the first set and $7.42 for each additional set ordered at the same time. This plan will be available at these special prices until April 8, 1975. Please allow two to three weeks for delivery. A specification booklet is available for $1.06. A large reproduction rendering of the exterior is available for $1.06. The following home plan books are also available: Distinctive Homes — $1.59; Prize Homes — $1.59; Hallmark Homes — $1.59; Town & Country Homes — $1.59; Homes by Hiawatha — $1.59; Ranch & Modern Homes — $2.39. All six books — a $10.34 value — for only $8.22. Orders for less than three books, please add an extra 20 cents per book for postage and handling. Prices include sales tax. Send all orders to : Hiawatha Estes, AIBD. P.O. Box 404-PO, Northridge, California 91324.

Lewis Homes is selling model homes

Seven display model homes with special interior decors have been placed on sale at three Lewis Homes developments, said Edward J. Lynch, sales manager.

Their sales signal the near sellout of these housing projects in Upland and Chino The homes include carpets, drapes, "upgraded" wallpaper, bookshelves and extra mirrors.

All homes have professionally landscaped lots with sprinkler systems already installed.

Four homes are in the Classic Series development, located on 14th Street a half block west of Mountain Avenue in Upland. They are priced from $44,950 to $46,950. The sales office number is 985-3410.

Another model home is a two story structure, priced at $56,650, in the Prestige Series. This is located on 21st Street between Mountain and San Antonio avenues, Upland.

Two homes are at the Countryside development, located on Pipe Line Avenue, a half mile south of Riverside Drive, Chino. They are priced from $42,950. The sales office number is 627-2592.

All these homes are open daily for inspection, said Lynch.

Airline seeks fare slashes to spur travel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — United Air Lines has asked the Civil Aeronautics Board for permission to slash its excursion fares 20 to 50 per cent next year to stimulate the sagging pleasure travel market.

The airline proposed a package of "Bicentennial" reduced fares on all routes — except to Hawaii and Florida — from February, 1975 until the end of October.

Under United's plan, fares for excursions lasting a minimum seven days and maximum 30 days would be discounted this way:

—25 per cent discount during off peak season.

—20 per cent discount during summer peak season, June 15 to Sept. 15.

—50 per cent discount year-round for children, aged two to 12, when accompanied by an adult using the fare.

The discounts could not be used on summer weekends during what the industry calls "high load factor periods" — noon Friday to noon Saturday, and noon Sunday to noon Monday.

Home financing sought

Officials of the National Association of Realtors have presented petitions urging Congress to approve measures that would help provide up to $24 billion for the home mortgage market.

More than 20,000 signatures were gathered at a recent association convention. Joseph B. Doherty of Andover, Mass., president, and Art S. Leitch of San Diego, president-elect, presented these to House Majority Leader Thomas P. O'Neill, D.-Mass.

These petitions are the vanguard for a national campaign by Realtors who are gathering hundreds of thousands of additional signatures, said officials. These petitions will be submitted through local boards and state associations to House of Representative and Senate members.

That bill would provide a tax exclusion for up to $1,000 in interest on deposits in savings institutions. It is receiving "tremendous support" in Congress, reported O'Neill.

The bill, co-sponsored by Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., Rep. Donald Brotzman, R-Colo., and Rep. Donald Clancey, R-Ohio, was approved by the House Ways and Means Committee by a 15-6 vote. It would allow a tax exclusion on the first $500 in interest for individuals and $1,000 for husband and wife filing a joint return.

Petitioners also urge that members of the House and Senate provide a tax credit to financial institutions based on their mortgage portfolios. This would further encourage a flow of funds into the mortgage market.

The petition reads: "Because millions of Americans are deprived of housing of their choice, we the undersigned urge members of the U.S. Senate and the U.S. House of Representatives to bring greater stability to the nation's depressed home mortgage market.

"Enactment of these proposals (tax exclusion and tax credit) is vital to the interest of the average American family which is paying the highest price for the inflation in our economy, and is urgently needed to avoid a collapse of the housing and home financing industry through a lack of mortgage funds."

In addition to the House bill's ability to assist the housing industry, the association supports the measure because it also would have a dampening effect upon inflation by encouraging more saving and less consumer spending.

In combatting inflation, the federal government has relied heavily on a tight money policy, which has driven interest rates to record highs. This, in turn, has resulted in savers withdrawing their money from thrift institutions to seek better returns on their money elsewhere, said officials.

The outflow from savings and loans, the nation's prime mortgage lender, and other institutions has been severe, the National Association's department of economics and research reports.

For the six-month period ending September, 1974, withdrawals exceeded new savings deposits in savings and loans by $2.8 billion. In addition, mutual savings banks experienced a net desposit loss of $3.4 billion during the period.

These losses have caused thrift institutions to reduce current mortgage lending and commitments for future lending. The department notes that in September, outstanding commitments by savings and loans for future mortgage lending was at the lowest level since January, 1972.

Officers elected by local realty board

Walter C. Arnold has been installed as new president of the Pomona Valley Board of Realtors.

Others elected to the realty board are Ray Levick, first vice president; Sanford Newton, second vice president; William Johnson, secretary; Joseph D. Beck, treasurer; and Frank Diaz, Fern Spaulding, Tom B. Jones, Peggy Vick and Cleon Cravens, directors.

WALTER ARNOLD

Faye Gage will continue as the executive officer.

Arnold succeeds Mrs. Mildred Heckmer, who served last year. Officers were installed at a luncheon held at Griswold's Inn in Claremont. The board has 345 members.

Arnold had previously served as president during 1971. And since joining the board in 1963, he has served on numerous committees.

He is also a state director of the California Association of Realtors; vice chairman of Pomona's redevelopment commission; chairman of Pomona's general plan advisory committee; and member of the Pomona Breakfast Lions Club and the Pomona Chamber of Commerce.

Arnold recently opened a new office on Garey Avenue in Pomona. He resides in Pomona with his wife and son.

Big money

NEW YORK (UPI) — More than $400 million was spent in New York City in 1973 as a direct result of conventions, according to a survey by the International Association of Convention and Visitors Bureaus. The survey also said that the typical out-of-town delegate spent an average of $313, while metropolitan-area delegates averaged about $50 each.

Best deal now is in existing new shelter

At last doom and gloom economist Eliot Janeway has some good news—mainly for California.

With food currently at the greatest premium it has experienced in the last 50 years, the big agricultural states will be less adversely affected by the recession than others "and California is at the top of that list," Janeway told some 400 persons last week in an economic forecast sponsored by The Irvine Co., at its new $20 million apartment community, Promontory Point, near Newport Beach.

He also declared that housing is in for even more appreciation because of the current shortage and the lack of financing for new product in the next 12 to 18 months.

"The best deal people can make right now is in real estate.

"The biggest bargain around is exisiting new shelter financed at yesterday's rates. In today's economy nine per cent interest is not too high for a new home," he added.

"We can also expect breathtaking increases in rents," he said.

He saw little hope for the housing industry, in general, in 1975 other than for single family starts financed with hard dollars.

"All in all, I expect housing starts to dip below the one million mark, with the biggest fall-off in multi-unit housing," he stated.

Turning to international economics, he said the world can expect Japan to start cutting prices on many exports—and this will spur considerable competition among American firms in domestic markets.

High oil prices remain the major cause of the recession, but the problem will be solved without the United States getting into a war, he added.

Price, taste go together

BOSTON (UPI) — Frozen lobster tails confiscated by U.S. Customs in 1972 were osld recently at the bargain price of $1.57 per pound.

"New Englanders prefer fresh lobster," one of the buyers said. "We'll probably unload this stuff in New York, the Midwest or the West Coast, where they don't know any better."

The lobster, 333,045 pounds of it, was seized when the government claimed it was improperly labeled. One distributer said the meat can be resold for at least $3 a pound.

FIAT HAS A CAR FOR EVERYONE

FIAT 128 Sedan
Only the designing ingenuity and engineering excellence of FIAT could have produced this incredible sub-compact: FIAT 128. The economy car that offers all the advantages of smallness with none of the disadvantages. It's shorter in length than VW — but it's bigger inside. That's the result of mounting the front-wheel drive engine transversely so that it occupies just 20% of the total interior — leaving fully 80% for passenger room and a 13 cu. ft. trunk. The 4 door model has the same interior and exterior dimensions.
And space isn't the only advantage.
Discover why the FIAT 128 has won more international Car-Of-The-Year awards in Europe than any other car in history.
STANDARD EQUIPMENT INCLUDES:

FIAT X 1/9
This is the spectacular, advanced, in-a-class-by-itself, mid-engine FIAT X 1/9. The car of the future. Now. The product of three-quarters in a century of FIAT experience and excellence. No car in its field has ever been accorded a more approving reception by independent experts. Every major motor car publication has reviewed it, acclaimed it and recommended it not only as a resounding styling successive performer and a superlative value as well. The body is the creation of Nuccio Bertone, the designer of many of the most renowned and respected sports cars in the world. Discover a new star of the first magnitude. Discover the brilliant FIAT X 1/9.
STANDARD EQUIPMENT INCLUDES:

1975 SCOUT
It can be the kind of vehicle you want it to be -- At $800 off*
★ WINDOW STICKER PRICE

When we say the Scout is a whole lot of different vehicles wrapped up into one great machine . . . that's exactly what we mean.

For example:
- The Scout can be an off-the-road vehicle with 4-wheel drive and locking hubs, rugged and economical Comanche 4-cylinder 196 or the Comanche 304 CID V-8 or the 345 CID V-8, and a host of other RV options.
- Or the Scout can be an elegant around-town vehicle with luxury options like the automatic transmission, air conditioning, power steering and one of the rich-looking and long-wearing interiors complete with bucket seats.

Scout '75 . . . the kind of vehicle you want it to be . . . for the kind of driving you want to do . . . for the way you live.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — When making homemade frozen suckers, I use orange juice rather than the powdered drink usually used for this; kids can have all they want of these nutritious goodies. — MRS. P.T.L.

DEAR POLLY — For more accuracy with less spillage, save a squeeze-type plastic bottle, thoroughly washed-out, to use when filling your battery. — LEWIS.

Polly pays $1.00 for every idea used. Send them to her, c/o this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY — After selling shoes for two years I have discovered a simple Pointer for extra foot comfort. If you wear laced shoes with just a few eyelets, lace them upside down. This distributes the pressure evenly across the instep and tends to relieve discomfort. Those with narrow feet may find that toes are no longer jammed into the front of the shoe. Don't be shy about showing the bow in a new place! — RAYMOND.

DEAR POLLY — When dusting furniture that has fancy trim, I spray a polish that attracts and holds dust on to a cotton-tipped stick and zip through those hard-to-get-at places. — RITA.

DEAR POLLY — My children were always bothering me for ways to earn money. I wrote down jobs around the house and the amount each is worth on separate pieces of paper. I folded these and put them in a jar. Now the kids just pick a job from the jar. — LISA.

DEAR POLLY — It used to be such a bother searching through the various plastic tubs in the refrigerator to find the one with margarine among those filled with leftovers till I put a rubber band around the one holding margarine. — DORIS.

DEAR POLLY — An energy-saving Pointer: Unscrew one or two of the bulbs in a multibulb bedroom ceiling fixture. One bulb is usually enough for adequate general lighting till bedside lamps are turned on. — RHONDA.

DEAR POLLY: Next time you're missing a croquet wicket, snip off the hook portion of a wire coat hanger and shape the rest into a wicket. — LAURA.

DEAR POLLY — Here's a clip-and-save pointer: My husband works outside all day and carries with him a gallon vacuum bottle of water. I freeze four plastic glasses of water and slip these kingsize "cubes" into the bottle. They keep the contents cool all day. — MRS. R.A.

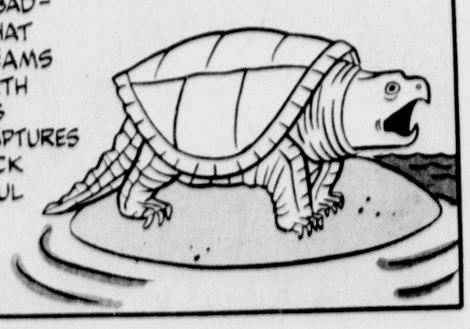
NATURE COLORS

SNAPPING TURTLES

COLOR THE SNAPPING TURTLE BROWN.

THE COMMON SNAPPING TURTLE IS A LARGE, BAD-TEMPERED TURTLE THAT LIVES IN MUDDY STREAMS AND SWAMPS IN NORTH AMERICA. IT GETS ITS NAME BECAUSE IT CAPTURES ITS PREY WITH A QUICK SNAP OF ITS POWERFUL JAWS.



THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

ALAN WILLSE OF BUTTE, MONTANA, ASKS:
"HOW DOES A SEWING MACHINE SEW ?"

MOST MODERN SEWING MACHINES SEW WITH TWO THREADS AND MAKE THE LOCK STITCH. IN THIS TYPE OF STITCHING, THE NEEDLE, WITH AN EYE CARRYING ONE THREAD, PUSHES THE THREAD DOWN THROUGH THE CLOTH WHERE IT FORMS A LOOP THAT CATCHES ON A HOOK BELOW. THE SECOND THREAD IS CARRIED BELOW THE CLOTH ON A BOBBIN. THE HOOK TWISTS THE TWO THREADS TOGETHER, THUS "LOCKING" THE STITCH. THE NEEDLE RISES AND THE STITCH TIGHTENS. A TOOTHED PLATE PULLS MORE CLOTH FORWARD, AND A NEW STITCH BEGINS.

'AFTER THE FALL'

Bitter memories haunt the principal characters in "After the Fall" but the Arthur Miller play reminds Faye Dunaway of happy days. She stars with Christopher Plummer in Miller's television adaptation of his powerful Broadway drama, which will be a two-and-a-half-hour special on NBC, Tuesday from 8:30 to 11PM. In the new production, Dunaway appears as Maggie, the vulnerable girl whose rise to stardom is stalked by tragedy. Dunaway was a member of the play's original cast when it served as the initial production of the Lincoln Center Repertory Company in January of 1964 in New York City.

Said Dunaway: "My role as Maggie rounds a circle for me in a way. I was understudy for the part of Holga (played for television by Bibi Anderson) in the original stage production. At that time, I was on the verge of knowing how to act. It was pure excitement to be part of a new play and I loved it.

"I remember how I used to stand in the wings every night watching the performances. Barbara Loden played Maggie then. It was — and is — a demanding role. There she would be, tearing herself apart emotionally every single night on stage. I once asked her, 'Barbara, how do you do that?' And she replied, 'I get old.' "

In the play, Dunaway has to run the emotional gamut from innocent delight to suicidal tantrum. The portrayal is both demanding intellectuually and exhausting physically. How did she do it? Dunaway said: "Some people brush it off as technique. It's that and more. It's a very private kind of thing, really. You draw on your own self and who you are and what emotion is affecting you at the moment. It's a matter of investigating. You never get answers but you do get some insight." And some bruises, too. During the taping of "After the Fall" at the NBC Studios in Brooklyn, Dunaway skinned her knees and suffered bruises on her arms and legs. But bruises, long hours of rehearsals and such difficult roles as that of Maggie do not dim Dunaway's enthusiasm for her profession. "I have always wanted to be an actress, ever since I was a kid. I have never considered doing anything else," she said.

Dunaway, born in Bascom, Fla., studied acting at the University of Florida and at Boston University's School of Fine Arts. There, her performance in another Arthur Miller play, "The Crucible," led to a recommendation that she be admitted to the Lincoln Center Repertory group. Roles in films followed — "Bonnie and Clyde," "The Three Musketeers," "Chinatown" — and she will soon star with Robert Redford in another movie, "Three Days of the Condor."

What made her choose acting as a career? "Oh, lots of things. An outlook on life, the challenges you face, the dreams you have. I remember when I was in my early teens I told a girlfriend of my ambition. She said, 'Suppose you don't make it as an actress? What will you do?' And I said, 'I'm going to make it.' And that was that. I never had any doubts."

That confidence, she said, helped her through the rough times and to success as a performer. "That and some hard work and — very important — luck. Don't let any actor kid you. The ones who make it all have to give a nod to Lady Luck. Without her even the most talented could — and do — wind up in the wings."

'FAMILY COMEDY'

Elliott Gould makes his first TV appearance as the star of a comedy-variety family entertainment special, "Out to Lunch," on ABC, Tuesday at 9PM. The Children's Television Workshop production will also feature guest stars Barbara Eden, Rita Moreno, and Jim Henson's Muppets. Television is the evening's target and the Sesame Street and Electric Company characters satirize medical dramas, commercials, soap operas, news programs, talk shows and sports spectaculars. Cookie Monster will be host of "The Nighty Night Show," while Kermit the Frog becomes an ace anchorman to provide on-the-spot coverage of Grover Knover's heroic attempt to leap the Grand Canyon.

ANOTHER ERA

"Judy," a 24-year-old Indian elephant, was fitted with gigantic tusks and an oversized hairpiece for her role of an angry mammoth in "The Tribe," the ABC Wednesday Movie of the Week at 8:30PM. Starring Victor French, Henry Wilcoxon, Stewart Moss, Sam Gilman and Warren Vanders, the film follows the desperate struggle for survival of a group of Cro-Magnon men who roamed the European continent some 50,000 years ago.

'INFLATION: A FEW ANSWERS'

The most devastating inflation of recent decades is currently threatening everyone's life-style, as well as posing a serious threat to the entire world's economic and social systems. At the Washington Conference on the Economy, President Ford said that the success or failure of our fight against inflation rests with every individual American. But how and where does an individual tackle such a broad, all-encompassing problem?

"Inflation: A few Answers," an unprecedented new three-hour special hosted by Sander Vanocur, will help define how to cope with some of these problems. Produced by RKO General Television in association with BUSINESS WEEK Magazine, the program airs in prime-time from 8 to 11PM on KHJ-TV, Channel 9, Tuesday.

The first special of its magnitude to be produced by an independent station, the program will feature over 170 people on the screen and will give the answers to 250 specific questions which relate to daily survival. Food, foreign travel, housing, transportation, medicine, insurance, and energy queries will be discussed by everyone from the neighborhood corner pharmacists to Lewis H. Young, editor-in-chief of BUSINESS WEEK, who will head up a round table discussion on Wall Street.

While some inflation problems are universal, many are unique to one area, or at least the solutions are. For this reason one part of "Inflation: A Few Answers" will be geared specifically to the Southern California area for KHJ-TV viewers and to the Tri-State New York area for WOR-TV viewers. Included here will be instructions on where and how to complain about almost everything in these vicinities: from lost packages to product mislabeling to over-priced services.

"Anyone who watches all three hours of "Inflation: A Few Answers" and can't save money the next day, just wasn't paying attention," stated Al Korn, producer of the special and vice president in charge of programming for RKO General Television. Director for the special is John C. Wolf; executive associate producer, John J. Rochford.

Sander Vanocur is host for an unprecedented three-hour, prime-time special featuring authorities and guests on topics relating to combating the problems of inflation today. Pictured in the Wall Street Panel segment are: (L to R) Matt Blum, manufacturer and successful investor; Lewis H. Young, editor-in-chief of BUSINESS WEEK; Alan Carr, book publisher and market-victim; Eliot Janeway, noted economist; Sander Vanocur, moderator; Robert Stovall, investment specialist; Glen R. Johnson, money manager.

'BROWNS VS. RAMS'

Some sportswriters have called the 1950 National Football League championship game between the Cleveland Browns and Los Angeles Rams the biggest revolution in sports history—and for good reason. The upstart Browns, just absorbed into the NFL after the demise of their All-American Conference, were taking on the Establishment—and the rebels won, 30-28, on the strength of place-kicker Lou Groza's toe with a last-minute field goal.

That revolution took place in Cleveland's windswept, frigid Municipal Stadium on Dec. 24, 1950. Now, 24 years later, the nation's viewers will be able to watch the game once more, this time in the warmth and comfort of their own living-rooms, as it is replayed on the The Way It Was, Thursday at 8PM on KCET, Channel 28.

'THE BORROWERS'

Soup steams in an upturned thimble set on a stove which is an iron door lock; a table made ready for supper is really the top of a scrubbing brush supported by the ends of four pencils; saucepans hanging on the walls look suspiciously like screw-on bottle caps.

That is the setting in the miniature kitchen which is the home of the tiny Clock Family in "The Borrowers," the Hallmark Hall of Fame drama special repeating on NBC, Friday at 8:30PM.

Eddie Albert stars as six-in-high Pod Clock, leader of the Clock household, comfortable and seemingly secure in its lodgings beneath the floorboards of a Victorian country mansion. Tammy Grimes co-stars as his wife, Homily, and Karen Pearson appears as their 12-year-old daughter, Arrietty. In this adaptation of the book by Mary Norton, the Clocks borrow the items they need from the rooms in the house above them. Their acquisitions over the years include a gold watch, a nail file, scissors, cups, spools, a needle, postage stamps, safety pins and even a pill box.

Dame Judith Anderson also stars, as the lady of the house, bedridden Aunt Sophy, a lonely soul who is visited from time to time by Pod while on his borrowing expeditions. She believes the tiny creature to be a delusion, brought into focus by her steady sips of Madeira wine.

Beatrice Straight appears as Mrs. Crampfurl, a no-nonsense housekeeper, and Bernard(sic) Hughes is seen as her husband. Young Dennis Larson is Aunt Sophy's 8-year-old great nephew from Boston, sent to her house to overcome the effects of a recent illness.

It is the boy who plays a key role in the harrowing adventures of the Clock Family — surnamed because the entrance to their quarters is reached via a hole inside a grandfather's clock. The lad spots Pod trying to borrow some tea cups from the doll house in his room and soon discovers the rest of the tiny family and its residence. He inadvertently leads Mrs. Crampfurl to the tiny people. She is determined to destroy them and employs a ferret and a dog to that end. However, the Clocks manage to flee to the safety of relatives with the help of the boy.

Matching tiny images of the Clocks into scenes with views of full-sized actors and sets was accomplished with the use of the Imagematt electronic matting process. Special sets were constructed to give proper perspective to the action.

Rod McKuen composed the music for the special.

'HOUSE WITHOUT A CHRISTMAS TREE'

"The House Without a Christmas Tree," the tender story of a 10-year-old girl's yearning for her first Yule tree, will be rebroadcast as a family drama special Friday at 9:30PM on CBS. Jason Robards stars as a stern widower who shares his 1940s Nebraska home with his mother, portrayed by Mildred Natwick, and his precocious daughter, played by Lisa Lucas. Alan Shayne produced, and Paul Bogart directed the script by Eleanor Perry, based on a short story by Gail Rock.

In "The House Without a Christmas Tree," gruff widower James Mills adamantly denies his daughter Addie's wish for a tree, with Grandmother Mills interceding for the child while helping her understand her father's feelings about a Yule tree and the mother she never knew. Alexa Kenin, as Addie's best friend, and Kathryn Walker, as their teacher, have major supporting roles.

Robards, a critically acclaimed veteran of numerous stage and motion-picture roles, starred in such films as "Long Day's Journey Into Night," "Any Wednesday" and "A Thousand Clowns." Miss Natwick has been appearing on Broadway since 1932, and counts "Barefoot in the Park" among her numerous film credits.

Young Lisa Lucas also stars in "The Thanksgiving Treasure" with Robards and Miss Natwick, and will appear in an upcoming "CBS Playhouse 90" on the Network.

Emmy Award-winner Paul Bogart previously collaborated with Alan Shayne on the special, "Look Homeward, Angel" on the Network. Mrs. Perry, who won Emmy and Peabody awards for her television dramatization of Truman Capote's "A Christmas Visitor," also has the motion pictures "David and Lisa," "Last Summer" and "Diary of a Mad Housewife" to her credit.

COVER CLOSE-UP

FOUR FOR DAVID

Three-time Emmy nominee David Janssen is now starring in his fourth TV series as a private investigator in Harry O, which airs Thursday nights (10-11PM) on ABC. As Harry Orwell, Janssen is a private detective living on a medical disability from the San Diego Police Department, the result of catching a gun shot, lodged too near his spine for surgery. He lives alone in a small beach-front house supplementing his small income by taking investigative assignments if they please him.

Harry O, based on the 90-minute movie which aired last winter is filmed in San Diego. Although there are problems on location, Janssen believes the results justify the headaches.-"In the environs of San Diego we have access to a myriad of different kinds of backgrounds," he says. Janssen himself has rented a comfortable house on the beach at Del Mar (just north of San Diego near the racetrack) where he can often be seen jogging on the beach.

Also starring in the series is Henry Darrow as Det. Lt. Manuel "Manny" Quinlan of the San Diego Police Department. He and Harry are friends but also frequently find themselves adversaries on a case. Darrow has appeared in guest starring roles in dozens of TV series and also starred in The High Chaparral a few years ago.

Working all over San Diego in public places, Janssen is besieged by autograph seekers whenever he isn't in front of the camera. An easy-going, relaxed man, Janssen complies good-naturedly. The star describes the series as "a show of the '70s using a character of the '40s. A part of today, Harry seems to relate more to the '40s or '50s," Janssen says.

It was not originally David's idea to become an actor. His mother has admitted she gave him a push but he says of her: "Mother was of the old school. She believed stardom had nothing to do with talent. In the Hollywood of those days, the reason you acted was that it was the most glamorous and sought-after thing in town."

At Fairfax High School David distinguished himself in sports, particularly in basketball and track. He was good enough to get an athletic scholarship to USC which he was never to use as he twisted his knee while pole vaulting for a news photographer. One of his early ambitions—to play basketball professionally—was never to materialize but as he wryly points out, "There are times when my knee bothers me and I give a good imitation of a man with a bullet in his back." He adds, "Because of the bullet, Harry does a lot of stretching and groaning in the mornings. But that fits me as I do a fair amount of it myself."

When his athletic career went with the wind, Janssen decided his future lay in acting. He appeared in summer stock in New England and then went to New York where he did a variety of jobs while trying to crack Broadway; among these running an elevator and clerking in a drug store. A break seemed to come when he danced in a Mike Todd musical but that was short-lived. Another break came when 20th Century-Fox placed him under contract but when his marked resemblance to Clark Gable was noticed, the newcomer was dropped. Universal signed him to a long-term contract and he was given courses in drama, dancing, fencing and horseback riding along with some minor roles in films. About his 32 film assignments, he says, "I was an 'agreer'. The star would say to me, 'Don't you think so?' I'd agree and disappear."

When Dick Powell was preparing Richard Diamond, Detective for television, Janssen, the 25th candidate to be tested, got the title role, a break which made him a TV star. He interspersed his four-year run with stage appearances. When "Diamond" ended, Janssen played a starring role in the theatrical film, "Hell to Eternity," which won him the Motion Picture Exhibitors Annual Laurel Award and the title of "No. 1 New Film Star."

In 1963, Janssen returned to television as Dr. Richard Kimble in ABC's The Fugitive, a series which ran for four seasons and won the star three Emmy nominations, a Hollywood Foreign Press Association Golden Globe, TV Guide's selection as "Favorite Male Performer on Television" and Photoplay Magazine's Editor's Award.

Prior to the start of production on Harry O, Janssen completed a starring role in the motion picture "Once Is Not Enough," based on the novel by Jacqueline Susann, playing a talented and lusty prize-winning novelist.

A Memo to Parents On How Kids View Brothers, Sisters

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR LIBERACE

Why do you wear all those fancy costumes?—J. J., Los Angeles, Calif.

● It's all an accident. Before my first appearance at the Hollywood Bowl in the '50's. I always wore black tails. But the producers were worried that the audience might not see me clearly because the orchestra wore black too. They suggested WHITE tails. It caused a stir, and the press asked what I'd wear for my Vegas Hilton Hotel opening. I hadn't thought about it. My sister Angie was wearing a gold lamé dress, so I said "gold lamé." That facetious remark was printed, so I went through with my promise. That's how my wardrobe (which costs over $100,000 a year) was born.

I read that Joe Namath is angry with you about your book on the Jets' disastrous 1973 season. Why?—T. R. Lansing, Durham, N.C.

● I said he was arrogant and that his teammates resented the special treatment given to him, the hours spent on buses waiting for him and the times he showed up at the therapeutic sessions obviously suffering from a hangover and left early. I wasn't surprised when, after the book appeared, he gave me a nasty look and didn't say hello.

FOR JANE POWELL

I'm short, and I'm told I could look taller if I did certain things. Can you give me some hints?—H. L., Salem, Ore.

● Don't make the mistake of piling your hair high! It's a poor trick and will make you look all head. I'm 5-1 and pay great attention to my clothes. I choose them in one color, with NO break at the waist (that tends to make short people look shorter). I'm partial to turtlenecks—they give an "optical illusion" of length and height. And, of course, high heels (but not too high, or else you'll look all feet).

FOR BARRY NEWMAN, star of "Petrocelli"

I'd like to know something about you, and if you and Paul Newman are cousins.—Alfred A. Strouts, Coos Bay, Ore.

● Paul and I are not related. I'm the OTHER blue-eyed sex symbol! I'm a strange mixture: My father was Viennese, my mother is Swedish—and, like Paul, I'm part Jewish. The nearest I ever got to Italy was an Italian restaurant. At school I boxed, did well in track, majored in anthropology and ended up as a door-to-door Bible salesman and hat checker to pay for my acting course. My heroes are Bogart, Garfield and Cagney, and I'm a bachelor.

FOR VAN JOHNSON

Do most performers like to watch their own movies on TV?—Loree Cohn, Toms River, N.J.

● I can't answer for others, but I don't. First of all, usually they're so cut they're almost unrecognizable. Secondly, that gent on the screen is so much better looking than the one I see in the mirror.

FOR GEORGE BLANDA of the Oakland Raiders

I have heard that you will retire after this season and will go into coaching. True?—Dale A. Carter, Randolph Air Force Base, Texas

● Someday, maybe, but not this year. They're going to have to cut my uniform off me to get me to retire. I'm only 47, you know.

FOR ANN LANDERS

Your defense of the "sanctity" of men's clubs leads me to believe you are anti-Women's Liberation. True?—Mrs. W. D., Quincy, Mass.

● I am neither pro—nor anti—Women's Lib. I am strongly in favor of women getting salaries and promotions commensurate with their abilities. I am, however, opposed to loud-mouthed dames who try to push their way into all-male clubs where they are not welcome. Men do not belong every place—and neither do women.

FOR SHIRLEY MacLAINE

I know you travel a great deal, usually by yourself. Don't you ever get lonely?—R. J., Canton, Ohio

● I've been alone in Africa, the Far East, Europe and the U.S., but never lonely. I've been on my own for as long as two months but am never conscious of it because I'm surrounded by books, music and my thoughts. If I'm in desperate need of company, I pick up the phone. Many feel marriage is a solution to loneliness. I don't. I know many couples who share a bed, but are spiritual strangers.

FOR ROY M. COHN, attorney and author

Lawyers are always so serious, as though they were born that way. How about you?—L. Sills, Albany, N.Y.

● In my case you're right. I never read comics as a kid. I read books on law. My father was a judge and, from age eight, I spent my time in courtrooms. By ten, I knew what I wanted to be. I never went through the uncertain stage that other kids do. However, now that I'm "older and wiser" I find there's more to life, and I like vacations, theater, movies and socializing.

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

Since Walt Disney passed away, who has taken over? And tell me something about the two Disney amusement parks. —Chuck Little, Delta, Colo.

● A group of men who knew Disney well carry on his ideas and traditions. Walt's two daughters aren't interested in the business, but one of his sons-in-law is a company executive. One son of Roy's (Walt's late brother) is also an official. Orlando's Disney World cost $600 million—35 times as much as Disneyland! When Walt was raising money for Disneyland (it opened in 1955 with an original investment of $17 million; now it's listed at $150 million), he had his work cut out to convince not only his brother, but also the bankers who arranged the financing and were super-skeptical about its chances of succeeding.

In a Boy's Own Simple, Truer-Than-Life Words:

Why I Love Being a Boy On a Farm

Archie Lieberman

From a book by photographer Archie Lieberman

'In the evening the sun goes down over another ridge, and you know you have lived a sensible day."
—The photographer

The Photographer Talking:

I had traveled a great deal, here and abroad, but came back to Jo Daviess County periodically to make pictures. After one of my closest friends was killed photographing a war I went out to the farm to reassure myself that the world, somewhere, still made sense.

In the morning the sun rises over the ridge and you truly know the day has begun. Roosters really crow, cows moo, pigs "oink," church bells toll and streams swish and gurgle. People work, pray and play. They sew doilies, quilt, can food, bake wonderful cakes and eat well. The ground smells the way ground should, the tractor groans power, the manure spreader enriches the earth, the bees fly to clover, a neighbor on a dusty road waves as he passes in a pickup, the hay is sweet, the scent of silage is slightly intoxicating, the farm dog runs barking alongside the sheep or cattle he herds, the crickets sing, the birds go about their business. Everything goes about its business in a natural way. In the evening the sun goes down over another ridge, and you know you have lived a sensible day.

These were the images I was thinking about when I drove out to the Illinois farm on which lived three generations of Hammers – Willis, the grandfather, Willis, Jr., the father, and young Jim, the son. I had been taking pictures of the family for 20 years, and I had taken the road to the Hammer farm many times. I carried with me a tape recorder and a case full of pictures of the years I had photographed the Hammers and their land. There had never been much talk among us—it was as though I had been involved in a motion picture without a sound track—and there are things that can be understood only through words. So with the pictures in front of us, the tape recorder turned on, we reviewed the past. One of the talkers was young Jim, age 13. These are his thoughts.

The Boy Talking:

I want to be a farmer, because I like the work. You don't have anybody over you all the time. You judge it by your own sense. You don't have somebody telling you how to do it all the time. Like in other jobs, there's always somebody over your head. I'd like to be my own boss. Oh, doing my chores sometimes gets a little hard, getting the cows and stuff. Dad worked harder when he was a boy. I don't need to work as much, probably because there's a lot more machines. But yesterday I worked pretty hard baling, throwing those bales around . . . haha, throwing myself around. My favorite work is chopping—and, oh, it's just fun sitting there, going asleep in the green chop [freshly cut and chopped hay].

The chores I do, Dad gave them to me: scrape out the barn, get the barn ready, help make hay, get the cows by myself, help feed the calves, and this year the tractor (I got to throttle it and steer it and all) first time. Oh! And I've got to plow. I was proud of myself. I've always wanted to help in the field, but there was nothing for me to do except hook the harrow behind the disk and stuff. I like the work.

Chickens? That's not my job; that's Grandma's job most of the time. That's women's work; they're usually the ones that want them. They do the cooking and stuff like that, and Mom helps in the field, helps us all over, rakes hay when we need help.

I like being a boy. Get to do more stuff. Like my sisters, they can't go with my dad as much as I can. We're alike. We both like living on the farm. We both like to do a lot of things, the same things. He likes to play basketball and I like to do that. He likes building and I like building. Learned a lot from him. I like to help him; just, oh, I guess I figure I might as well hang around as much as I can. He won't be here all the time. So I might as well. I'll try farming with him—when I grow up.

Do you know what I think when you say "the land"? I think I call it "the ground." In a kind of a way I love the ground. Because you've got to have the ground to live. It grows all things, you eat the plants, you've got to have ground to survive. Do you know what I like about the farm? Well, one thing is that you've got a lot of space to do what you want.

"I'd want to live close to Mom and Dad. I'd get married, I hope so. What kind of girl? One that won't mind working. We'd have a son first . . . and name him James Alan Hammer, Jr., because I would like him named after me because that's the way Grandpa did to Dad. Then we could all be together. That's a family. Some people to be with. People you like."
—Jim Hammer, age 13

I consider two places my home place. One at our place and one at Grandma's place. I suppose I'll be living either at the place where we live now or at my grandma's. I'd want to live close to Mom and Dad. I'd get married, I hope so. What kind of a girl? One that won't mind working. We'd have a son first. . . and name him James Alan Hammer, Jr., because I would like him named after me because that's the way Grandpa did to Dad. Then we could all be together. That's a family. Some people to be with. People you like.

What did Mom teach me? For one thing, she taught me how to mow the lawn. She showed me how to tie my shoes. That's one of the things I'll never forget. I used to sit there all morning tying my shoes. And she tries to teach me to live decent. Like some people don't have a very good life because they don't settle down in one place. They move a lot. Like they move to one place and don't stay very long. They could live in Illinois for a while and then move to California. I like Illinois; it's just my home state. She'd like me not to growl, be a grump. Like with the land: sometimes I feel pretty awful about it when something goes wrong, when the crops won't grow right—there's too much clay; when those animals were dying. It was awful, felt awful.

I like all the cows we have. Can't say the same for the pigs. It depends. If they chase me out, I don't like them too well. Yesterday morning one of them got at me. I jumped over the fence though. That old sow! I had to kick her in the nose, and then she turned around and went away. Those sows, sometimes they'll eat their own babies. They'll smother them, too.

Let's see. Then Mom wants me to be a good Christian—to go to church every Sunday, at least every Sunday that you can. Pray at night. Worship God. Send money to the poor. Love your enemies. Be thankful, like for the farm, and if the crops go well. Well, even if they don't. And I'm thankful for my mom and my dad and my grandma and my grandpas, my cousins, and my sisters, and all my friends.

From "Farm Boy," by Archie Lieberman, published by Harry N. Abrams, Inc., 1974.

When I lost 48 pounds, I started going places and doing things.

By Barbara Truitt — as told to Ruth L. McCarthy

At 160 pounds, I may have smiled about my new outfit, but I wasn't very happy about my way of life.

Have you ever noticed how fat people seem to spend a lot of time watching television? In my case, it's where I did much of my eating and most of my gaining — going up to 160 pounds. It was kind of an escape way of living. I was able to lose myself in other people's doings, and forget that I was sitting home, doing nothing myself. Fact is, it saved me the worry of what I'd wear if I were going out. But it didn't save me the tears I shed when my husband, Bobby, made remarks about my weight. Like the time he and I and the children were watching a jungle show. "Hey, there's Mama," he said, when a hippopotamus walked by. I'll tell you, that remark hurt!

Other times Bobby would just nag at me to take off that "snacking" fat. I guess he was plain sick of seeing me feeding on bags of potato chips, boxes of candies and pints of ice cream. Why, the arguments that scene caused were enough to upset any family.

Besides that, I'd got it in my head that Bobby was looking at other girls, so I became jealous and started crying: "You don't love me any more." I found out later it wasn't true, but my carrying on like that made Bobby so mad, we wound up feuding all the time. Which made me miserable.

It was after one of those teary sessions that I got myself some diet pills. Oh, I lost weight with them, but before I'd even taken half the bottle, I was in such a jittery state that I had to quit them. Then I started eating frantically and gaining weight again. Believe me, my life was absolutely miserable.

I began to think nothing could make me control my appetite, until the day I was reading a magazine and saw an Ayds ad in it. It was the same day I'd been on a shopping trip and discovered that only size 18 slacks would fit. That's when I decided it was time to stop crying and to start losing.

Fortunately, I learned from the ad that Ayds® Reducing Plan Candy contains vitamins and minerals, but no drugs, so I didn't hesitate to buy a box of the chocolate fudge kind at the drug store. Then I started on the Ayds plan the very next day.

I took Ayds like you're supposed to — one or two before each meal with a hot drink (coffee for me) — and they really helped curb my appetite. For breakfast, I found I could pass up hot buttered biscuits and be perfectly happy with just cereal and toast. For lunch, I was content with something like a hamburger. And at supper, I was satisfied with small portions of what the rest of the family ate, because I really wasn't hungry for more. Finally, for a late snack, I'd have a couple of Ayds — while watching television — to see me through the night.

I'll tell you, I wanted that Ayds plan to work more than I ever wanted anything in my life. And it did! In about two weeks, my slacks began to feel looser. When I finally got up the courage to step on the scale, I'd taken off six pounds. Honest, it made me feel so good, I decided to continue on the Ayds plan to the skinny end.

Actually, it took me nearly eight months to lose 48 pounds. And now that I'm down to 112, I've never felt better. Not only have I more energy, but I'm having more fun — swimming and bicycling and going out all the time.

I've never had more flattery either, particularly from friends in my hometown, Savannah, Georgia. Sometimes those who haven't seen me in a while will spread their hands in the air and say: "Just think, you once measured this wide."

As for Bobby and me, our life has changed completely. We've not only stopped arguing, but our love for each other has deepened. Why, thanks to the Ayds plan, my husband is paying me so much attention, I feel like I'm a bride again. And am I having fun buying a second trousseau — a whole new wardrobe of beautiful junior-size clothes — because we're going places and doing all sorts of exciting things now.

BEFORE AND AFTER MEASUREMENTS

	Before	After
Height	5'6"	5'6"
Weight	160 lbs.	112 lbs.
Bust	38"	33"
Waist	31"	23"
Hips	40"	31½"
Dress	18	7

Now that I'm down to 112 pounds, my husband says that my figure is as good as any professional model's.

Since I lost 48 pounds, I'm into all sorts of activities and have a closet full of exciting new clothes.

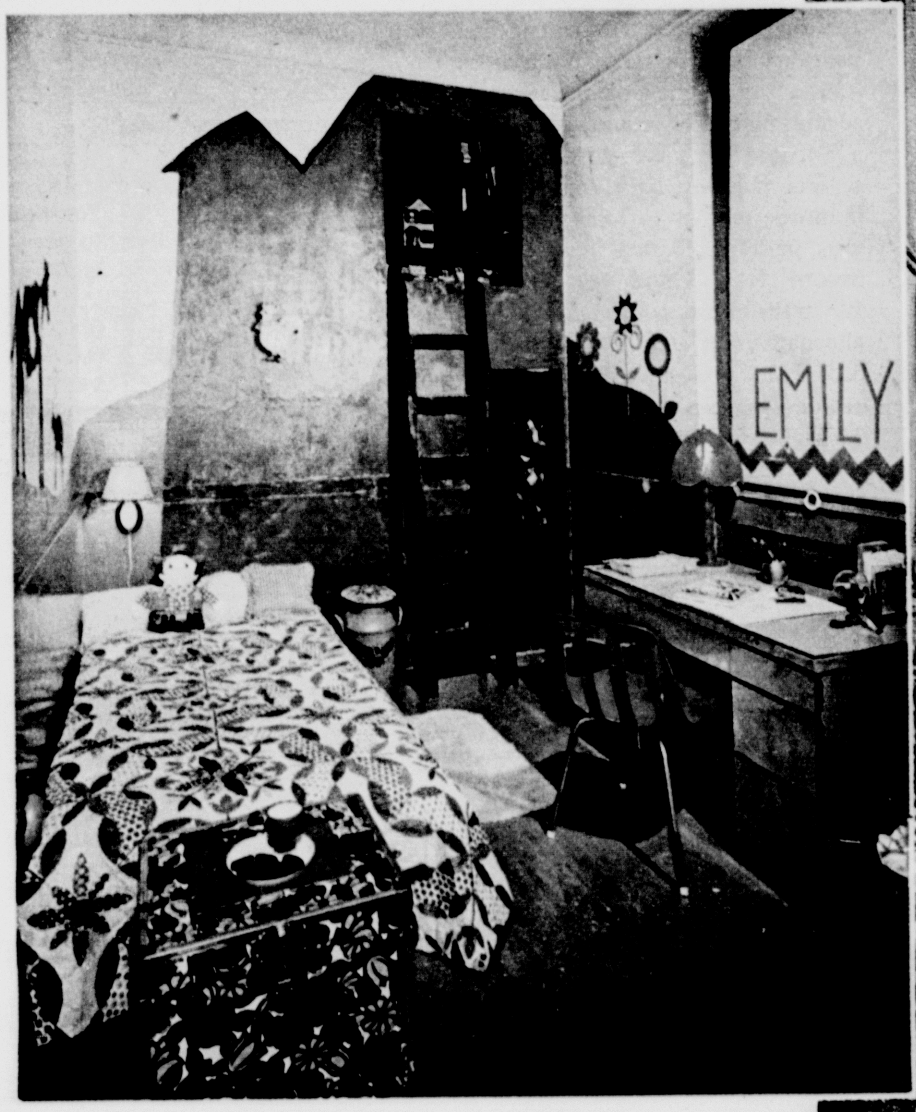
Good Ideas That Won't Throttle Your Gift Budget



What young girl wouldn't love this room, complete with a "barn"? The loft and closet were constructed by breaking through to an adjacent closet. The outlines of barn and hills were first traced in chalk, then filled in with paint. The flowers (right) were made of self-adhesive vinyl and felt. The furnishings (except the desk) all came from the five-and-ten and were selected to "grow" with Emily or be used elsewhere. Approximate prices: red chair, $6; wall light, $5; coverlet, $7.

This carpet-tiled room with built-in platform seating was furnished entirely from the five-and-ten! For added practicality, three easy-care Parsons tables were grouped in a free-form design. Curtains were used at the windows and to cover the walls. The slat blind was threaded with bias binding to enhance color coordination. Paintings and pillows complete the attractive setting. Both rooms designed by Ellen Liman.

Although five-and-ten-cent items have virtually vanished, the "five-and-ten," or variety store, is still one of the great American mercantile institutions and a fortress against inflation, especially for costly Continued commodities like home furnishings. Low prices—$4 for a rug, $3 for a lamp and $5 for a pair of curtains—together with a good selection of well-designed merchandise, permit those of us who have put off making new purchases—as well as everyone who appreciates saving money—to decorate well at an unbelievably modest cost.

While you may not find couches or credenzas, you will find practically everything else: tables and chairs; area rugs and carpet tiles; curtain rods and curtains; bath accessories and bedspreads; linens and light fixtures. And what is not available can, with some ingenuity, be improvised from what is sold.

Service is often limited, but it does exist. Window shades can be cut to order, some stores accept credit cards, and the sales personnel at a large Woolworth's where I recently shopped more than made up in helpfulness what they lacked in numbers. Purchases can sometimes be made on the layaway plan.

Inventory seems to vary from week to week and from store to store within the same chain, and while there are no special orders taken or deliveries made—it's strictly carry-it-home-yourself — the advantages are that you get an instant interior and no delivery delays.

Merchandise should be carefully examined and evaluated for durability, and if it has working parts (as a lamp, for example), tested before being bought. (Inexpensive does not necessarily mean cheaply made. As a matter of fact, products that must withstand the use of thousands of customers are often subjected to more rigorous quality control than items custom-made for a select few.) On the other hand, longevity may not be important. One advantage of an inexpensive purchase is that it can be discarded without breaking the bank—thereby changing the decor at will — a very practical consideration in furnishing the rooms of growing children or people on the move.

An open mind and an experimental attitude will help you make the most of the five-and-ten as a source of home furnishings. Here are some ideas to start you thinking, looking and buying with a discriminating and imaginative eye.

Decorate Accessories. Simple staples such as mirrors, lampshades, wastebaskets, picture frames, bulletin boards, and just about anything that would be improved with embellishment, can become important accessories. Decorate them with paint, fabric trim or remnants, wallpaper or self-adhesive plastic. For example, in colors that coordinate, wind yarn around a solid-color lampshade or spray-paint plastic flowers.

Transform Ready-Mades to Custom-Mades. A curtain that is a little too short to hang properly at your window can be "lengthened" by adding fringe to the bottom and "personalized" by choosing the trim color to go with the room. Economical custom-mades can similarly be created by trimming bedspreads, window shades, rugs and tablecloths. For example, sew pretty ribbons in different colors on a bedspread or trim a window shade with a design of colored adhesive tape.

Place Small Furnishings in Groups. If some furnishings are too small in size for a given space, "magnify" their appearance by using them in multiples. One scatter rug might look insignificant, but several placed or sewn together could be a conversation piece. Install not one but several hanging light fixtures or more than one pair of curtains—three pairs in tiers, perhaps.

Invent New Uses for Furnishings. When the choice is limited, widen it with alternatives. If a store does not have the bedspread you have been looking for but does have a sturdy tablecloth in just the right size and color, try that on the bed! Stepladders are perfect to display plants; stools can double as bedside tables; kitchen cabinets laid sideways can provide seating (add pillows on top) and a storage unit; an upside-down straw basket attached to the ceiling might make an off-beat lighting fixture; and matching bathroom curtains can be created by attaching café clips to an extra set of bathroom towels.

Furnish With Non-Furnishing Items. For the best buys and the most unusual ideas, don't limit your looking to the home-furnishings counters. Aluminum foil, gift-wrapping paper or a fabulous dress fabric (make curtains and cover small chairs to match) can be inexpensive and effective wall coverings. Frame an attractive scarf, or use it as a table cover or to tie back curtains. In a child's room hang a shoe bag as a bedside "organizer" and a kite as a wall hanging.

The Hottest New Gifts for 1974:

A Report From New York's Giant Stores

By Jim Sirmans and Rosalyn Abrevaya

What are the hottest new items in Christmas gift giving for 1974? To find out, FAMILY WEEKLY took an informal survey of New York City department stores – Macy's, Gimbels, Bloomingdale's, etc. – those huge emporiums where each winter hundreds of thousands of New Yorkers – and tourists – come to do their buying.

RAGGEDY ANN DOLLS. While you can still get all sorts of "newfangled" dolls that eat, drink, take baths, fly airplanes and go on camping trips, store buyers are also betting on a trend back to the simple old Raggedy Ann and Andy dolls of yesteryear. This is in line with the increased popularity of wooden toys and toys that are ungimmicky, uncomplicated, less destructible–and less expensive. The runaway best seller in new rag dolls is "Holly Hobbie," shown here.

CAPES. The romantic, swashbuckling cape, in a variety of lengths, promises to be the trend-setting style of the year. If it's to be a surprise gift, here are some buying tips: 1. If the person is short, choose a cape that does not use yards of material. 2. Look for variations on a theme: a flare that falls just from the shoulders, while the front has a shapely wrap belt; or select a three-quarter length.

DIGITAL WATCHES. "Everyone wants one," is the consensus of top retailers. Although the price for a digital watch is above that of a conventional timepiece, digital fever is running high. Often operating on a quartz-crystal base, the better watches are accurate to within three minutes a year, are highly shock absorbent and, in most fine models, you get to press a button for an instant "readout."

POCKET CALCULATORS. You no longer have to be a mathematical genius to work a calculator. In fact the new portable ones–some so compact you can hold them in your hand–are being used to manage household budgets, keep income tax statements accurate and provide students with a great learning tool. For those who care, there are even home calculators that come in decorator colors. The best part is that in the last year, the price has been coming down. You can wish someone a Merry Christmas with one for less than $50.

TERRARIUMS. While more of us are turning to gardening and the "greening" of American homes, there are also folks who just can't seem to get the knack, but who love plants. Thus the popularity of the terrarium. Not only is it a graceful addition to any room in the home, but because the plants are enclosed and in an ideal natural habitat, they require less care than the usual house plant. What to do if the terrarium clouds up? Simple. Water the plants less and the haze will disappear! Terrarium plants should be moist to the touch, not wet, and be slightly dry before rewatering. Pre-planted terrariums can be purchased in all shapes, or you can buy a kit and make one yourself.

Deck the halls with Black & Decker!

If you're looking for a great gift for the man around your house, a shiny new Black & Decker power tool kit might just be the answer. (At a surprisingly low price tag, too.) And each one of these three Black & Decker power tools is guaranteed for one whole year. If there's anything about it he doesn't like – and we mean anything – he can return it to a participating retailer or Black & Decker Service Center. It will be exchanged for a replacement tool, no questions asked. (Proof of purchase and return of original standard equipment required. Guarantee does not include tools used commercially or in rental service.) So this Christmas, give your man something he can work with. At a price you can work with.

A Christmas Quiz on the Psychology of Gift Giving

True or False: A gift from the boss, a high-ranking official or a celebrity means more than the same present from someone in your own status bracket. (See number 3)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. The most generous of gift givers fall into one personality category.

2. When it comes to gifts, affection or just plain helpfulness, it's better to be a "giver" than a "taker."

3. A gift from the boss, a high-ranking official or a celebrity means more than the same present from someone in your own status bracket.

4. Whether a person gives much or little at Christmas depends to a large extent on what he thinks of himself.

5. The more generous you are at Christmastime, the more your friends will appreciate your gifts – and the spirit that motivated them.

6. How much a person will spend for a present or donate to a cause depends on his mood.

ANSWERS

1. True. Studies at Wesleyan University show that the optimist is the most interested in doing favors for others, has the greatest capacity for warm relationships with people–and is much more likely to go along with the concept that it is more blessed to give than to receive.

2. True. As psychologist Rolland S. Parker sums it up succinctly in his definitive treatise, "Emotional Common Sense": "Takers are selfish and insensitive. If you are a taker, beware. You will be seen through and rejected." He warns givers to learn to recognize takers, who make a career of exploiting the generosity of givers. There is, he points out, a difference between having compassion and being a sucker.

3. True. It has been shrewdly observed that in most cases "the gift derives its value from the giver." This doesn't mean that a necktie from your boss or the president of the company is more esteemed than a handsome watch received from a friend of lesser eminence. But studies show that, other factors being equal, status does add luster to any gift, whether it be large or small.

4. True. Psychological studies at a leading university have shown that, generally speaking, the higher a person's self-esteem, the more highly he regards others. And it follows that this is reflected in his gift giving. It's interesting to note in this connection that investigations have shown that the Scrooge type of person–the most miserly giver–is seldom happy either with himself or the people around him.

5. True. However, there is one important consideration that should be taken into account. Tact and thoughtfulness should be exercised to avoid giving someone a present so rare or expensive that it is beyond his means to reciprocate in kind. Studies have shown that if a person is unable to return a gift or favor of commensurate value, it may damage the relationship, since people do not enjoy the feeling that they are under obligation to another and are unable to discharge that obligation.

6. True–and this applies even to children, as evidenced by Stanford University studies in which boys and girls were divided into groups. One group was asked to think of things that made them happy. The other group was asked to think of things that made them sad. Subjects were then given an opportunity to donate money to other children, in the investigator's absence. Results: The children who were instructed to think of things that made them happy gave significantly more than the group who were told to think of things that made them sad. Other findings: Females gave more than males overall.

Honey Custard*
Fruit 'n' Nut Chocolate Patties*
Apple Cider Milk

*Recipe given

TOMATO-ZUCCHINI CHEESE CASSEROLE

2 lbs. tomatoes, sliced
1 lb. zucchini, thinly sliced
2 cups (8 ozs.) Muenster cheese, shredded or diced
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

1. Preheat oven to 350°F. In 2-qt. casserole, layer tomatoes, zucchini and cheese. Sprinkle each layer with a little salt and pepper.

2. Finish casserole with tomatoes and cheese. Dot surface with butter. Cover casserole with foil.

3. Bake 45 minutes. Remove foil and continue baking about 10 minutes, or until vegetables are fork-tender.

Makes 4-6 servings

HONEY CUSTARD

3 eggs
⅓ cup honey
Dash salt
1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
2½ cups milk
Ground cinnamon

1. Preheat oven to 350°F. In medium bowl, beat together eggs, honey, salt and vanilla. Heat milk until a tiny rim of bubbles forms around edge of pan.

2. Slowly stir hot milk into egg-honey mixture, beating continually with wire whisk as you pour.

3. Pour egg-milk mixture into 6 custard cups. Sprinkle with cinnamon. Place cups in baking pan. Pour very hot water into pan, 1 inch deep.

4. Bake about 40-45 minutes, or until a knife inserted halfway between center and edge of custard comes out clean. Remove cups from water. Serve warm or cold.

Makes 6 servings

FRUIT 'N' NUT CHOCOLATE PATTIES

2 pkgs. (6-oz. size) semisweet chocolate bits
2 teaspoons shortening
¼ cup roasted unsalted peanuts
½ cup walnut pieces
½ cup raisins

1. Melt chocolate bits and shortening over hot, not boiling, water. Stir with spoon just until chocolate melts.

2. Stir in peanuts, walnuts and raisins, reserving a few of each to decorate tops of patties.

3. Spoon tablespoonfuls of mixture onto foil-lined cookie sheet or large platter. Decorate tops with reserved nuts and raisins.

4. Refrigerate about 30 minutes, or until firm. Peel off foil. Patties are best when freshly made. They will soften slightly at room temperature, so store them in refrigerator.

007, in New Orleans on business, in "Live and Let Die."

Roger Moore, alias James Bond III (after Sean Connery and George Lazenby), and I met while he was filming "The Man With the Golden Gun" on location in Hong Kong. We sat by the Olympic-sized swimming pool where, in the film, 007 encounters a lovely Oriental mermaid.

FAMILY WEEKLY: Are you more at home as James Bond in "The Man With the Golden Gun" than you were in "Live and Let Die"?

ROGER: Very much. I was the new boy then. Even my son believed that Sean Connery was James Bond. I remember when he asked me if I was stronger than anybody else and I said, "Yes, of course." And he said, "What if James Bond came through the door?" I said, "I am James Bond." And he replied, "I mean if the real James Bond, Sean Connery, came in." I told him we'd face that situation when the occasion arose! But now I am okay. I no longer feel I have Sean Connery's name on the back of my chair.

FW: How many Bond films have you signed for?

ROGER: Three.

FW: Why only three?

ROGER: I think maybe the producers ran out of zeros when they handed me their contract.

FW: Has the public accepted you as James Bond?

ROGER: My first Bond film did more at the box office than any of the previous Bonds.

FW: What makes you think that with all the attention you're getting now, you can keep your feet on the ground?

ROGER: First of all, I got a lot of attention when I did my television series, which were shown in 96 countries—including Iron Curtain countries—so I wasn't exactly unknown. Secondly, I believe you are what you start out with in life. Nobody suddenly becomes known as a no-good—like an actor I worked with who shall remain nameless. He was such a rotter that the only time I talked to him was on the set. One day I happened to run into the hairdresser, who was crying her heart out because this actor had treated her so badly. So for once I broke my rule and asked him why. He said he was not in this business to win a popularity contest.

FW: What did you tell him?

ROGER: I told him that since he wasn't much of an actor, he might as well try for the popularity poll instead.

FW: Do you ever lose your temper?

ROGER: Never at the studio. The only one who sees it is my wife Luisa. And that is intentional. I don't work well in an atmosphere of tension.

FW: Are there any restrictions as to what parts you can play in between Bond films?

FW: You've done five TV series: "The Persuaders" with Tony Curtis, "The Saint," "Ivanhoe," "The Alaskans," "Maverick." Did you enjoy them?

ROGER: I enjoyed "The Saint."

FW: Your father was on the police force. What did he do?

ROGER: He was a plan-drawer. If there was an accident or a murder, he would recreate the crime on paper.

FW: What kind of influence did he have on your upbringing?

ROGER: He taught me to believe in discipline and organization. He also taught me a healthy respect for law and order.

FW: Are you strict in disciplin-

IF YOU RETAIN FLUIDS, THEN TRY CARLTON FREDERICK'S "CAVE-WOMAN REDUCING DIET" RIGHT NOW!

To introduce you to nutritionally-sound reducing (and living). For women (and their men) who are NOT cheating, NOT lying, NOT fooling themselves about how HARD it is for them to lose weight! But who are blocked by the bio-chemistry of their bodies from losing weight even on the most agonizing crash diets!

You Know That This Diet Is For You IF—

- You retain fluids, even on ordinary diets!
- The diets you've tried end up putting weight on you, instead of taking it off!
- You need giant portions of food to keep you going every day—even if you want to lose 9 or 10 pounds in 10 to 14 days!

If The Answer To These Questions Is Yes, Then YOU Are A Bio-Chemical Cave-Woman, Or Cave-Man! This Means That your body is an especially efficient fat-producing machine! And if you don't control it correctly, right now, you will inevitably get fatter and fatter—grosser and grosser—as you get older and older!

BUT, if you switch—at last—to a diet that USES that special body chemistry of yours, instead of ABUSES it, then you may actually do all this, faster than you may ever have dreamed:

- Lose over 100 pounds, if you must (or any figure in-between)—without bagging, sagging or pouching!
- Lose more inches than you lose weight—so that your body slims downs even faster than the weight drains off!
- Reshape your body's architecture to your heart's desire—so fat flows out of ugly bulges that you couldn't whittle down an inch before!
- And, perhaps best of all, get rid of excess fluid FAST! So you look marvelous, right from the beginning!

All while you are suddenly "super-charged" with fantastic new energy! With glowing hair and skin! With stronger nails! And with so much less "nervousness" that your family may throw their arms around you with joy!

And This Is Just The Beginning! Only The First Example Of How Carlton Fredericks Uses Foods And Vitamins AS MEDICINES To Treat—Not Only Overweight—But All These Other Ailments As Well—

THE SCIENTIFIC PHILOSOPHY THAT BUILT THIS BOOK!

(All quotes from the book itself.)

Neither the clock nor the calendar can cause osteo-arthritis, decalcification of the jaw bone and loosening of the teeth, graying hair, wrinkling, or loss of zest for living.

It would seem logical for you to wonder why the physician seems to have a blind spot about the twilight zone of nutritional deficiency. Part of his myopia derives from lack of training in the field of nutrition. 72% of American medical schools do not offer a course in this subject as a part of the medical curriculum. In the 28% of schools that do offer such a course, the longest one given is some five hours of nutritional training, in one thousand hours of medical education.

I have seen the arthritic restored to social and vocational usefulness . . . coronary insufficiency helped . . . patients with congestive heart failure, who were going downhill with orthodox treatment, successfully treated with vitamin and mineral therapy. I have seen severe angina mitigated and mild angina eliminated.

Why not let him prove that he can do the same for you—today . . . without your risking a penny!

5 QUICK CASE HISTORIES—

out of dozens, to let you feel the joy others have had, when a simple shift in eating patterns CHANGED THEIR ENTIRE LIVES! (All quotes from the book itself.)

"Ever since I began menstruating, I had to throw away 8 or 10 days each month—I just couldn't function. Now my menstrual has dropped from 6 days to 3, and the cramps and weight gain are gone. I feel like an idiot, when I realize that simple changes in my food habits could have done this a long time ago."

"I don't have headaches any more . . . My new aspirin bottle is intact—I haven't taken a dose in the last two months."

"As breast cysts diminished in number and size, and in some cases vanished completely, the students expressed their astonishment—startled that this symptom, too, can be an indirect by-product of food-choices that do not satisfy the needs of the body."

"Her symptoms disappeared one by one, until she found herself able to take liquor or leave it, or take one drink and stop."

(From an elderly woman, formerly on the verge of a "nervous breakdown")—"I don't know what you gave me . . . but it descends on me like a blanket of peace."

THE CHANGES THAT ARE REGARDED AS THE INEVITABLE TOLL OF TIME ITSELF"!

And you will break out at last from the fatal error of thinking that there are certain disabilities and sicknesses that not only come with time, but are actually caused by it! So you need never again sit helplessly by while your doctor says, "Of course you have arthritis; you're sixty years old"! Or allow your eye specialist to remark, "The cataract you have is a product of old age"!

"This is simply not true", says Carlton Fredericks! "What you are suffering from is not age, but hidden malnutrition"! The overwhelming fact that as you grow older, your body extracts less power from its food! And that, if you do not make up for that loss of vital nourishment—through the medicinal use of special vitamins and foods—then the organs of your body start to starve a little more each day for that missing power!

What happens is that your body slips into a "Twilight Zone" of borderline deficiencies . . . of minor breakdowns that at first are almost unnoticeable! For years, you can continue in this borderline state, with no other real symptom than the fact that you feel always tired, always irritable, always rotten!

And then one of the organs finally can't keep limping along! Finally breaks down! And you "develop" a nameable physical disease—most often a degenerative disorder such as arthritis, diabetes, or disorders of the heart or blood vessels! And when such a disease comes to the surface—as it does in 36% of those who survive to the age of sixty—it is then misinterpreted as the penalty of living too long!

(Yes, misinterpreted! Because, 45 years ago, the American physician, XX Langstroth, found dietary deficiencies were uniformly present in older people with degenerative diseases—and just as uniformly ABSENT in healthy people the same age!)

But Now See What Happens When Foods And Vitamins Are Used As Medicines To Treat (As Example #1) THOSE WHO ARE BEING "TORN APART" BY THEIR NERVES!

These are the people who have suddenly found themselves gradually and progressively becoming increasingly nervous . . . easily startled or irritated . . . hypersensitive to noise . . . driven to distraction by the shrill voices of children, or the monotone of the radio . . . subject to growing insomnia . . . now easily offended or hurt . . . given to anger or crying with little or no provocation . . . even easily frightened, and plagued remorselessly by worry, without really feeling that worry is truly justified!

Soon they find themselves slipping into deeper and deeper anxieties . . . then days and even weeks of agonizing depression . . . and finally, thoughts of suicide, fears of attack, even the horror of going completely out of control themselves, and failing helplessly into the final, crushing land-of-no-return, called by their friends "a nervous breakdown"!

Tragic? Yes! But even more tragic because all these symptoms may NOT come from emotional disturbances at all! May not be "mental" at all! But may come—instead—from the fact that people who find themselves in deep trouble like this may need certain special foods and vitamins in quantities HUNDREDS OF TIMES the "normal" requirement! And if they do NOT get these proper quantities of these "pennies-a-day" nutrients, then such "unknowing starvation" will subtly but surely "CHOKE OFF" the normal functioning of their brain and nervous system!

And the symptoms that are "destroying" them are exactly as though the emotional-brain were becoming hysterical, because it cannot, for lack of proper nutrients, any longer obtain its necessary fuel supply!

No wonder Carlton Fredericks says bluntly: "I have watched the paranoid lose his delusions . . . the "senile" become functional again . . . the nervous become serene! There have also been the less dramatic, but equally meaningful changes: healthier hair, better nails, skin with better tone, better elimination, more resistance to fatigue, improved sleep—all the little things that are so important in determining one's feeling of well-being"!

And Now See What Happens When Foods And Vitamins Are Used As Medicines To Treat ALL THESE AILMENTS TOO:

Including, as just a few more vital examples:

The simple switch in diet that caused one husband to write Carlton Fredericks: "Hey, Doc! How do you turn it off?"

How better diet may help protect you against cancer of the breast (a statement which Carlton Fredericks says is "neither reckless nor undocumented), as well as determine how feminine a woman can be!

Why formerly virile men suddenly become impotent, lose their sex drive, and may even watch in horror as their breasts enlarge! (Called by Carlton Fredericks, "nutritional castration", its greatest tragedy lies in the fact that it is so easily preventable—if you take action at once!)

Documented case histories—reported by the Baylor University School of Medicine, and chronicled by the Reader's Digest—of men and women who have avoided operations for slipped disk, simply by taking large doses of a special vitamin!

How to build food-resistance to fungus infections, such as athlete's foot—as well as reduce the deposits of ugly tartar on your teeth!

The "brain-fat"—so powerful it is being used to stimulate brain-function in brain-injured children!

What to do if your cold will NOT respond to Vitamin C!

How to prevent both ordinary headaches, and the type of migraine caused by histamine! With food; and not dangerous drugs!

Why the repetition of strokes may now be blocked with the "sleeping" brain cells, lying next to the areas where destruction has taken place, now being called to take over the "lost" functions of the damaged area!

And Much, Much More! Far More Than We Can Even LIST On This Page! And All Yours To Read From Cover To Cover—Without Risking A Penny!

This book is for people who want to get things done! Imagine HOW MUCH BETTER YOU'LL FEEL AND LOOK—because this book not only takes care of your fat-problem, but your other health problems as well!

What Kind of Man Is Roger Moore, Anyway?

ing your children?

ROGER: About as strict as my father was, and that was pretty strict. He'd spank me about once a month. It took about 28 days for it to wear off, then I got it again. He strongly believed that the relationship between parents and children should be based on respect, and it's pretty difficult to respect a father who lets you get away with everything.

FW: The last time I visited you on location you were barreling down a dusty Jamaican road in a double-decker London bus, pursued by a police car. You had quite a few thrills while making "Live and Let Die." What do you do for excitement in "The Man With the Golden Gun"?

ROGER: We have a fantastic car chase.

FW: 007 has had fantastic car chases before.

ROGER: This one is different. And I can't tell you anything about it because I'd give away the gimmick. But we've tried it out, computered it, and if it works, it will be the most exciting car chase ever filmed.

FW: Have you had any close calls playing Bond?

ROGER: The speedboat chase in "Live and Let Die." It nearly cost me my front teeth.

FW: How?

ROGER: I was clipping along at 80 miles per hour, and at that speed you don't steer a boat with the wheel. You steer with the jets that move the boat in different directions. As I was heading for the beach I ran out of gas and there was no way I could control the boat with the wheel. I hit the beach and was thrown out of the boat. Luckily, I didn't get hurt.

FW: Have you had any close calls in your own life?

FW: I thought you were happily married to the lovely Italian actress Luisa Mattioli.

ROGER: I am. I am. My third marriage. And this one will last.

FW: Why are you so sure?

ROGER: I can't afford another divorce.

FW: How did you meet?

ROGER: During the filming of "The Rape of the Sabines," one of the many costume epics I've made. I played Romulus.

FW: How does she feel about all of the attention you are getting from other women?

FW: What does she do with herself all day?

ROGER: She looks after our children, Deborah, who is 11, Geoffrey, who is eight, and Christian, who was born last year.

FW: Most actors, no matter how successful, are plagued by a feeling of insecurity. Are you?

ROGER: Maybe the actors you talk about have reasons to feel insecure. I don't.

A Memo to Parents About How Kids See Sisters and Brothers

"A child can't have the foggiest notion what it's going to be like with a sibling. Why should he? Even a parent doesn't know."

Elizabeth Gee

By Helen DeRosis, M.D.

Your husband walks in one evening and announces, "What do you think, dear? We are going to have a new member in our family. A nice new wife is going to come to stay with us in a few weeks, and she'll live right here. We'll fix a lovely room for her, and we're all going to take good care of her and love her. She'll be good company for you, and you can do things together."

If we change only a few words, substituting the words brother or sister for wife, we have what many parents tell their children when a baby is expected in the family.

I wonder, however, how many children fall for this. I wonder how many of them need this kind of preparedness. I wonder even about those who seem to accept it and who go running around telling everyone that a new member of the family is going to come to stay with them and will be loved as they are. It may be that these children are getting the message: "That's the way the cookie crumbles; and whether you like it or not, that's the way it's going to be." Or, the child may be sincere in seeming delighted but is merely imitating the words and attitude of the parents. After all, a child can't have the foggiest notion what it's going to be like with a sibling. Why should he? Even a parent doesn't know what having another baby is like, unless it's a third or fourth.

What can a parent do to prevent sibling rivalry from developing? First, parents need to know that it is not inevitable. I know it may sound contradictory to say, "Don't expect sibling rivalry, but make sure that you make the moves necessary to prevent its occurrence." Yet, in a sense, that's the task confronting the parent. So let us turn our attention to the moves that one might take in order to prevent sibling rivalry.

Briefly, try to avoid making comparisons of any kind between your children of any age. I stress of any kind. That may strike you as unreasonable. But I have to stress it because you will invariably make comparisons, and if you try not to, you may just make less of them.

I cannot list the thousands of forms in which such comparisons can be made. An obvious one is: "Why can't you pick up in your room the way your brother does? And he's a boy besides!" Clunk! I repeat, you cannot possibly avoid them all.

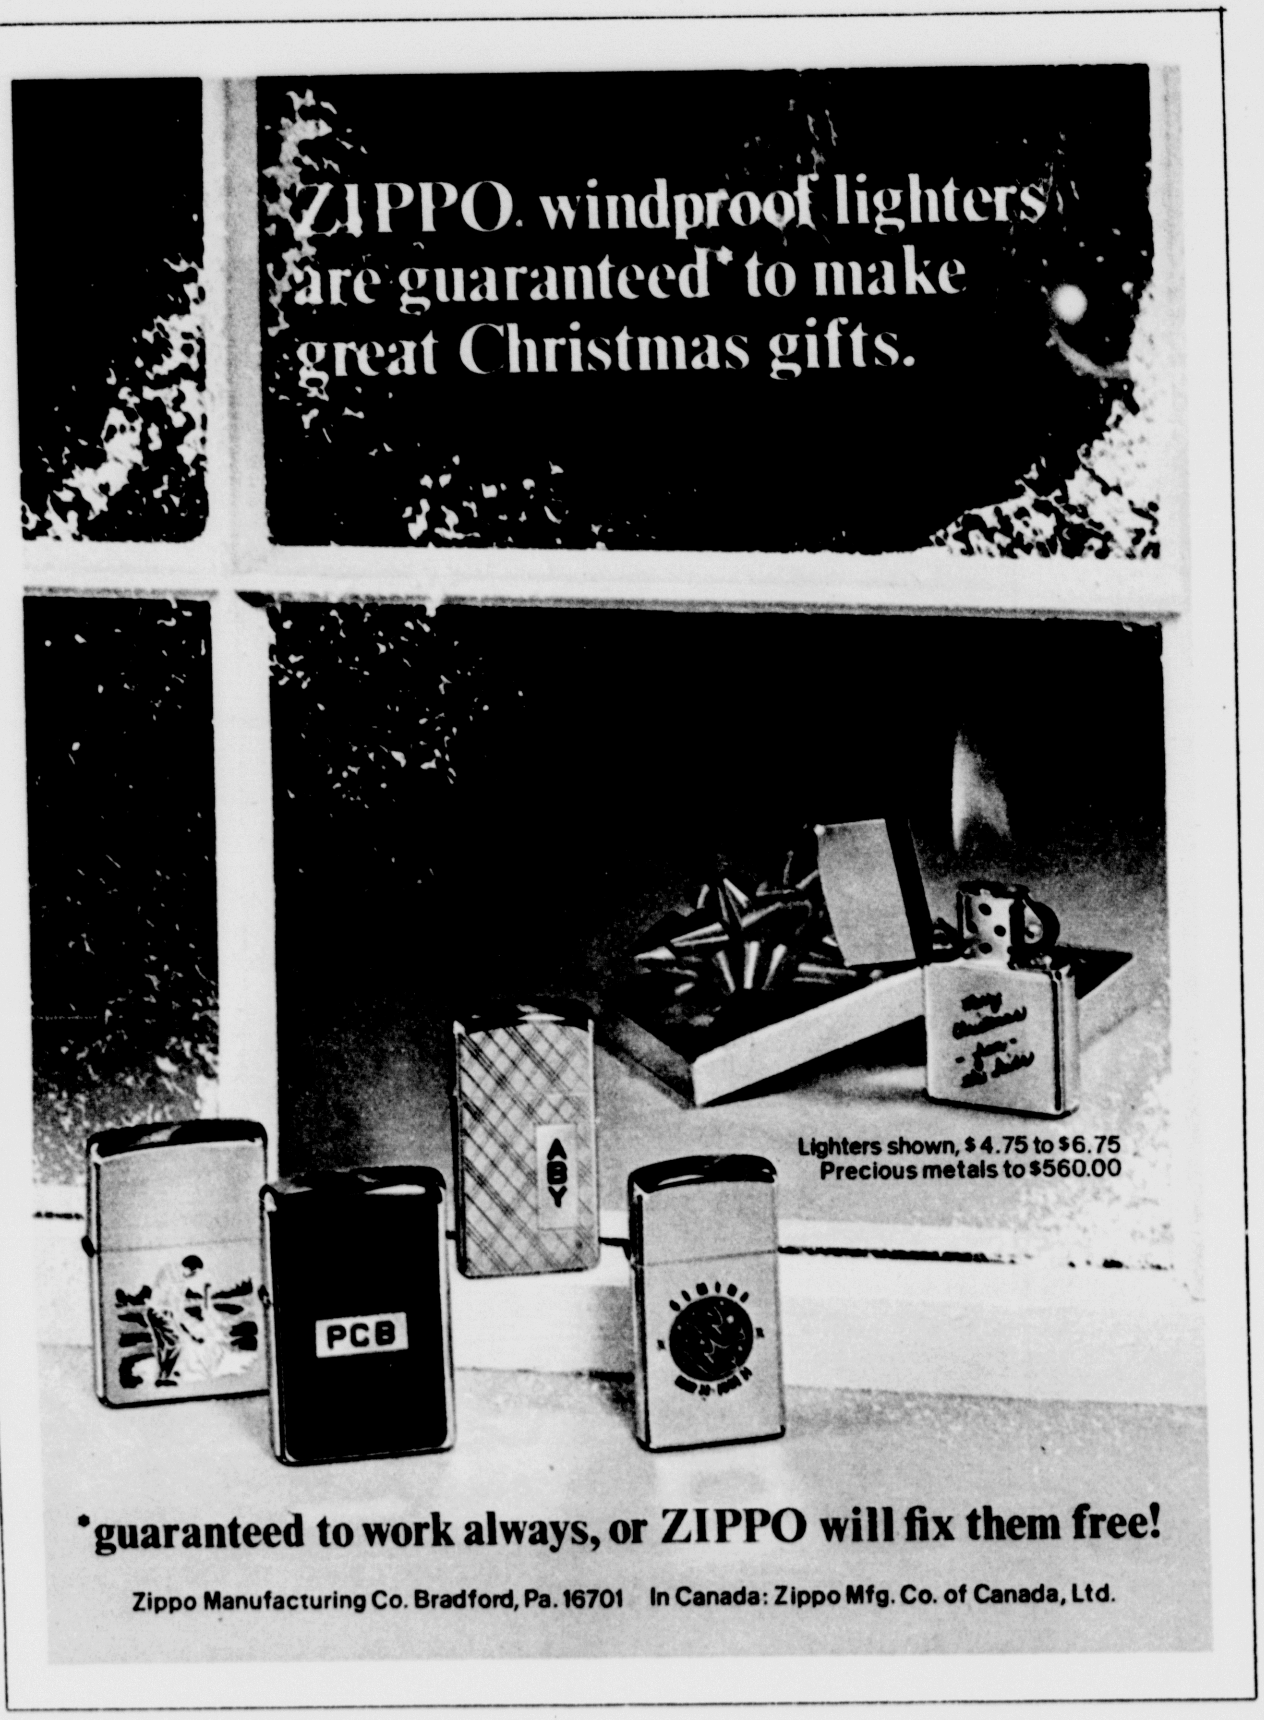
Please do not think that I'm throwing out the concept of comparison altogether. Surely, one of the ways a child learns is by comparing himself in all regards to others. I am speaking of the method of comparison as used by parents, supposedly to encourage their children to do better. But when used in that way, it often results in feelings of ineptness in the child being admonished. This form of comparison is not going to enhance your child's self-esteem. It will do just the opposite. An insidious feature of making comparisons is that neither parent nor child recognizes the damaging features of this method. The child often feels put down. The parent often is putting down, and no one knows what is going on. When the parent is not putting down but merely remarking, "What a nice sand castle Sue made," sister Carla will be able to pick up the straightforwardness of the remark and not feel belittled.

One of the most socially acceptable put-downs is seen in children's athletics. A father's exasperation or outright anger on the Little League ball field is often looked upon with bemused tolerance. Sometimes there is admiration for the father who is so involved in his child's athletic activities that he gives up hours of his time to establish a model of concern that can ofttimes be viewed as nearly hysterical, not to mention discourteous, pessimistic (you'll never be able to throw straight!) and derisive.

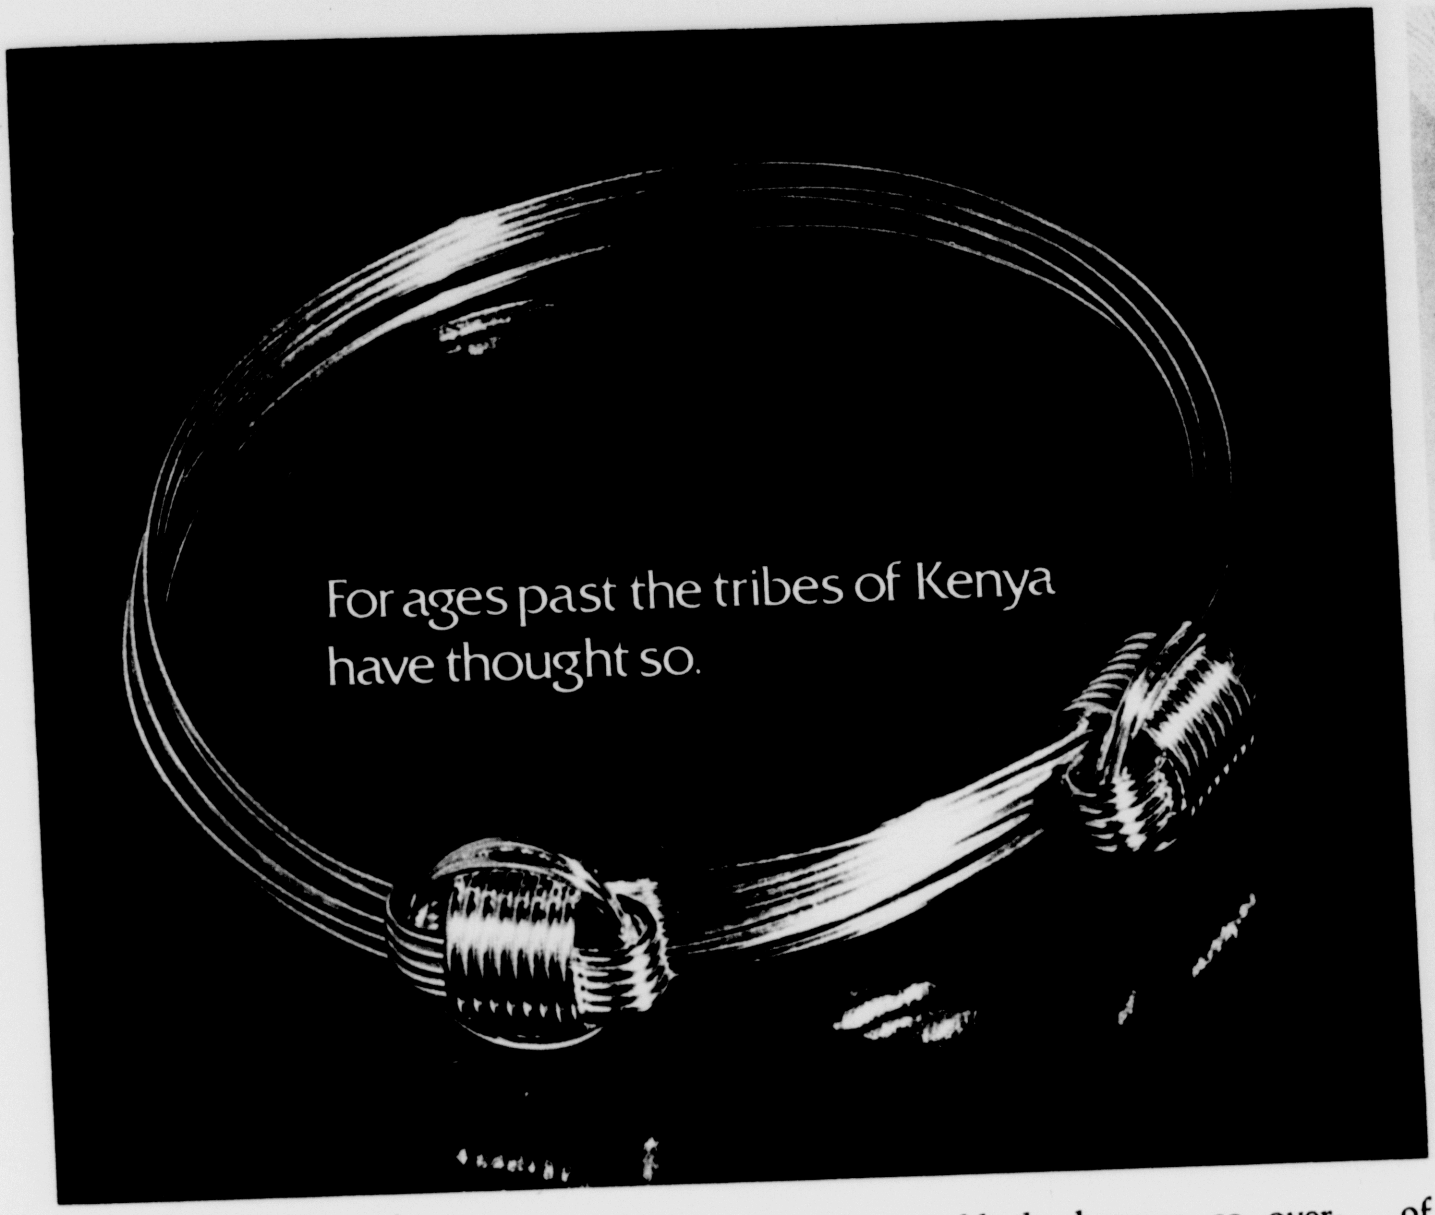
Another way that sibling rivalry can be avoided is by not crowding a child with responsibility for a younger sibling. While this cannot be avoided completely, nor need it be, consistent sibling responsibility is not a natural state for a child. He may enjoy being responsible for a younger sibling sometimes and under certain circumstances. But not as an inflexible chore, for which he will be made to feel lesser if he shirks in his performance.

A third trap that parents fall into occurs when a parent repeatedly shares with one child negative or positive feelings about a second child, feelings that are clearly meant to be kept from that other child. I stress "repeatedly" because occasional sharings of such matters are not harmful and are found in the context of most family living.

But repeated sharings may place a child in an awkward position and confuse his sense of loyalties. Parents must face the fact that their relationship with their children is different from that between siblings, and they would do well not to compete with their children for the same position. FW



WILL THIS TALISMAN BRACELET BRING YOU GOOD LUCK?



ORIGINALLY created with intricately knotted elephant hair, these bracelets were thought to inherently possess good luck and were often given by tribesmen to hunters after a successful elephant hunt.

Later, made in multi-strand gold, silver and copper wire, they became talismans of good fortune for either sex in finding a mate . . . getting and keeping good health . . . and success in any enterprise.

Can you solve the riddle of its ancient design?

The first question people will ask you about this Talisman bracelet is, "How do you take it off?"

When you mysteriously slip it off your wrist, you'll be asked more:

Is it all one piece of wire? Where does it start . . . where does it end? Does it really give you good luck?

And why have elephant hair styled bracelets suddenly become so overwhelmingly desired?

As old as Africa . . . as new as today!

Based on the original ancient design from the tribes of Kenya, these bracelets have been re-created in 5-strand copper, silver-plate and gold-plate wire. These handmade bracelets have an untamed, sophisticated look that is sure to attract attention wherever you go.

One of the most ingenious features of these unusual bracelets is that they're completely adjustable and look as well on men as they do on women.

The handmade feeling . . . the unusual knots . . . the way each bracelet adjusts . . . the mystery of its design can only be experienced by actually wearing one of these bracelets. The good luck is not guaranteed, but complete satisfaction is.

Please compare them with the $40 . . . $50 . . . and $100 elephant hair bracelets you've seen. Unless you feel these Talisman bracelets are superior, return for no cost.

Only $3.98 for the copper, $4.98 for the silver-plate, $5.98 for the gold-plate or $11.95 for the entire collection.

Please rush me the following Talisman Elephant Hair Styled Bracelets on no risk 10-day trial. If not delighted I may return for full refund.

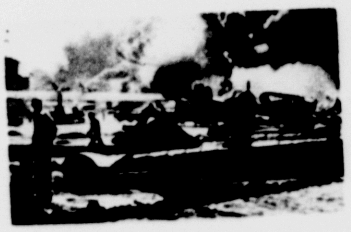
PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT ASKS CONGRESS TO DECLARE WAR

This series of major historical importance is limited to 25,000 in .999 fine silver at only $14.95 each.



"Yesterday, December 7, 1941 — a date which will live in infamy — the United States of America was suddenly and deliberately attacked by naval and air forces of the Empire of Japan."...

Franklin Delano Roosevelt

When the raid was over, at 9:45 a.m., on an otherwise serene Sunday morning, 2,341 Army, Navy and Marine Corps personnel were dead.... But in the hearts of all Americans, still destined to live forever.

And, beyond the death and the destruction emerged a greater America—an America, united as never before and determined to defend democracy in its darkest hour of peril.

Now, on the 33rd anniversary of that day of infamy, it is indeed fitting that we still "Remember Pearl Harbor" and the sacrifices made there for all of us.

A Magnificent Medallic Tribute to the Gallant Americans at Pearl Harbor

With this announcement, you now have the opportunity to acquire the First and Only Edition of Pearl Harbor Commemorative Medals authorized and approved by The Arizona Memorial Museum Foundation and struck in .999 fine silver.

You further have a unique opportunity to contribute to...

A Permanent Memorial to American Heroism

The Hamilton Mint is honored to be able to help build a permanent memorial in Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. Under the direction of The 46th Branch, Fleet Reserve Association, a portion of the sale of each commemorative set will go to the Foundation for the Development of The Arizona Memorial Museum. By purchasing this commemorative set you join the honor role of those who support this memorial and what it stands for. In addition, you bring into your home a rare and valuable collection in precious pure silver.

The Pearl Harbor Commemorative Collection

This historic collection consists of 28 superbly crafted medals, each medal being 1½" in diameter and struck in .999 Fine Silver. Each will contain 480 grains (a full troy ounce) of the finest silver available. And each is a glorious example of the engravers art with the sculptured bas relief portion in a satin finish against a gleaming mirror finish background. The subject matter of each medal has been carefully selected to tell the whole story of this historic day: from the tragedy of the U.S.S. Arizona and other great ships of the Pacific Fleet to the devastation of Hickam Field, individual acts of bravery and the address of President Roosevelt to Congress asking for a declaration of war. The medals will be issued two per month and in 14 months subscribers will have amassed 2⅓ troy pounds of .999 silver—more silver than the average person accumulates in a lifetime.

Your Personal Serial Number

Your medals will be minted expressly to your order and each will bear your own matching serial number along with The Hamilton Mint Hallmark. You will also receive a certificate certifying the precious metal content and limited edition status of your collection.

Issued in a Strictly Limited Edition at a Guaranteed Price

The Hamilton Mint, official minter of this series, will strike only 25,000 proof sets in .999 fine silver. Only one set will be allowed per subscriber and no more will ever be minted once the edition limits are reached.

Furthermore, while The Hamilton Mint does reserve the right to limit the edition below the published maximum limits, we do guarantee your subscription once your application is accepted. Under the terms of this offer we are officially committed to deliver to you at the low price stated in this offer, a complete set of 28 medals over the next 14 months, regardless of how high the price of silver and gold may rise.

Significant Investment Potential

In addition, this opportunity to acquire medals of artistic and historical significance comes at a time when economists are predicting that silver and gold will continue to become even more valuable in the years ahead. So please act promptly if you wish to be included within the edition limits. Send your application in today!

Special Display Case Included with Subscription

Deluxe Version: 24 Kt Gold on Pure Silver

At your option, you may order your proof-quality Pearl Harbor medals in 24 Kt Gold layered over pure silver. The 10,000 sets thus offered will be extravagantly beautiful and quite rare. Each medal will also be individually serially numbered and hallmarked. Each will cost $19.95.

BARBARA DEMPSEY
A fighter, too

When former Heavyweight Boxing Champion Jack Dempsey, 79, was forced to close his 37-year-old bar and restaurant on Broadway because his rent was raised, his daughter Barbara, 25, came out fighting for him. Barbara, who works in London, wrote a letter to Queen Elizabeth asking for facts about the rumors that the Inch Corporation (the British company that forced the restaurant's closing) is a "front for the Royal Family finances." "I hope your Royal Family isn't involved," said Barbara. "The Queen's private investments are just that—private," replied a Buckingham Palace spokesman. The Inch Corporation, in the meantime, has denied that the Queen has any part in it.

AVA AND FRANK
"So much alike"

QUOTE: On Ava Gardner and her former spouse Frank Sinatra: "They were drawn to each other not only because of sexual attraction but because they were so much alike. Both were night people, barely capable of sleeping at all, liking to sit up into the small hours. Both loved Italian food, hard liquor, boxing matches; both were generous, warm, fiercely honest, violent-tempered, afraid of being used, deeply insecure and skeptical of their own talents, neurotic, tension-ridden. Their energies fused, and their relationship was from the outset passionate and yet deeply frustrating, tormenting, because, similar as they were, they had a terrifying ability to seek out each other's weaknesses." UNQUOTE. From "AVA," a new biography by Charles Higham (Delacorte Press, $7.95).

John Nasmyth

Horrors of imprisonment: Former Air Force Captain John Nasmyth looks back over the gulf of two years since he was released from a North Vietnamese prison camp: "Surprisingly, the main activity of the North Vietnamese was never to pump us for military information. It was more like they were trying to purge themselves of a massive inferiority complex. They're a poor, backward group of people who milk their Communist brothers for all they can. At the same time, they despise America for what it represents. . . . Tortures ran the gamut from beatings to withholding mosquito nets. It's impossible to sleep when you're trying to fight off a jillion bugs."

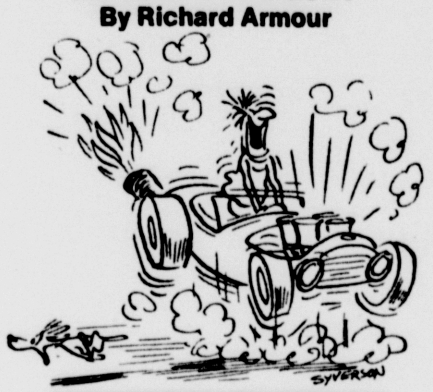
ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour



SUGGESTION TO DETROIT

Car makers, I suggest that you
Turn out a car for boys,
A special model that goes slow
Yet makes a lot of noise.

Produce an auto that will squeal
Each time a corner's turned,
And one that shoots a stream of smoke,
Though little gas is burned.

This car (bright-colored—red or striped)
Need not go more than twenty,
Just so it roars and squeals and snorts
And scares us old folks plenty.

An Englishman, thrilled at his first visit to America, stepped off the ship in New York and gazed around at the tall buildings. Stopping a passerby, he said, "I can scarcely believe I am in America. Is this really New York City?" The man smiled and nodded. "Sí, señor," he said.

My five-year-old grandson Bobby was very proud of his new savings account. Soon after his mother opened it up for him they were in the bank. Bobby went up to the cashier and asked, "How's my money getting along?"

NET $9.98 AND GUARANTEED FOREVER—THE FINE VANADIUM MOLYBDENUM CARVING SET.

Revolutionary new technological advance combines rare Vanadium and Molybdenum into superb Total Edge Knives. So unique, so superior, they're guaranteed to stay sharp forever—or we'll refund your money—anytime.

THE TOTAL EDGE KNIVES

Forget what you know about knives. This is the age of the fantastic Total Edge Cutlery Set, a revolutionary, unique set of knives with blades that always remain sharp and even. It became possible to design the Total Edge Knife only after our research technicians discovered a way to combine two rare and expensive metals, Vanadium and Molybdenum, into a tough, everlasting cutting tool that won't rust, bend or dull. American Consumer, Inc. stands proudly behind every knife we sell. We unconditionally guarantee them forever. No matter what happens, we'll replace the knife or your money, a month from now, a year, 20 years, anytime.

FOR EVERY CUTTING CHORE

These exciting products of man's imagination and scientific know-how are lightweight, thin and flexible. They can be used for every purpose, chopping, dicing, filleting, mincing, paring, carving . . . you name it. The permanently razor sharp Total Edge Knives cut cleanly and swiftly. They cut as thin a slice as you could possibly desire—meat, poultry, fruit, vegetables, bread—even onion slices so thin you can see right through them. And, they're uniquely engineered to protect fingers with handles safety-bonded to the blade.

SENSATIONAL LOW PRICE

Best of all—the low, low price—only $9.98 for the set of 4. Yet, the Total Edge set out-performs any knives you've ever seen, even sets selling for up to $24.98. How can we make the best for less? We feel our knives are so good, so unique, we've made an unusual commitment. We've gambled that this spectacular set of knives at the spectacularly low price of $9.98 will sell by the hundreds of thousands. That's a lot of knives. This volume permits us to pass on the unusual savings to you. Now, every household can have the finest cutlery set in the world. Take advantage of this unheard of offer now.

SET OF 4 FOR THE UNBELIEVABLE PRICE OF

GUARANTEE

American Consumer unconditionally guarantees the 4-piece Vanadium Molybdenum Cutlery Set FOREVER! They are guaranteed to be the finest, toughest, sharpest you've ever seen or we'll return your money, anytime, anywhere. Even if a truck runs over one, we'll replace it, one month from now, one year, 20 years—forever!
